CROWN NOT MINE TO GIVE AWAY, ALFONSO SAYS

Talks to Reporter of Spain's Crisis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Copyright, 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MADRID, Feb. 23.—The crown of Spain is not his to give away, King Alfonso explained today.

Displaying his wide smile, he made everything seem quite simple in a conversation with a TRIBUNE correspondent today, the first time since the fall of Dictator Primo de Rivera that he has talked face to face with newspaper men. The conversation took place at the edge of Castile, west of Madrid, where he is building an immense university city which looks like the ninth wonder of the world. It is called informally about "the city of attention" primarily and about other things.

Grins as He Talks.

There was no denying that. He seemed to be a man with no cares in the world. He talked and grinned in dark, toothy grin, making one think that if the Spaniards are subjected, as some of them say, to the misery of the last absolute monarch of Europe, they are in some measure down to charm.

It was no interview, just a talk.

"You have come to Spain in such stormy days of events that luckily haven't happened that I would be busy all day asking journalists if I started out well or ill," he said. "But you can at least say you met me."

"Tell me everything is calm, don't you?" queried Alfonso after taking a good natured crack at newspaper accounts of the recent happenings in Spain.

He drew his own reign into the conversation and did not shy at the crisis of these last few days, which some describe as simply political and some revolutional.

"Have Done All I Can."

"I have done all that I can. I would have liked to have every one represented in my government, Socialists and Republicans, too." He said this with an eager and aggressive smile that lighted his dark Bourbon face and seemed capable of melting all of Spain's problems in its warmth. It is a genuine weapon.

"I was willing to give up almost everything but my crown," he quickly said.

He did not mention any one by name, but this was undoubtedly in memory of his "game" with Sanchez Guerra, the deputy, who couldn't hold the ball King Alfonso tossed at him when the monarch asked him to form a cabinet.

"But I could not give up my crown," he continued. "It is not mine to give away. It is my inheritance. I am only the temporary holder."

Speaks Amid Din.

He spoke amid the rat-a-tat of hammers of 2,000 workmen, the rattle of 20 tractors, and the disorder of the vast construction, which is soon to be one of the most elaborate universities in the world. It will consist of 37 buildings housing 15,000 students, and will cost $70,000,000.

But the din didn't drown out his voice, when he said confidently:

"We have turned the corner. The evolution you expected to find is not in evidence. All we need now is peace and we are on that road at last, even though it is a long road. We must hold three elections—municipal, provincial and national—and they will take time."

"Will all the parties cooperate in the elections?" he was asked.

"I am informed the Socialists have abandoned their decision to boycott the elections," the 44 year old monarch explained. "I wanted to have both Socialists and Republicans in the cabinet, but it wasn't possible."

Talks About Elections.

He even talked as if the crucial election didn't worry him.

"Is there any likelihood that the elections will produce a parliament charged with the revision of the constitution?" was put to the king.

"I cannot tell," he answered. "I must wait. It is for the elections to show. All I desire is the good of my country. More than that I cannot tell me."

The government announced tonight that the municipal elections, the first in a series of elections that will end eventually in balloting for an assembly to amend the constitution, would take place on April 12 instead of April 26. Educational institutions closed by the Berenguer government a month ago, are also ordered re-

BILL PASSED TO PAY DAIRY $960 LOSS IN DRY RAID

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The house tonight passed a bill to pay the Okaw Dairy company of New Athens, Ill., $960 for butter and other articles which the company lost as a result of a prohibition raid nearby five years ago. The agents seized the commodities along with beer and beer making paraphernalia from a neighboring establishment. The Okaw company claimed to have no connection with the raided place. The bill now goes to the senate.

Flyer Loops Loop 78 Times in 88 Minutes for Record

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Tex Rankin, Portland, Ore., aviator, claimed a new world's record for outside loops today after he completed 78 consecutive loops in 88 minutes. Rankin said he would have continued looping, but was confused by dark goggles he was wearing and thought it was much darker than it was.

Robber Pair Slay Victim as He Resists

Two drunken bandits on a gunning spree of crime shot and killed one victim early this morning, fired at and slugged another several minutes later and held up two others before a police squad ended their activities.

The prisoners, one of whom wounded himself accidentally in the right hand, are Frank Cichanski, 20 years old, 1513 Tell place, and Frank Blazek, 25, of 2207 West Chicago avenue. Their murder victim, a well dressed man about 35 years old, was shot above the heart and instantly killed. He was unidentified.

Shoot Down Their Victim.

Armed with one revolver, which Cichanski carried, the gunmen started operations in Noble street, near Chicago avenue. In front of 749 Noble street they accosted the unidentified man. Apparently he resisted, police said, and was shot down. Two minutes later Cichanski and Blazek approached Frank Gawlinski, 821 Rose street, standing at Chicago avenue and Noble street. He started to run, but was halted by two shots, one of which, detectives believe, caught Cichanski in the hand. Gawlinski was felled with a blow from Cichanski's revolver, but not robbed.

The drunken robbers next came upon Joe Wenglarz, 1245 Wade street, and Walter Pieniazek, 723 North Ada street, a few hundred feet away, threatened them, and took a small quantity of money and jewelry. Wenglarz and Pieniazek ran to the North Racine avenue station with a report of the holdup, followed by Gawlinski.

Police Capture Pair.

Acting Lieutenant Tom Kelliher and Policemen William Kells and James O'Connor immediately set out in search for them. They saw the suspects staggering along Ogden avenue near Ohio street. As the police neared Cichanski handed his revolver to Blazek. Kelliher jumped from his squad car and struck Blazek to the ground with a blow. Cichanski leaped over a fence, but was caught. Both were taken in a stupor to the station and could not respond to questioning. The stolen loot was found on them.

An armed man, accompanied by a comely blonde, wearing a sealskin coat, held up Alvin Dunlap, 1341 Ardmore avenue, manager, in the hat store at 3225 Lincoln avenue last night, trussed him up, and stole $140. The woman did not assist, but served as a blind, police said. This was one of half a dozen more daring holdups reported during the night.

Burglars using an acetylene torch set fire to the S. S. Kresge store, 1956 Lawrence avenue, and were frightened away without opening the safe. The fire, however, was small.

W-G-N GIVES RETURNS.

Radio fans interested in the primary returns will keep their dial tuned to W-G-N tonight. As fast as The Tribune receives the primary figures they will be placed on the air.

LOWELL TO 'QUIT AS PRESIDENT OF HARVARD IN 1932

Boston, Mass., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Boston Post says that Abbott Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard university since 1909, is planning to retire at the close of the academic year ending in June, 1932. President Lowell, who reaches his seventy-fifth birthday in December, is expected to retire after he has the new "house plan" operating in full swing.

The "house plan" will be in full operation at Harvard with the beginning of the next academic year, representing President Lowell's fondest dream, and he is said to feel he should remain in charge only until the plan is well under way, then resign to give his successor in the presidency an opportunity to develop his own ideas.

Al Smith Drives a Fire Truck Through Brooklyn

The occasion was the firemen's parade in that borough, an annual affair of helmeted public servants from all over the east and of millionaires and politicians who loafed at the firehouse as youngsters and dreamed of carrying a hose. The former governor today was placed high on a seat of one of the horse drawn vehicles that were once his delight.

Razor Slips on Governor; Barber Loses Capitol Job

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A barber who accidentally let his razor slip while shaving Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray in the capitol barber shop recently, has been notified by a member of the state board of affairs that his contract with the state for use of the shop will be terminated. The barber, C. H. Riggs, has operated the shop several years.

A regular daily schedule of three sessions begins tomorrow, of which the evening session, which begins at 9 o'clock, is to be 90 minutes long.

CAPONE HIDING, BUT HIS HAND IS SEEN IN VOTING

Cops Caught in Vice Toils Reinstated.

Al Capone, gangster overlord, public enemy No. 1 and reputed political ally of Mayor Thompson, last night loomed more significantly than ever as a factor in today's election following the sudden reinstatement of 13 suspended policemen, two of whom were directly linked with affairs involving Capone enterprises.

A reinstatement order issued by Acting Police Commissioner Alcock restored to duty Sergts. Peter J. Bernacchi and James Coleman who were suspended Jan. 23 by direction of the special grand jury hearing charges of police graft. They were the policemen assigned to guard the Rex hotel, notorious 22d street vice den, and see that it was kept closed. The dive, owned by Dennis Cooney, Capone henchman, was raided by men from the state's attorney's office and was found to be in operation. Later the names of Bernacchi and Coleman were found on documents in Cooney's safe.

Others Are Reinstated.

Two others put back in uniform were Policemen James Howland and Wellington Britton, indicted by a federal grand jury for conspiracy to violate the Harrison narcotic act.

The reinstatement list also included Sergts. Jack Herdegen and James H. Stapleton and Policemen Oliver J. McCormick, Peter J. Lowery, William Bresnahan, James O'Donnell, John Walsh, John Gaskin, and Ira O'Neal.

Acting Commissioner Alcock could not be found last night to answer inquiries regarding the reasons for the reinstatements. It was reported that he was at Thompson headquarters preparing for police activities today.

Meanwhile the authorities last night continued their search for Capone, who is reported to be directing the work of his gangsters today in behalf of the Thompson organization. Announcements from the offices of Sheriff Meyering, State's Attorney Swanson, and the board of election commissioners indicated that every possible precaution has been taken to prevent election lawlessness.

Expect Hoodlum Activity.

Supporters of Judge Lyle, who has charged that Capone contributed $150,000 to the Thompson campaign fund, expressed the belief yesterday that the hoodlum element is desperate and will resort to any means to defeat him.

Linked with the reports of Capone's return and the reinstatement of the police sergeants involved in the Rex hotel affair was the appearance of Cooney, proprietor of the Rex, in Felony court and his surrender on a vagrancy warrant which has been waiting for him since Judge Lyle issued his supplementary list of public enemies.

Cooney walked into Municipal Judge Padden's court, accompanied by his attorney, Benjamin J. Short, who obtained a continuance. The case went over to March 3, and Cooney's $10,000 bond was signed by Ike Roderick, a professional bondsman. Cooney thus will be able to carry out Capone's missions without danger of being picked up on the vagrancy warrant today.

Capone's Arrest Ordered.

The search for Capone was intensified when Judge Padden ordered Chief Investigator Patrick Roche of the state's attorney's office to find Capone and serve him with the Lyle vagrancy warrant. Squads headed by Roche visited all the gangster's usual haunts, but they returned late in the day empty handed. Capone is due to appear in federal court on a contempt charge tomorrow.

A total of 70,000 persons, including 45,000 watchers, several thousand judges and clerks, reserves in the offices of the sheriff and the state's attorney, will be on the job today with an official interest in preventing violation of the election laws. County Judge Jarecki declared that he and the board of election commissioners have done "everything humanly possible" to keep the polls protected.

Police received a report last night of a slugging and kidnaping at the 43d ward Lyle headquarters at 723 West North avenue. Ralph Hanna, 420 Seigel street, an investigator in the state's attorney's office, was slugged and Eddie Sklorov, 1216 North La Salle street, was kidnaped and beaten.

The assault on Sklorov was said to be connected with the disappearance of Tony P[illegible] 1223 Burling street, another Lyle worker.

Bomb Damages Twine Plant of Harvester Co.

A powerful bomb, which was heard for miles around, was exploded early this morning near the entrance of the twine mills employment office of the International Harvester company at 2557 Blue Island avenue, not far from 26th street and Western avenue.

Several hundred windows were shattered in the plant and in the McCormick clubhouse across the street at 2530 Blue Island avenue. M. C. Tesenholtz, police and fire chief of the harvester works, estimated the damage, which was confined chiefly to windows, at $1,500. No motives were advanced for the attack, which was similar to those directed in recent months against other large mercantile and industrial institutions, among them the American Furniture and Merchandise Marts, the Reuben R. Donnelley Printing company, Sears, Roebuck & Co., and the Crane company.

200 Windows Shattered.

The bomb was placed over an iron grating above the basement, about 15 feet east of the main entrance of the employment office. The blast shook the five story factory, broke more than 150 windows to pieces, and shattered more than 50 windows in the clubhouse. A small area of masonry was blown out. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nitch, managers of the clubhouse, were jarred and awakened by the explosion and called police.

According to Chief Tesenholtz, the mills had been inspected by Watchman Charles Redgate about a half hour before the bombing. No suspicious loiterers were observed at the time.

Bakery Is Bombed.

In another bombing early this morning the bakery of Joseph Wukins, 3357 Auburn avenue, was slightly damaged. The bomb was placed at the front entrance and shattered the plate glass window of the shop. Wukins, his wife and two children were asleep in the rear, but were not injured. The baker said he was warned three months ago by men he believed were union agents that if he did not stop selling bread at 7 cents a loaf and raise the price to 10 cents he would be blown up.

CLUB BUILDS BAR IN BELIEF END OF DRY ERA IS NEAR

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—In the expectation that prohibition soon will end, provision has been made at the new Union League club for a large, sumptuous bar.

Officials of the club today explained that recent trends in American life have foreshadowed the end of prohibition soon and that the "Union League club is ready to take immediate advantage of a change in the laws.

"We hope and expect to see prohibition end very soon." George W. Fraker, member of the house committee of the club, said. "More than three-fourths of the Union League club are active wets and prohibition cannot die any too soon for us."

More than 4,000 persons visited the new building today to inspect the quarters. The new club, a seven story structure, is, in the opinion of its directors, the most handsome and most luxurious clubhouse in the world. Its cost was put at well above $4,000,000.

UNITE; CLEAN UP CITY, IS LYLE'S FINAL APPEAL

ELECTION FACTS

The weather will be mostly fair and warmer for the primary today, according to the forecast last night which upset earlier predictions of unsettled and occasional rain.

Both Republicans and Democrats nominate their candidates for mayor, city clerk, and city treasurer for the election on April 7. In addition candidates for a Municipal court vacancy will be nominated.

There also are two elections. Aldermanic candidates who get majorities today will be elected. Wards in which there is no majority will have a runoff election on April 7. One judge of the Superior court will be elected.

The voters also will pass on proposed bond issues of the city, county, sanitary district, and the park districts totaling $54,600,000.

All polling places will be open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. Voting on the bond issues and judicial candidates ends at 4 o'clock.

The registered vote of the city is 1,340,566.

FOR MAYOR
[For the Republican nomination.]
☒ JOHN H. LYLE

BY PARKE BROWN.

Pleas to concentrate all the anti-Thompson strength behind a single candidate to rid the city of gang power marked the final day of the campaign of Judge Lyle.

The candidate himself voiced that plea at what was considered the banner downtown theater meeting of the season in the Studebaker. The house was filled to overflowing with enthusiasts who almost mobbed the judge in their effort to wish him success as he departed.

The same plea for unity was expressed more in detail by B. W. Snow, chairman of the Republican county committee, who made his radio debut over two stations during the evening. It was his first extended speech of the campaign and was an analysis of what has occurred during recent weeks to give Lyle what is considered a substantial lead.

Lyle Versus City Hall.

Public attention on the final day was centered on the Lyle-Thompson fight. Ald. Arthur F. Albert, Deneen entry, was still active, but even in his own camp was admitted to have been weakened by the failure of Senator Deneen to take the stump for him as had been expected. George K. Schmidt's representatives were insisting that he will get such substantial support from German-Americans that it will constitute a demonstration of another type of unity.

Judge Lyle finished his campaign in fine fettle. His farewell meeting was an invasion of City Collector Morris Eller's stronghold, the Twentieth ward, in the evening. He was accompanied there by two motorcycle policemen he had told to report back for duty in chasing Al Capone, but who returned with an explanation that Acting Commissioner Alcock would not change their assignment.

Serritella Well Guarded.

In this field of developments there was considerable interest in the fact that City Sealer Serritella, Capone lieutenant and member of Thompson's cabinet, now has eight policemen assigned to him for his personal protection. In addition to Detectives Rocco Filetti and William Balzano, he has three two men shifts on guard at his home. It is rumored that the city hall official was frightened by a threat whispered in his ear recently.

There were two outstanding developments during the day construed as meaning that Thompson himself is uneasy and is using desperate means to stave off defeat.

One of these was the return to Chicago of Homer K. Galpin. Galpin's summer home is in Wisconsin. He also has a winter place in Florida. He has divided his time between those two spots ever since, according to Frank J. Loesch, special prosecutor of political corruption, a special grand jury began looking for him for the purpose of asking him about $260,000 Al Capone was said to have given to the Thompson campaign of 1927.

Galpin recently asked that an absentee ballot be sent to him in Florida. This was considered evidence that he did not intend to return for the primary. But he was seen here yesterday, and it was reported that he came back in response to insistent urging by Thompson that his expert assistance was needed at once.

Withheld Election Returns.

The second development, thought to indicate that Thompson was at least doubtful of the result today, was an announcement that he had ordered the written police returns withheld from the City News bureau, which customarily compiles them for the newspapers, and turned over to his own forces in the city hall.

Twice before Thompson has taken this step in connection with the unofficial returns. He did so in 1919 when, as a candidate for reelection, he barely defeated Robert M. Sweitzer, and there were charges that the returns had been tampered with.

The other time in which the figures were delayed was in 1920, when Len Small nosed out John G. Oglesby for the Republican nomination for governor. It was asserted openly at that time that the tally sheet records had been juggled, but Oglesby refused urgent pleas of his Chicago advisers to file a contest and open the ballots himself.

Thompson's action does not prevent the unofficial figures from getting to the newspapers. They will have telephone reports and, a little later in the evening, the returns will be brought to the election board by the judges and clerks in the form of an unofficial memorandum of the results.

Lyle Forecasts Victory.

"The campaign is over," Judge Lyle told his Studebaker audience. "I expect to beat Thompson by 150,000 votes. The fight is between us. A vote for Albert is a vote for Thompson."

He told of the two warrants for Al Capone that he issued and which are still outstanding.

"That there is no effort being made to serve them," he said, "is another demonstration of the truth of what I have repeatedly said—with no denial from him—that Thompson's corrupt political machine has fraternized with and truckled to these gangsters.

"They have contributed to campaign funds, they have bought diamond stars for Thompson officials, they have bought automobiles for officials, they have given banquets for them and in return they have been allowed to use the courts to get them out of the clutches of the law.

"Can any man or woman with reasoning power fail to understand why these gangsters have blackmailed, bombed and extorted under the eyes of the city hall with 6,000 policemen at the mayor's beck and call unless there has been an alliance between crime and public officials?"

A Battle Against Gangs.

Speaking over the radio later, Judge Lyle said that the gangsters will stage a big celebration if Thompson should win.

"If I am defeated," he continued, "what a discouragement it will be to other judges trying to enforce the law against the gangsters. 'What's the use?' they will say, and will go along with the machine controlled judges.

"The thing to do is to get rid of Thompson at the primaries. Then we'll take care of the next fight when we come to it."

In his radio talks County Chairman Snow told of his efforts to reorganize and rehabilitate the Republican committee and the party locally, despite the great patronage power of the city hall in organization matters. He made the direct charge of the alliance between Capone and the city hall.

Snow Tells of Crisis.

"It is my first duty," the chairman continued, "to warn Republican voters that the character of city government during the next four years is to be determined tomorrow in the Republican primary. If Thompson is renominated nothing short of a miracle can prevent his reelection. If he is to be beaten and the political alliance with the criminal element is to be broken, it must be done in the primary.

"Any thought that an independent candidacy could give hope of electing a mayor is an illusion. Any interest which suggests that Republican voters stay away from the polls tomorrow and content themselves by supporting an independent candidate for mayor after the primary is doing Chicago an irreparable injury.

"It is advice based upon fallacy and its only practical result will be the continuance of gang rule in Chicago. This city has never elected independent candidates. The next mayor of Chicago will be nominated tomorrow and a future independent candidacy merely divides the strength of honesty.

Warns of Frauds.

"I therefore urge every Republican voter to vote tomorrow in the Republican primary. I urge them not only to vote but to go to the polls early because organized gangs of repeaters will be out in the early morning and all day long voting in the names of the careless citizens who delay or stay away.

"It is by flying squads of repeaters that organized crime pays its obligations to vicious politics. And these election criminals do not confine their operations to the 'bad lands' of the city. They will be found especially active in high class, residential territory where voters who are slow, late, or careless will be impersonated by smooth, well dressed men who will vote in their names.

"The next thing that I want to impress upon the citizens of Chicago is the fact that the criminal and underworld vote will be given solely to Thompson. There will be no loss of his strength by divisions among his followers. On the other hand, there are three candidates for the Republican nomination running against Thompson, any one of whom could be relied upon to give an honest and efficient administration of public affairs and to be free from criminal alliances, provided he could be nominated.

Tests Favor Lyle.

"This division of the respectable element by reason of a multiplicity of candidates operates solely to Thompson's favor. I have waited until the last minute in order that I might have every possible knowledge of the situation before I ventured a recommendation. I have used the full power of the local Republican organization to test Republican sentiment in every section of Chicago. It has been done by straw vote, by house to house canvass, and by every test that could be suggested and the result shows that Judge Lyle continues far in the lead among the three reputable candidates.

"Personally I have a very high opinion of the record and the purpose of Ald. Albert and I have equal respect for the record and purpose of George K. Schmidt. The fact is, however, that neither one of these candidates now has a particle of show of nomination.

"My tests indicate that Ald. Albert will poll less than 50,000 votes and that Mr. Schmidt will hardly poll one-half of that number. Under these circumstances, a vote cast for either Ald Albert or Mr. Schmidt tomorrow is in its practical effect a vote cast for the nomination of Thompson."

LEWIS HOME; HE AIDS WINDUP OF CERMAK'S DRIVE

Vote in Own Primary, Word to Democrats.

Senator Elect James Hamilton Lewis returned from a health vacation in the southwest yesterday and Chicago Democrats promptly broke out a "Lewis for President in 1932" banner to welcome him. He reciprocated immediately by boosting the nomination and election of A. J. Cermak, his party's leading mayoralty candidate.

Mr. Lewis' reception at the Park Row station in midmorning was the practical windup of the Democratic campaign. All of the party leaders met the train and a crowd of more than 1,000 persons heard the senator elect deliver an address from a truck facing Grant park.

Warns Against Party Jumping.

Last night in a radio address the senator elect made a further plea for Cermak's nomination and warned Democratic voters that they could not meddle by voting in the Republican primary without becoming "liars or traitors and being guilty of practicing deception."

He reminded his party that the courts of three states have already held that a voter cannot change his party designation after voting one way in a primary. The honor of the city, he said, demands Cermak's nomination and election.

Final Word to Voters.

The same word of instruction to the Democratic voters came from Chairman Clayton F. Smith of the county managing committee late in the day. "Do not concern yourselves in the warfare between the Republican factions," Smith said. "Show your interest in good government and stay in your own primary. Roll up a vote for A. J. Cermak which will exceed any ever given a Democratic mayoralty candidate at a primary election.

"The Democratic party is willing to accept any challenge that may come from the Republican ranks after Tuesday, and we are prepared to wage a clean, conservative and constructive campaign for the election of Mr. Cermak for mayor of Chicago against any Republican opponent.

"One result of the primary is certain," Smith stated. "That is, that a majority of the voters who are enough interested in the question to vote at the primary election will declare for a change in the city hall.

Democratic Party United.

"The pre-primary campaign ends with the Democratic party united and enthusiastically behind the candidacy of A. J. Cermak. Whatever may happen at the primary or thereafter this situation will not change. Mr. Cermak will get practically the unanimous vote, which in itself is nearly large enough to insure his election. We believe that he will also get practically the entire independent vote and a great part of the Republican vote and will be elected by a majority that will exceed any ever given a candidate for mayor of Chicago."

Mr. Cermak, Minority Leader Igoe of the state legislature, Chairman Smith, State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett, Sheriff Meyering and an almost complete turnout of ward committeemen were among those who surged toward the Lewis car when the Panama Limited of the Illinois Central steamed into Park Row station at 9:30 a. m. Mr. Cermak and National Committeeman Igoe made the welcoming addresses.

Cermak Praises Lewis.

"Mr. Senator," said Cermak, "we feel that the people of the United States are now looking around for a man to head the nation. We feel that ripe experience, proved ability and the ability to expound eloquently the doctrines which must prevail if liberty and prosperity are to be restored are no mean qualifications for the next President of the United States. We know no man, Mr. Senator, who possesses these qualifications in a greater measure than yourself."

Clad in fashionable rig, Senator Elect Lewis gravely mounted the truck and spoke into an amplifying system installed for the benefit of the crowd. He proceeded to lambaste the Thompson city hall régime.

"The hour calls for a change," he said, "the spirit of humanity demands a new order. All that is honor and faith, and all that is loyal to our city, and hope in her future, demands that those of the old order and those of the old power in control of the city be changed, and a new force of men tried in honor and proven in capacity, be placed in power under the direction of a Chicago democracy led by a great mayor in Hon. Anton Cermak.

Praise for Democratic Leader.

"Here is a man who is a representative in his ordinary life of the 3,000,000 of our citizenship. From honor to honor he has passed until he was made president of the board of governors of Cook county, each of these elevations being a reward for the competent and honorable service that Anton Cermak had given each preceding office that he received from his fellow countrymen."

THOMPSON MAKES LAST TALKS ABOUT THE CITY HALL BURRO

In noon speeches at the Apollo and Adelphi theaters Mayor Thompson yesterday discussed the possibility of being defeated at the primary today. While declaring in one breath that his vote will be larger than the combined vote of Judge John H. Lyle and Ald. Arthur Albert, in the next breath he recalled to his audiences the old saying that the pitcher that goes to the well too often is bound to be broken. At other meetings he has stated that if he is beaten he will board his yacht and leave Chicago for a long time.

In a hoarse voice that could be heard better outside the theaters than inside, Thompson, in these final speeches, repeated what he has said at every meeting during the campaign. He explained again how the burro was taken into his city hall offices and fed there and indicated that he intends to go on a junket soon for the announced purpose of speeding up the blowing of steamboat whistles from New Orleans. He again took credit for improvements that were initiated, and for which bond issues were passed, in other administrations than his own.

City Judge E. M. Mangan of Aurora Is Re-elected

Judge Edward M. Mangan of the City court of Aurora, who has often been called to sit in the Superior and Circuit courts of Chicago, was re-elected yesterday to the office he has held continuously for 24 years. He defeated J. Bruce Amell, former assistant state's attorney of Kane county, by a vote of 5,836 to 2,550.

PLANNING GROUP BACKS BONDS ON BALLOT TODAY

The Chicago Plan commission yesterday indorsed each of the public improvement bond issues to be submitted to the voters at today's election on the ground that the projects conform with the city plan and will help make a greater Chicago.

The approval of the public improvement issues by the planning group added the support of the last of the major civic organizations to the propositions of the city and the Lincoln park board.

While the plan commission indorsed all of the seven proposals of the south park board, the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency the Civic Federation, and the Chicago Association of Commerce approved only three of the seven, opposing those for the lake front work south of Jackson park, new small parks, and for the improvement of Southeastern boulevard and Yates avenue.

ALBERT, SCHMIDT CLAIM VICTORY AT POLLS TODAY

Hit City Hall Waste in Final Plea.

Optimistic statements and final thrusts at their opponents came from Ald. Arthur F. Albert and George K. Schmidt last night as they wound up their campaigns for the Republican mayoralty nomination at today's election.

Up to the last minute Albert slashed continuously at the Thompson administration, declaring in his windup speeches that the issues in the campaign are "overburdensome taxes and municipal waste, graft, and extravagance." He argued that neither Thompson nor Judge Lyle offers the hope of a cleanup in municipal affairs.

"My two opponents have witnessed the swing in sentiment toward my candidacy," he said. "The people of Chicago will issue an ultimatum tomorrow proving to the world that the mayoralty of this city is not to be sold, bartered, or exchanged and that no demagogue or political parasite can crucify the city of Chicago on a cross of gold.

Deneen Issues Statement.

"These opponents are afraid now that the people of Chicago will nominate Arthur F. Albert. I am confident they will."

Earlier in the day Senator Deneen, Albert's sponsor, telephoned from Washington a statement which consisted chiefly of an attack upon Judge Lyle and his supporters. Jacob D. Allen, campaign manager for the alderman, declared that, although he was making no "wild claims," his best judgment was that Albert would win.

Claims Large German Vote.

Schmidt, who has called himself a "nonfactional" candidate, said he was confident he would win. He charged that Thompson had ordered a "silence campaign" against him.

"I am starting off with at least 100,000 votes that would otherwise go to Thompson," Schmidt asserted. "I have the indorsement of practically every German organization."

ELECTION LAW REFERENDUM ON BALLOT TODAY

Among the propositions on the ballot today is a referendum on aldermanic elections. It is an amendment to the cities and villages act which provides candidates, who appear to be unsuccessful on the face of the returns at the February election, to contest the election in the County court.

The aldermanic candidates, if the amendment is approved, can contest the election of any candidate who appears to have been elected on the face of the returns. Any candidate also can contest, if there is to be a runoff election, the right of the candidates who appear to have received the highest and the second highest number of votes to places on the official ballot at the runoff election. The judge of the County court is given the right to determine the contests.

The amendment was adopted by the general assembly at the 1927 session. It contains a referendum clause which does not permit it to become operative until the voters approve it. It was submitted in 1928 and was defeated along with a large number of bond issue propositions.

GIRL OF 18 KILLS HER FATHER AND CALLS THE POLICE

Declares She Is Not Sorry for Deed.

An 18 year old girl, Harriet Schneider, sat in the women's quarters of the West Chicago avenue station yesterday and said she was glad she had shot and killed her father, Albert, a teamster, in the family home at 1221 Roosevelt road.

"I meant to kill him," she said. "I don't care what happens to me; I'm not sorry."

Her father left home early yesterday, she explained, returning about 10 o'clock. He had been drinking, she said, and began abusing her mother and her and declaring they were prostitutes. He told the girl to pack up his things, that he was leaving home, and she replied they were glad of it.

Gets Gun from Drawer.

"I put his things in a newspaper," she said, "and took a pistol from his drawer, which I'd seen there the night before, and put it in my sweater pocket. I was tying the bundle with string when I saw him get up from the kitchen table and make for my mother as if he'd hurt her. I walked in and shot him, then called the police," she said.

The police arrived shortly before Schneider died from a bullet wound.

"For a couple of years father has accused mother of going out with other men," Harriet said, "and she never has. He's accused me in the same way. The only thing I ever did was have a couple of boy friends come over to the house and mother and I would play cards with them."

Mother Upholds Daughter.

The girl and her mother worked making punch boards at home for a factory, where both of them previously were employed. The father had been out of work for more than six months. Another daughter, Alberta, 21, is a typist in an office, and a boy, Albert, 16, is a mechanic apprentice.

The mother and sister called on Harriet at the police station and the mother was questioned.

"Of course I'm not sorry," she replied. "Why should I be? Except for the girl, of course."

"Why didn't you leave him?" she was asked.

"He left me a year ago, but I took him back on account of the boy," she replied.

WIFE WILL HELP FOSTER COMBAT ROBBERY CHARGE

Frank Foster, who was indicted as an accessory to the murder of Alfred Lingle, will have his wife in Judge Frank M. Padden's Felony court Thursday to deny the accusation that he was the man who, with a woman companion, held up and robbed John Wesley Gray and his wife of $7,600 worth of jewels early last Thursday morning. Attorney Harold Levy, who represents Foster, said that he would produce the wife.

The police intimated that Mrs. Foster is the "brunette woman" referred to as Foster's companion at the time of the robbery. Gray, however, admitted out of court yesterday that he is not even positive that Foster is the man who robbed him. He said that he "resembles the man." Gray is the owner of the Ravenswood hotel, 4450 North Ashland avenue. Foster was held in police custody on general principles the day and evening before the robbery occurred.

HAWKS IS NAMED AMERICA'S 1930 LEADING FLYER

Boston, Mass., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Capt. Frank M. Hawks, holder of two American transcontinental speed records, was notified today he had been selected by the Ligue Internationale des Aviators in Paris as America's outstanding aviator for 1930. The message said Dieudonne Coste, French pilot, who flew from Paris to New York with Maurice Bellonte, had received the "ace of all aces" award. Capt. Hawks, who established his eighteenth intercity speed record today, when he flew to Boston from Washington in 2 hours and 20 minutes, an average of 189 miles an hour for the 440 mile flight, was informed of the Paris awards in a message from Col. C. W. Harwood and Capt. Harry A. Bruno, vice presidents of the American section of the Ligue.

Chester Levere, who was 61 years old on Sunday, started skipping rope yesterday at his apartment in the Grandeur hotel at 1055 Granville avenue. At the end of 3 hours 15 minutes and 30 seconds it was announced by Mr. Levere and by several witnesses that he had set a world's record with 18,500 skips. During the contest with himself—he had already established a record of 17,000 skips when he was 60—Mr. Levere lost seven of his 148 pounds.

ALCOCK AGAIN URGED TO OUST 7 POLICEMEN

Prosecutor Hints Jurors May Act on Charges.

Another letter was sent to Acting Police Commissioner Alcock by Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller yesterday urging the suspension of seven policemen of the Englewood station accused of accepting graft. It was the third letter of a series, Alcock having refused previously.

Mr. Mueller's letter was accompanied by transcripts of the testimony of witnesses who declared before the special grand jury investigating alleged graft that they had given money to the policemen to pay for protection for speakeasies and gambling joints. The names of the witnesses also were given to the commissioner.

Cites Refusal to Testify.

"I said specifically in the letter that these policemen refused to sign immunity waivers and defend themselves before the grand jury and their refusal was on the sole ground they might incriminate themselves," Prosecutor Mueller declared. "No policeman who was innocent of wrong doing would so act."

The prosecutor's letter said that if Alcock did not believe the evidence of graft was sufficient to justify the suspension of the policemen, he desired the commissioner to tell him what grounds were necessary to bring about a civil service trial for the accused men.

The grand jurors had not expected Alcock to refuse to suspend the policemen or they might have voted an indictment, Mueller asserted. The jury had intended to give the policemen an opportunity to gain immunity by testifying against "higher ups," but now their course of action may be different, he said.

Commended At Inquest.

Prosecutor Mueller and Sergts. Michael J. Ahern and James Zegar of his staff were commended yesterday by the coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Joseph Muscato, who was killed on Saturday by Attilio Scalditti, intended victim of an extortion plot. A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned and Scalditti was commended for his action.

Scalditti had complained to Mueller that Muscato and two others were seeking to extort $2,500 from him by a threat to kill him. Mueller assigned Ahern and Zegar to trap the extortionists. When Muscato tried to escape after being taken into custody by the policemen, Scalditti shot him. Dominick De Palma and Albert Woodrick, arrested with Muscato, were at the inquest. Woodrick confessed the plot, but De Palma denied it and refused to take the witness stand.

Evanston Woman Found Dead; Gas Is Blamed

Mrs. Katherine Marsh, 32 years old, was found dead last evening in the kitchen of her home at 1504 Dempster street, Evanston. Gas flowing from the burners of the cooking stove apparently had caused her death. Members of the Evanston fire department, summoned by her husband, J. Irving Marsh, advertising salesman, worked for more than an hour in an effort to revive her. Mr. Marsh said he believed his wife's death was accidental.

3 RACE HORSES BRING ARREST OF FUGITIVE BANKER

Frank Flower Is Seized on Coast.

Frank Flower, vice president of the Roosevelt Bankers State bank, who has been a fugitive since he was indicted last fall with two of his brothers, also officials of the bank, and one other official, was caught yesterday in San Diego, Cal. Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers was notified to this effect by Chief of Police A. R. Hill of San Diego.

State's attorney's detectives, armed with extradition papers, were started after Flower at once because the prosecutor is anxious to place the officials of the defunct bank on trial as soon as possible.

Flower's race horses—he owns three—were the cause of his arrest, the prosecutor revealed. The horses are now at the track at Agua Caliente, Mexico, and cities in that vicinity were asked to keep a watchful eye for the fugitive.

The liabilities of the bank, which failed soon after its merger with another institution, are estimated at $1,250,000. The assets, the prosecutor said, are comparatively worthless. The savings accounts alone were $999,000. The bank was closed last June and since that time 21,000 depositors have been clamoring for some action.

Flower, his two brothers, Samuel and Alexander, the former president and the latter chairman of the board, and Louis W. Frank, cashier, are under indictment under a special embezzlement statute applying to banks, it was announced. They are liable if found guilty to a penitentiary sentence of 1 to 3 years, and a fine twice the amount of the embezzlement specified in the particular indictment. The amount named is $300,000.

SAYS MILLIONS ARE JUGGLED BY U. OF IOWA HEADS

Editor on Stand as Quiz by Legislature Opens.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Investigation of 21 charges against President Walter A. Jessup's administration of the University of Iowa was begun today before a joint legislative committee which was appointed at the request of Gov. Dan W. Turner.

These charges, which range all the way from alleged juggling with millions of state funds to the direct accusation that President Jessup was responsible for the slush fund athletic scandal of 1929, were given to the committee by Verne Marshall, managing editor of the Cedar Rapids Gazette, who has spent months of work and much money in an effort to uncover conditions at the Iowa City institution. He was the first witness called.

3 Lawyers for Defense.

The hearing became at once the big show under the golden dome of the state capitol and legislators and public filled the committee rooms all day. President Jessup, members of his cabinet, and members of the state board of education filled one corner of the room and listened intently to the vigorous denunciation by Marshall. There were three lawyers ready to defend them, but the committee showed clearly in the first session that they would not be stopped by legal technicalities from getting all the facts.

GOV. DAN W. TURNER. [A. P. Photo.]

It is a one sided story so far. The university authorities have not been heard. The committee, with auditors and detectives, is to take up the investigation where Mr. Marshall left off. There has been nothing shown yet of personal financial crookedness and friends of the university declare that everything will be explained satisfactorily.

Large Sums on Deposit.

The first four counts in this unofficial indictment deal with finances. It is charged that President Jessup, W. R. Boyd, chairman of the finance committee of the state board of education, and W. J. McChesney, treasurer of the university, "have connived with the bank of which Mr. McChesney is president, illegally to prefer and favor that bank and permit it to have large sums of money on deposit for long periods of time without paying interest thereon as required by the laws of Iowa."

Going more into detail here, it is declared that these three men connived to keep an average balance of state funds, "donated by the Rockefeller foundation and the general education board, in the hands of said treasurer for approximately five years, without requiring the usual 2½ per cent interest as provided by law."

The bank of which Mr. McChesney is president, the First National bank of Iowa City, it is charged, "has failed to account for the sum of $28,762, being the interest on said average balance."

These Charges Are Listed.

The board of education, it is said, acquiesced in this and has since given "two violently opposed" explanations for its act.

Other charges are:

That the administration has permitted publicly owned materials and other property of the university to be used by executives and employes in the construction of privately owned buildings.

That President Jessup, Finance Chairman Boyd and Charles M. Dutcher, attorney for the university, "and likewise the university's active political lobbyist," have built up a political machine by which they have been able to effect appointments to the board of education.

That "this political machine, or lobby," has prevented legislation putting university finances under the state auditor, and that the auditor of the university W. H. Cobb has permitted funds to be used for wrongful purposes.

That supplies have been purchased at wasteful cost.

Blamed for Athletic Scandal.

It is charged that President Jessup, "by his arbitrary, dogmatic, stubborn, and cavilike attitude, has driven away several of the foremost members of the faculty, particularly in medicine, and thereby bequests were lost to the university."

On the athletic situation, which resulted in 1929 in the banishment of the university from the Big Ten conference, the blame is placed entirely on the shoulders of the president in the testimony of Marshall.

"I learned from those on the inside," Marshall said, "that Iowa was not much worse in violations than any one of four or five other members, except that officials of Iowa were in on the violations. Almost to the time of the suspension, one or two other universities that I will not name were scheduled to be made examples, but when it was discovered that executives of Iowa had ordered violations of the rules which they had helped to make the faculty committee of the Big Ten decided to punish them.

Letter from Cobb.

"I found a letter which W. H. Cobb wrote to Willis Mercer in Iowa City, asking him to pay the tuition of athletes, as the alumni had quit sending money to support the athletes, as they were delinquent. They would not pay because Mr. Jessup would not work with the men who were putting up the money. Jessup had been quoted as saying that Iowa had been kicked out of the conference because the alumni had interfered.

"I wish to put it on record that I did not get any material from Paul E. Belting, former athletic director, who was sacrificed, given the double cross by Jessup. After I had prepared a story on the situation from another source I called in Belting and prevailed upon him to read it. He told me then that Jessup had told him he would have to get money for the athletes. He had only one fund, the gate receipts fund, and he told Jessup it would make trouble if it was discovered that money was used to pay athletes. He was told to get the money and finally sent a voucher for $1,500. The next thing that happened to him was the president calling for his resignation.

Puts Auditor on Books.

Mr. Marshall said he thought something was wrong at the university and hired an auditor last fall to go into the books. He was given free access at first, but later barred from the books. He said the auditor found a resolution of the board, dated April 9, 1929, waiving $28,762 in interest which would have been due from the First National bank of Iowa City.

Mr. Marshall had a meeting with the finance board to get an explanation of this and was told, he said, that Mr. McChesney had been able to invest this money in government securities, saving brokerage, and deposit fees, and had made in all, a profit of $161,000 for the university. He accepted this explanation at first, but he later went to Chicago and found out at the federal reserve bank that there were no brokerage deposit fees to be saved in such a transaction and that the university had taken a loss of $18,000 in the sale of the notes.

Another explanation, made last October, Mr. Marshall said, was to the effect that the First National bank could not accept the deposit of the $2,250,000 Rockefeller gift fund, and they had decided to invest in government securities, keeping a daily balance of $225,000 in the bank on the agreement that no interest was to be paid.

Senate Passes Muscle Shoals Measure, Possible Veto By President Is Only Bar

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The senate today joined the house in accepting the Muscle Shoals conference report, with its provisions putting the United States in the power business. The veto power of President Hoover, therefore, is the only remaining obstacle to the measure's becoming law.

The senate vote of adoption was 55 to 28. On the showing of today's ballot, a presidential veto would be sustained in the senate and the measure would not have to go to the house, where the administration is assured of support.

20 Republicans for It.

Twenty Republican senators voted in favor of the measure. Eleven of this number were members of the radical bloc with whom power is a chief issue. They were joined by members of the independent group, whose allegiance to the administration is an uncertain quantity, and by senators, like McNary and Steiwer of Oregon, and Jones of Washington, from states where public ownership of power is a popular party plank.

As happened in the house, the Democrats balloted almost solidly in favor of the report's approval, thirty-five voting "yea," and only two—Senators King of Utah and Tydings of Maryland—voting in the negative.

Report Is Reconsidered.

The measure all but went through without a record vote. Senator McNary, chairman of the senate conferees, asked that the conference report be taken up by unanimous consent. The senate agreed. No speaker rose to take advantage of the pause which followed and the chair announced that without objection, the report would be considered as adopted.

It was not until many minutes later that Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], appeared on the floor, asking that the vote be reconsidered, a period allowed for debate, and that the final vote be a roll call.

After considerable discussion, one hour of debate was decided upon.

"The people of my state are opposed to the federal government doing more than selling or leasing Muscle Shoals," Senator Bingham began his argument against the measure.

"All my life I have been taught that American prosperity was due to the privilege of individual initiative to go as far as it could within the law. I know that the railroads used to say, 'To hell with the public.' The express companies showed the public scant courtesy because they could afford to, since they held a monopoly. And the public utilities have not always acted in the public interest. Therefore I am for regulation."

But, he declared, the principle of government regulation has resulted in the creation of a multiplicity of boards and commissions in which were combined the three powers—executive, legislative, and judicial—that the nation's founders took such care to place in separate compartments.

Predicts New Bureaus.

Government ownership and operation carried this process of destroying fundamental principles of American government still farther, he asserted. It meant, he said, new bureaus, additional thousands of government clerks, more mammoth buildings to house them.

"History shows that government operation leads straight to tyranny and despotism," he declared. "When you take individual initiative from the hands of the citizen and put it into the hands of the bureaucrats in Washington, you put it into hands that cannot be reached except by impeachment."

Try, he suggested, to get service or information from a government bureau. You receive "superabundant courtesy"—if you are a senator. But let a senator try, without disclosing his rank, and he got the scant courtesy accorded the average citizen.

Points to Human Nature.

"I don't find fault with human nature," said Senator Bingham, "but I do claim that human nature should be taken into account in making laws."

The government in business, he said, was not "progressive," but, on the contrary, was a reversion to a medieval system which civilization had struggled to cast off when the government owned and operated or regulated all business.

He was answered by Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.]. Senator Johnson congratulated Senator George W. Norris, insurgent Republican, of Nebraska, who for a decade has led the fight for government operation of Muscle Shoals and whose original Muscle Shoals resolution is incorporated in the present measure, with only one proviso relating to a lease of the nitrate plants.

"Amazed" at Bingham.

If the President vetoed the measure, said Senator Johnson, it would be evidence of the influence of the "power trust." He "was amazed," he said, by Senator Bingham's defense of private business. Who came to congress oftener than big business, seeking aid in its effort to make a bigger profit? he asked.

"It is more than a triumph for Senator Norris," he declared. "The people have triumphed."

Further applause for government operation and Senator Norris' victory came from Senator C. C. Dill [Dem., Wash.].

"Should the President veto this measure," he said, "let me remind the senate that the coming congress will contain even more supporters of government operation of Muscle Shoals than this congress does. It will probably contain the two-thirds majority necessary to pass the measure over a veto.

HOOVER COUNTS NEEDY VETERANS TO JUSTIFY VETO

His Survey Said to Show Comparatively Few.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The fact that President Hoover has instituted an investigation into the possible relief effects of the bonus bill was disclosed today with the announced preliminary conclusion that comparatively few veterans were in distress and that the loans contemplated in the bill would be of little real aid to them.

The President's inquiry is to be concluded by Wednesday, when he is expected to veto the bill. The results of the survey will be incorporated in the President's message accompanying the veto.

The emphasis put by the survey upon ascertaining the amount of distress and how the bill will meet it, led to speculation at the capitol as to the possibility of the introduction of a substitute bonus measure when the presidential veto is sent to congress. If any such substitute should be offered, it would take the form of a pure relief bill designed to aid only those actually in need.

Tilson Might Favor Bill.

The President and Representative John Q. Tilson, Republican floor leader of the house, have indicated that they might favor such a proposal, which also was urged by Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company.

Although the last minute appearance of such a bill might lead some congressmen to accept it as an alternative to overriding Mr. Hoover's veto, the momentum behind the present bill appeared to militate against such a plan.

The White House inquiry shows that the average maximum borrowing capacity on veterans' certificates will be under $500 under the bonus bill. The President has been informed that there are 200,000 veterans who have certificates representing values of less than $250 and those men would have a borrowing capacity of $16,000,000, or an average of $80.

Entitled to $77,500,000.

The next group of 500,000, whose certificates are valued between $250 and $500, would be entitled to borrow $77,500,000, or an average of $137.

Those in need presumably have already borrowed up to the hitherto available 22½ per cent of the value of their certificates. This would naturally reduce the amount which they now could borrow.

Figures received by the President on city survey show that in one unnamed city with 20,000 veterans in its population only 159 are known to be in distress. Another city with 140,000 veterans reported only 1,700 in need. The figures in each case were furnished by local agencies engaged in relief work.

Hoover Vetoes Bill Urged for Spanish War Veterans

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—President Hoover today vetoed a bill designed to allow persons who worked for the quartermaster corps during the Spanish war, Philippine insurrection, and the China relief expedition the benefits of hospitalization and soldiers' homes.

TINKHAM ASKS LAW TO CURB CHURCH LOBBIES

Would Put Them Off Capitol Hill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—A bill designed to banish the two Methodist church lobbies headed by Bishop James Cannon Jr. and Dr. Clarence True Wilson from Capitol hill was introduced in the house today by Representative George H. Tinkham [Rep., Mass.].

REP. TINKHAM. [A. P. Photo.]

The bill would declare any sectarian lobby located within a half mile of the capitol a public nuisance. Representative Tinkham declared that it was prompted by, and aimed at, the activities of Bishop Cannon's commission on prohibition and social service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals, of which Dr. Wilson is general secretary. The two maintain headquarters in separate buildings across the street from the capitol grounds.

"Constantly Interfering."

Representative Tinkham declared that an extensive investigation by the senate lobby investigating committee had disclosed that these organizations were "constantly interfering, not only with legislative but also with executive and judicial action."

"Their interference with executive action," he declared, "is shown by their control of the present administration of the department of justice, which so far has refused to indict the board of temperance, prohibition and public modals and Bishop James Cannon Jr. for gross violations of the federal corrupt practices act after evidence of such violations, taken under oath before a committee of the senate, has been officially placed before it. The present administration of the department of justice, obviously because it has been the beneficiary of their political activities in the past, and wishes to insure their political support in the future, contumaciously refuses to enforce the law in their regard."

Violate U. S. Tradition.

Mr. Tinkham asserted that his bill "aimed to correct at least a part of the evil resulting from an offensive violation of the spirit of the separation of church and state and the tradition that the government shall be free of sectarian control, by excluding these boards and any like establishments of ecclesiastical organizations from the occupation of premises in such close proximity to the capitol building that they may be prevented, to that extent, at least, from exercising legislative direction and control."

Mother Kills Daughter, 14, with Ax and Ends Own Life

MONCTON, N. B., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Robert Sprague, 45, and her daughter, Edwina, 14, were found dead today in the Sprague home. The girl had been killed with an ax, the mother, officials said, self-slain with a butcher knife. The medical examiner said the mother evidently had done the killing after having become suddenly insane.

BAD STOMACH MADE LIKE NEW SLEEPS WELL NOW

"What a difference in my health! ACIDINE has made my stomach like new. I have no pains in my limbs. My bowels are regular. Now I sleep all night," says Asa B. Hoy of Indianapolis, Ind.

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription, ACIDINE, succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. COL. C. J. KRAFT GOES ON TRIAL AS EMBEZZLER

COL. C. J. KRAFT. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Col. Charles J. Kraft, who caused a scandal in the Illinois National Guard while he was commanding the 202d coast artillery, went on trial before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley yesterday charged with embezzling upwards of $100,000 in federal funds.

"This defendant put through vouchers totaling $140,000 for battery mechanics' pay over a period of six years, and of this amount the government will show that from one-half to two-thirds was embezzled," said Prosecutor James C. Leaton in his opening statement to the jury.

"At least 500 of these vouchers were false, for the men on the pay rolls worked from one to five and a half days each putting up and taking down circus seats so that Kraft could rent out the Broadway armory, charging $35 to $187.50 a night for the labor and appropriating the money for himself."

Charge by Prosecution.

Mr. Leaton charged that Kraft embezzled in excess of $15,000 in charges for labor at the armory. The money should have been turned over to the regimental fund or used to pay for labor, but Kraft made battery mechanics on federal pay do his private work, the prosecutor said.

Attorney Philip A. Gibbons of the defense counsel sketched Kraft's military career from his enlistment as a marine at the age of 18, through the Boxer rebellion and the world war, and charged that the embezzlement charges were actuated by personal animus.

Three government witnesses, D. Philip Jones, Jack Kastrow, and Wesley Newberg, enlisted men whose names were carried on the pay rolls as battery mechanics, receiving $130 a month, testified that they did no work, drew no pay and that their names were forged. They were not cross-examined.

Testifies on Pay Roll.

Capt. Harland Gaffey testified that he certified the pay roll for his battery with the amounts after the names left blank. James Gauthier testified that he received $125 a month as a battery mechanic while working four or five days each week for Kraft, arranging circus seats, and it was shown by documentary evidence that he was carried on the pay roll as receiving $150 a month.

Henry Wood, another mechanic, testified that Kraft asked him to tell the United States army inspector that he was getting $150 a month instead of $125, and that he was doing government work instead of moving seats. He made no promise, he said.

Mr. Leaton, in his opening statement, did not go into the subject of funds received from renting the armory, for this is a state matter. The federal investigators have charged that Kraft swindled the state of as much as the government lost, but no action was taken by the state authorities. A board of inquiry appointed to investigate Kraft's "moral fitness" permitted him to resign with his rank, and Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commander of the militia, called no court martial.

Reports that high officials of the guard exerted pressure on Investigator Arthur R. Johnson's superiors in the army quartermaster corps to have him removed from the inquiry led to a war department investigation, and Johnston was reinstated after having been assigned to clerical duties.

MARCHAND TO BE NAMED IN LILA'S TRIAL

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 23.—(AP)—As far as Nancy Bowen, aged Indian woman who killed Mrs. Clotidie Marchand a year ago is concerned, Lila Jimerson, now on trail a second time for the murder, was the only one who wanted Mrs. Marchand out of the way. On the stand today Nancy declared Lila had told her she and all her relatives would die if Mrs. Marchand were not killed.

In their outline of the case they will present to the jury, defense counsel stated they would prove that Henri Marchand, artist husband of the murdered woman, was tired of his wife and had so stated.

At Lila's previous trail, Marchand admitted intimate relationship with Lila, who was known at one time as the "Red Lilac" of the Cayuga indians. These relations, he testified, were a matter of "professional necessity."

DEFY LONDON'S COPS TO HONOR G. WASHINGTON

25 Yanks Celebrate in Center of City.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Twenty-five American university students held a belated observance of Washington's birthday in Trafalgar square this afternoon. Late last night they met, condemned the failure to observe the occasion in England, and formed the George Washington Society of American Students in London. A collection was taken up to rectify the neglect.

Early this morning they approached the caretaker of the National gallery and asked permission to lay a wreath at the statue of Washington standing in the fenced in grounds. The small statue is a short distance from the equestrian figure of George III. which overlooks the square, and is the only monument to the American liberator in all London.

But the caretaker was reluctant to grant the request because he has been working for 20 years to cultivate his prized grass plot, and did not want it trampled down. Undaunted the students departed and bought a wreath and returned determined to scale the iron palings if necessary to carry out the ceremony despite the police stationed at the busy corner.

The bobbies twice broke up the gathering while three of the leaders pleaded to be allowed to walk in and lay the wreath. The caretaker finally gave in and the ceremony was performed, while a knot of students stood with uncovered heads at the curb.

RUSSIA'S ARMY CELEBRATES ITS 13TH BIRTHDAY

MOSCOW, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Red army today celebrated its thirteenth anniversary with parades, speeches and other enthusiastic evidences that it was ready to defend Russia against any invasion.

The commissar of war, Voroshilof, issued an order of the day bidding the army be on its mettle because, he said, the country was being continually threatened by "capitalistic war." Russia stands for peace, he said, but this did not mean that the country would permit any invasion of its rights.

"Our policy," he said, "is and will be peace. We will adopt all measures to preserve peace for our workers and peasants. We do not want to annex the territory of other countries, but we will not permit another country under any conditions to trespass our frontiers."

Girls Are Carried Down Ladders to Safety.

Two men were seriously burned and cut by flying glass and two girls, trapped in an upper room, were carried down ladders to safety yesterday when fire broke out after an explosion in the photographic studios of William L. Koehne, in the basement of a three story building at 1008 North Dearborn street. Two firemen were overcome by smoke as the flames swept through the structure and caused damage estimated at $25,000 to the building and equipment. The building is occupied entirely by studios and art schools.

Studio Employés Hurt.

The two men injured were Carl Finzel, 1224 North Dearborn street, and Charles Poltera, 846 Ainslie street. Both are employés of the Koehne studio and were preparing to go to lunch at the time of the explosion. They were taken to the Henrotin hospital. The firemen overcome were Lieut. Anthony Pils and Fireman Edward Meyers, both of hook and ladder company No. 3. Both were revived soon.

Miss Elizabeth Johnson of Chicago Heights, an employé of the National Arts school on the second floor, was trapped as she returned for some books and was rescued by Ted Lockett, a truck driver, who scaled the stone wall of the building. Miss Louise Slobes, an artist, living with her father and mother, also artists, in a combination studio on the third floor, was rescued by firemen.

Blast Rocks Building.

Poltera said he and Finzel were cleaning up their equipment in the basement workroom and preparing to go to lunch when they smelled smoke. They opened a door into a side room where films are stored and were met by clouds of thick smoke. Seizing fire extinguishers they fought the blaze, but were driven out by an explosion that shook the building. The blast apparently was caused by flashlight powder.

A crowd soon gathered as the flames began shooting out of windows throughout the building and helped in giving first aid to studio employés, most of them girls, who became hysterical after they had escaped.

JURY COMMENDS KILLING OF 3 IN BREAK AT JOLIET

Identity of Guards Not Disclosed.

The three guards at the Joliet penitentiary, who early Sunday shot and killed three escaping convicts, were commended yesterday by a coroner's jury, which returned a verdict of "death while attempting to escape." The identity of the guards was not disclosed because of the fear that friends of the dead convicts might attempt revenge.

Col. Frank Whipp, superintendent of prisons, who was acting as warden of the penitentiary at the time because of the illness of Warden Henry Hill, was the chief witness at the inquest. He testified that all is quiet again at the penitentiary and that no more attempted escapes are looked for in the near future as a result of the deaths of the three convicts, Alvin J. Kilmon, Joseph Norkiewicz and Julio Chileno, all of Chicago.

Two Convicts Are Witnesses.

Frank Lambert, the guard in charge of the prisoners who attempted to escape, told of how they had locked him in an ice box along with two other convicts on the kitchen detail, who had refused to join the plot. John Kado and James Pen, the two convicts, who were locked up with the guard, were also witnesses.

Dr. E. A. Kingston, coroner, said that he would not ask the guards, who were in ambush waiting for the convicts, to testify at the hearing. He requested that they not even be named.

May Question Widow.

The authorities said they wished to question Kilmon's widow because a hotel clerk identified a photograph of her as resembling that of a woman who sought lodging in the Woodruff hotel at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. The woman had no baggage and said she had no money.

Warden Hill, who is a patient at the Michael Reese hospital here, could not be interviewed yesterday regarding the rumors from Joliet that unrest exists among the prison inmates. Dr. Lester Frankelthal, who is attending the warden, said that he is recovering rapidly and should leave for home within a few days.

15 Convicts Elude Pursuit.

Florence, Ariz., Feb. 23.— (AP) — Riding in four stolen automobiles, the main body of 15 prisoners, including seven killers, who escaped from the Arizona penitentiary in a sensational delivery yesterday, were believed today by prison officials to have successfully eluded searchers.

None of the men had been apprehended this afternoon.

WOMAN PLUNGES TO HER DEATH IN LOOP CROWD

Another Kills Self by Leap at Hotel.

Narrowly missing a group of loop pedestrians, an unidentified woman about 40 years old plunged to her death last night from the nineteenth floor of the Capitol building, landing on the sidewalk a few feet from the main entrance at 159 North State street. Her screams, continuing almost to the second of impact, attracted the attention of scores of men and women who witnessed her fall.

Earlier in the day another woman killed herself in a leap from the Morrison hotel. She was Miss Mary Louise Hanley, 27 years old, 2907 Eastwood avenue, operator of a beauty shop at 4734 North Kedzie avenue. She fell from the thirteenth floor. As detectives investigated the death of Miss Hanley Miss Elizabeth Meyers, also 27, of 201 East Delaware place, despondent when spurned by a former suitor, slashed her wrists on the mezzanine floor of the hotel.

Women Become Hysterical.

Only the merest chance averted additional tragedy in the leap of the unidentified woman. State street was crowded with theatergoers and window shoppers. Among the pedestrians were Miss Paula Tavernier, 6621 North Rockwell street and Miss Martha Ficht, 2424 North Washtenaw avenue, on their way to the Chicago theater. Behind them was Miss Harriet Sharp, manager of the Keg and Kettle restaurant, 163 North State street.

As they were walking along they heard a cry. They paused for the fraction of a moment. The next instant the woman crashed, striking less than two feet from Miss Tavernier and Miss Ficht. They became hysterical and were taken by Miss Sharp to a drug store where they fainted.

Find Gloves and Belt.

Search of the building by police and Coroner Herman N. Bundesen disclosed that the woman had jumped from a lodge hall on the nineteenth floor. Two chairs had been pulled together at an open window. On the chairs police found a pair of gloves and a brown belt, matching her coat.

According to R. E. Martin, superintendent of the building, a woman's shoe fell from the building about eight minutes before the body. The woman was poorly dressed, police said, and might have worked in a loop building. Police hope to identify her through a missing toe.

The Leap at Hotel.

Miss Hanley registered at the Morrison at 9:50 a. m. A short time later her body hurtled to the court. Dr. L. G. Reese, house physician, who heard her fall, hurried to her side. No one witnessed the plunge. The body remained unidentified until afternoon. A note indicated suicidal intent.

"Mother, dear, try and forgive me," it read. "I am happy now. I am sorry, Buddy, that it was the thirteenth. It just happened. Will it be lucky again?"

In her pocketbook police found the phone number of her aunt, Mrs. Agnes Murre, 2907 Eastwood avenue, with whom she lived. A brother, John Hanley, an engineer, identified the body and declared himself to be the "Buddy" mentioned in her note. He said his sister had been in poor health for several years and was also despondent over the recent marriage of a former sweetheart in New York.

Woman Slashes Wrists.

Miss Meyers, also known as Miss Betty La Rue, cut her wrists as she talked with Winford C. Brown, an investment broker. Brown told the police the suicide attempt followed his refusal to pay her $5,000 which she demanded on threat of telling of their former relations to his bride of three days.

Brown, who has been twice divorced, said he met Miss Meyers in 1929. He told of paying $200 a month rental on her apartment and purchasing her an expensive automobile. Four weeks ago they quarreled, he said. Saturday he married Miss Dorothy Brackweldt, a stenographer. Brown and his bride live at the Fort Dearborn hotel. Miss Meyers was taken to the county hospital, but fled after receiving treatment. She had not been located last night.

LET PEOPLE VOTE ON PROHIBITION, DILL DECLARES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Resubmission of national prohibition to the people for a test was advanced today by Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, a Democratic prohibitionist, as a compromise in the perplexing wet and dry dispute facing the party.

However, Dill joined with the almost solid front of Democrats in congress against the reported intention of Chairman Raskob to seek a commitment of the party on prohibition at the March 5 meeting of the Democratic national committee.

Dill first spoke of the national referendum in a New York speech Saturday night. Democrat of the anti-prohibition faction asked him about it today, looking upon it as a compromise solution.

"I stated," said Dill, "that it will be entirely consistent with the principles of democracy to resubmit the question of prohibition to the people in accordance with the terms of the constitution."

Dill said there were two days of resubmission, first, a constitutional convention; second, the submission to the states by congress of a resolution for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Hart Mountain Gold Find Results in Near Stampede

Cody, Wyo., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The return of a prospector from Hart mountain with a quantity of gold and mercury has resulted in scores of placer mining claims being staked near the mountain, ten miles north of here. Those joining in the stampede also have returned with gold, but have not determined if their finds are of commercial value.

PROMISES MORE OF WICKERSHAM REPORT DATA

Chairman Is Criticized for Revealing Any.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Transmission to the senate of additional data upon which the Wickersham law enforcement commission based its prohibition report was promised today from within the commission.

Simultaneously there came criticism of Chairman Wickersham by one member of the commission for having submitted any of the testimony without the approval of the full commission.

In answer to a resolution a confusing mass of material was sent the senate late last week, including prohibition surveys of thirty-two states. Less than twenty-four hours after its arrival, however, a second resolution was adopted asking for data on the remaining sixteen states and demanding the reason why this had been withheld.

Promises Its Transmission.

One member of the commission, who asked his name be withheld, said today surveys had not been made of all the forty-eight states. He estimated at least six states had been omitted, but asserted data on the remaining ten would be transmitted as promptly as possible.

Included in this latter number are several states in which anti-prohibition sentiment is strong—such as New York and Illinois. The survey of the latter state includes material upon gangster activities in Chicago considered so revealing that the investigator signed an assumed name. He spent some time in the underworld there.

Another member of the commission said this date had been withheld merely by an oversight. He explained that between fifteen and fifty copies of the first thirty-two state reports had been made available to the commission by Dr. James M. Doran, former prohibition commissioner. Only single copies existed of the other state reports, he said, and these were in the hands of individual members.

Fellow Member Is Critic.

Criticism of Chairman Wickersham by his colleague was made upon the ground that he had submitted the data requested despite the objections of the few commissioners then in Washington.

Although the senate had asked only for "nonsecret" data, it was held today that this testimony conveys "only a half truth" and will not disclose the real evidence upon which the commission based its report.

One member asserted further that the entire selection of what material was sent and what withheld had been made by the commission chairman. He contended the testimony of Prohibition Director Woodcock, given while an investigator for the commission, should have been withheld as secret. In it Woodcock advanced "home option" as a possible solution for the prohibition problem.

Heflin Would Bar Church Pennant Above U. S. Flag

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A resolution was introduced today by Senator Heflin [Dem., Ala.] requesting the secretary of the navy to refrain from permitting the pennant indicating that religious services are being held on board ship from being placed above the American flag. Under the resolution, the pennant would be raised on a separate staff in some other part of the ship. The resolution states that the United States flag is "the emblem of both civil and religious liberty and as such is entitled to the first position."

WHOLESALE GROCERY FIRM, 39 PERSONS ON TRIAL IN RUM CASE

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 23.—(AP)—What federal dry agents alleged was the largest conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws in central Illinois today came before Judge Louis Fitzhenry in federal district court.

The Hubinger company, Keokuk, Ia., wholesale grocers, and 39 Springfield and central Illinois persons are defendants in a case on which government prosecutors have been working for more than a year.

At the opening of the trial counsel for the Keokuk firm, distributors of corn sugar, filed motions asking for a separate trial and demanded that the government list persons with whom the concern is alleged to have conspired. Hearing of evidence is expected to take a week.

The group, which includes, besides a number of Springfield men Jasper Blanda of Rockford, Biaggio Callebrusco of Langleyville, and Henry E. Holland of Taylorville, was indicted in January, 1930. Nine of the defendants never have been apprehended.

DRY NAVY SEIZES RUM BOAT AFTER 2 RUNNING FIGHTS

But No Liquor Found Aboard It.

New London, Conn., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Coast guard boats which today scurried through Narragansett bay and outside waters in running fights with two rum boats and on two salvage missions tonight reported the capture of the speed boat Monolola, but found no liquor aboard her.

The Monolola eluded capture on an earlier chase in which it was shelled by two patrol boats, but one of these persisted and later captured it.

Will File Charges.

Commander M. J. Ryan, chief of staff of the coast guard destroyer force, said the navigation papers had been taken from the Monolola, whose home port was not available, and turned over to coast guard authorities at Woods Hole, Mass., Although no liquor was found, charges of failure to halt upon coast guard command will be preferred against the boat, he said.

The Accuracy, British liquor supply vessel, was fired on today, but was not sighted inside the 12 mile limit, Commander Ryan said, and no charges will be brought against her.

Coast guard activities also resulted in the destruction of the Alibi II., a speed boat, seven miles west of the Vineyard sound light vessel. The Alibi, which had been forfeited to the government but later released on bonds pending an appeal, burst into flames while being pursued by the CG-235. Its crew of four was rescued.

Aid Liquor Boat in Distress.

The coast guard destroyer Cummings arrived here early today from rum row in the Atlantic ocean with injured master of the speed boat Euskalduno and the speed boat's crew of three men. The injured man, John Petersen, suffered a fractured thigh when he was crushed between the hulls of his craft and the Nova Scotian liquor supply vessel Nova V. Both craft were beyond the 12 mile when sighted by the Cummings.

Coast guard boats escorted the liquor supply vessel Algie of Shelburne, N. S., to this port from Montauk Point, L. I. The British vessel, with a liquor cargo valued at $140,000, went aground last week on the rocks and was taken off last night by a salvage company's derrick.

Uses Reform Fight as Revival Ad.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The city of Miami has gone puritanical again after two months of controlled gambling. In a series of police raids in the last week $200,000 worth of gambling layouts have been seized and burned. Every club is dark and the free and easy spenders on whom the city relies for its prosperity have gone to more hopeful quarters at Hollywood Beach and Palm Beach, where chips still can be purchased. They are returning, some of them, for the Walker-Risko bout tomorrow night, but they aren't expected to stay long.

The lid went down on Miami all because the Rev. Walt Holcomb, pastor of a Miami Methodist church, wanted some startling ballyhoo material to advertise a two week revival meeting which opened tonight. Mr. Holcomb's opportunity came last Monday, when a delegation of women of his church came to him. Some promoter, they explained, had advertised a locomotive collision spectacle for the following Sunday.

They Fear for Sabbath.

The women thought this was a desecration of the Sabbath. Would Mr. Holcomb go with them before the city commissioners and lead a protest? Mr. Holcomb would and did.

He appeared before the startled commissioners and harangued them so violently that they agreed readily to have the date of the stunt railway engine wreck set for another day. Then the pastor reprimanded the commission for allowing the gambling establishments to operate. The pastor and his women adherents declined to leave the room until the commission issued orders to the police to close all Miami gambling. Then Mr. Holcomb telephoned each Miami newspaper and told them of the commission's action.

Mr. Holcomb rapidly enlarged his committee of women to several hundred and began issuing attacks in the newspapers against various public officials.

Sheriff Gets Busy.

So last Saturday the sheriff of Dade county answered. "All right," he said. "If you insist on a closed county, it's up to you. I'll close it." He did.

Now not even a roulette wheel is turning in all of the county, not even in the exclusive clubs of North Miami Beach. Last night a squad of deputy sheriffs, police, and a Miami newspaper man walked through twenty-seven night clubs, hotel rooms, and buildings where gambling rooms existed one week ago and were unable to find even the equipment standing. Piles of ashes on an island on South Miami Beach represents all that is left. Even the two clubs known to be operated with Alphonse Capone's money are dark.

Last night the pastor told his congregation, which now packed the church to the doors with many standing in the street unable to get in, that he had been unable to get publicity for his revival services without something sensational, but the end justified the means.

COLDS

We can't all go to Florida this time of year; but we all can benefit by Florida's grapefruit to correct that over-acid condition which makes you subject to colds.

Grapefruit is alkaline in its effect; and it provides, more than almost any other food, the needed mineral salts and essential vitamins to build up your bodily resistance.

The sweetest and juiciest of grapefruit are marked "Seald-Sweet" on the skins. Eat them twice or thrice a day or drink their refreshing juice.

WATCH THESE DANGER SIGNALS!

Headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, loss of appetite, lack of energy, a general feeling of "blues"—these are the most frequent danger signals of constipation.

Look out for them. Don't let them make your life miserable. Start tomorrow eating Kellogg's All-Bran—a delicious ready-to-eat cereal. As pleasant as it is healthful. What a relief it will be after taking unnatural, habit-forming pills and drugs.

7 PICKED ON JURY TO TRY YOUTH AS GIN ORGY SLAYER

Defense to Blame Liquor for Girl's Killing.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Seven Hoosier farmers, having searched their consciences for prejudice against the morals of the prohibition age, and discovering none likely to warp their judgment in a murder case, stood qualified tonight as jurors in the case of Virgil Kirkland, accused with four other young men of killing Kirkland's sweetheart, Arbie Draves, in ravishing her.

The 20 year old defendant, a former Gary High school athlete, went to trial alone, his co-defendants, David Thompson, Leon Stanford, Henry Kirk and Paul Barton, having obtained a severance. A motion for a change of venue, granted by Circuit Judge Martin Smith at Crown Point, brought Kirkland's case over from industrialized Lake county with its large foreign population to the old county courthouse here.

Typical Rural Venire.

A typical rural venire of 75 farmers and country tradesmen, all property owners in accordance with Indiana law, had been summoned for jury service. Within an hour after Judge Grant Crumpacker had convened his court at 1:30 p. m., John Underwood of Gary, special deputy prosecutor in charge of the state's case, had examined 18 talesmen, excusing five for cause and one on a peremptory challenge.

Framing his questions on the lines conventional in an ordinary murder case, Mr. Underwood left it for the defense to inject the prohibition angle, evidently seeking elderly jurors with outlooks of their own, particularly those with daughters of the slain girl's age. Mr. Underwood briefly examined to what extent each had read and discussed the case and whether they had formed an undisputable opinion of Kirkland's guilt or innocence.

Excuses Poolroom Keeper.

The prosecutor had questioned and excused Frank Pressel and Lester Durham, the former a farmer and the latter a Valparaiso poultryman, both middle aged and the fathers of grown children. It was the third man, Patrick Flannery, whom the state challenged. Flannery said he was a bachelor, proprietor of a tobacco shop at Chesterton, Ind., and affirmed he had no bias in the case. Cautiously Mr. Underwood asked if it were true that a poolroom was maintained in connection with the tobacco shop. Flannery nodded. Without mentioning the fact that Flannery formerly operated a saloon, Mr. Underwood then excused him.

The next talesman was a fellow townsman of Flannery, Oliver Johnson, clerk in the Chesterton bank. Mr. Underwood firmly declared he could not be an impartial juror. Judge Crumpacker excused him.

Death Penalty Not Mentioned.

Significantly, Mr. Underwood omitted questioning the venire on capital punishment. Since the Indiana law makes mandatory the death penalty for a defendant convicted of murder by rape, or with intent to rape, it was assumed and indeed threatened by the prosecuting staff that electrocution would be demanded for Kirkland.

"I don't believe in cluttering up a juror's mind with irrelevant questions on capital punishment," Mr. Underwood commented.

Brings Up Prohibition.

Examining talesmen for the defense was Attorney John Crumpacker, son of the presiding judge. That Kirkland will refrain from testifying was hinted in Mr. Crumpacker's inquiry of each prospective juror as to whether the defendant's failure to take the stand would prejudice the venireman against him.

A suggestion of the theory of the defense was found in one of Mr. Crumpacker's questions, put to each venireman.

"Supposing at the end of this trial," he suggested, "that you, as a juror, were uncertain whether Miss Draves died of a fall, of drinking poisoned liquor, or from some other cause unknown, would you still retain the presumption of innocence for the defendant, Kirkland, and acquit him?"

Each venireman said he would. Specific mention of prohibition brought a prompt objection from Prosecutor Underwood. Questioning William Ahlgren, elderly farmer living seven miles south of Valparaiso, Mr. Crumpacker opened with the interrogation: "Are you a prohibitionist?"

The farmer cleared his throat, cocked his foot on his knee, and pondered.

"Well, as long as it's the law, I respect it," he declared.

Expect Complete Jury Today.

The objection overruled, Mr. Crumpacker drew from Ahlgren the admission that, whether prejudiced or not against violators of the prohibition law, he believed he could give Kirkland a fair trial.

In the jury box when court adjourned were: Frank Pressel, 59; Lester Durham, 55; William Ahlgren, 55; James L. Rigg, 48; John A. Carlson, 49; John Trede, 42; Orrin Peck, 59; Clarence Fisher, 45; Frank Graves, 56; John Cuson, 28; A. E. Upp, 60, and Arthur Gilson, 46. The first seven have been accepted by state and defense.

Expectations were that the jury would be completed tomorrow morning and opening statements made in the afternoon.

KILLED AS AUTO HITS 4 PARKED CARS AND UPSETS

Another Victim Dies on Glencoe Crossing.

One man was killed and another critically injured last night when their automobile crashed into four other cars parked at the side of the street and overturned in Stony Island avenue near 77th street. The dead man, who was driving, was Walter L. Wuthenow, 26 years old, 6125 Kenwood avenue. His companion, James Bryan, 1421 East 66th place, was taken to the Jackson Park hospital.

W. L. WUTHENOW.

Both men were steel workers and were en route to do their night shift at a plant in Calumet.

Another man was killed yesterday when his truck was struck by a Chicago and Northwestern railroad train at the Harbor street crossing in Glencoe, the second fatality at this crossing within four days. The victim was Peter Lavardo, 34 years old, 342 Washington avenue, Glencoe.

Ask Additional Gates.

The tracks of the Chicago and North Shore Electric line are adjacent to the Chicago and Northwestern tracks at this point, but there are only one set of crossing gates. Harry Mau, 34 years old, Deerfield, who was riding with Lavardo, escaped with minor bruises.

Last Friday a Chicago and North Shore train struck a truck at the same crossing and the driver was fatally injured. George R. Young, village manager of Glencoe, announced last night that a resolution will be introduced at the next meeting of the city council providing for the erection of additional gates at the Harbor street crossing and also at the Woodlawn avenue crossing.

These two deaths and three others raised the Cook county motor toll for the year to 205. The victims:

Eric Swedlund, 60 years old, 5954 Augusta street, a shoemaker. Died in the West Suburban hospital of injuries received on Feb. 12 when he was struck by the auto of Earl Ganshaw, 1152 North Mayfield avenue, while crossing Austin boulevard at Huron street.

Frank Klein, 38 years old, 3751 North Kedzie avenue. Died of injuries received on Saturday when his auto struck a tree in Humboldt park.

EXECUTED PAIR WANTED DEATH, NOT LIFE TERM

Irene and Dague Say So in Letters.

Bellefonte, Pa., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Death in the electric chair rather than life behind the prison bars—if they could have had their choice—was the wish of Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague, it was disclosed today, a few hours after they had been executed for the slaying of State Trooper Brady Paul.

The determination to accept the extreme penalty was expressed by the bandit lovers in letters left behind and read for the first time after the pair lay dead in their cheap pine boxes.

The messages were addressed to their spiritual adviser, who read them to newspaper men with tears running down his cheeks.

Leaves Note for Son.

A third note, penned by the woman, was left to her little boy, whose childish prattle caused her own and Dague's arrest. In it she denied she had shot Trooper Paul, as the child declared. The farewell letters all stated that neither the woman nor Dague "held malice toward the state officials."

"Friday our attorney, Benjamin Jarrett, came to us and told us that it was possible he could get a respite for thirty days," said the note signed by Dague.

"But we requested Mr. Jarrett not to interfere because we do not want life imprisonment now."

Find Spiritual Consolation.

Both notes emphasized the fact that Dague and his gun girl had received spiritual consolation and found the end not hard to bear.

In her farewell to her little son the mother implored him to be a good boy, and she added, referring to the innocent prattle that entrapped her:

"Nothing that you ever said caused me any trouble."

The body of Dague, who deserted a wife and two children when he joined his fate with Mrs. Schroeder's, was started to Dallas, W. Va., in the afternoon for burial. Mrs. Schroeder will be buried at Belair, O.

Executioner Is Kept Busy.

Ossining, N. Y., Feb. 23.—(AP)—This is one of the busiest weeks in Robert Elliott's career as official executioner for four states.

Today he threw the switch that killed Irene Schroeder and Glenn Dague in the penitentiary near Bellefonte, Pa.

Thursday he has two other executions on his schedule.

Drunk, He Kills 2 Men Believing Them Robbers

Kansas City, Kas., Feb. 23.—(AP)—John McNally, 28, and Joe Carmody, 27, former county and city employés, were shot to death early today by Dayton Thomas, 46, superintendent of a milling company, as he was returning home from a late party. Police said Thomas declared he was "too drunk" to remember details of the double slaying, but that he shot the men in the belief they were attempting to rob him. He was released on bond of $20,000 signed by his brother, Earl Thomas, attorney for the city civil service board. Friends of McNally and Carmody characterized the story of an attempted holdup as absurd.

STORM RAGES ON MEDITERRANEAN; SIX LIVES LOST

PALERMO, Sicily, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Ships in the Mediterranean tonight were bucking heavy seas and high winds in a storm which began Saturday night and was still continuing. Commerce was delayed and there was some loss of life.

In Palermo harbor twenty fishing smacks and a coal barge sank and at Port Licata an Italian steamer ran aground. Outside Palermo several ships were anchored awaiting better weather before moving into the harbor.

Half-sick for Days Excess Acid is poisoning your system

Excess acid is a menace to health. It curdles the food we eat into insoluble lumps, forms gas in the stomach and intestines; attacks the delicate linings of the digestive organs, makes them inflamed, and often, if allowed to go uncorrected, produces constipation, ulcers, chronic indigestion and other serious disorders.

You can correct stomach distress almost at once. The surest and quickest way is Milnesia Wafers — which are pure milk of magnesia in a pleasantly flavored wafer. Excess acids are immediately neutralized.

Thousands of physicians and dentists are daily recommending Milnesia Wafers in preference to the old-fashioned liquid form of milk of magnesia, because they are more effective, more convenient, less expensive, and much nicer to take.

Ask your druggist today for the home package of Milnesia at 60c or the convenient "carry" package for vest pocket or purse at 20c.

PERU 'DICTATOR' QUITS RACE FOR THE PRESIDENCY

Orders Troops Into South to Subdue Revolt.

BY C. N. GRIFFIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 23.—Coincident with an order dispatching more government troops to the scene of the revolt in southern Peru, Provisional President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro today announced that he will not be a presidential candidate. Cerro issued a proclamation in which he declared he took this action to prove the sincerity of the convictions which inspired his leadership of the August revolution.

The military junta today also canceled plans for a general election. Only a constituent assembly will be elected which will have the following objectives: first, organize provisionally an executive power; second, draw up a new national constitution; third, dictate general election laws, and fourth, fix a date for the presidential elections.

Rebels Hold U. S. Flyers.

It is expected that 2,000 troops will be embarked for Mollendo, possibly tomorrow, to support the loyal troops in the south. A call has been issued for 1,500 volunteers to enlist with the colors for a sixty day period.

Port Mollendo remains closed and communications on the southern railway between Mollendo and Arequipa and La Paz are paralyzed. Commercial flying also is paralyzed. A Pan-American tri-motored plane, piloted by B. D. Richards, and a Fawcett plane, piloted by Bill Grey are being held at Arequipa by the rebels. Grey is a native of Red Hook, N. Y. He has a war record. Richards formerly was a cowboy in the west and he was a well known figure at western rodeos. Messages received from them late today reported that they were well but that they are not allowed to leave Arequipa.

LA PAZ, Feb. 23. — Direct news reaching here from southern Peru says all centers in that district have revolted. Last night the fourth military zone, with central quarters at Cusco, joined the revolutionary movement. This group, together with the third zone in revolt at Arequipa, represents half of the land forces of Peru.

Paraguay Unions Call Strike.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

ASCUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 23.—Leaders of Paraguayan labor today declared a general strike for an indefinite period. They also demanded removal of the state of siege imposed by the government in an effort to forestall possible violence resulting from current unrest. Freedom for all political prisoners was also asked. Following the posting of communist manifestoes, the government issued a decree dissolving the unions, the quarters of which were occupied by police.

The robber was Daniel Casello, alias Costello, 24 years old, 516 North Kedzie avenue. At the inquest the police announced they were seeking Jerry Tramatole as Casello's alleged accomplice.

Admiral Eduard von Capelle.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—Admiral Eduard von Capelle, the man whom many accuse of being responsible for Germany's "unrestricted submarine warfare," died today at Wiesbaden at the age of 75. Admiral von Capelle, successor to Admiral von Tirpitz, directed the German navy until October, 1918, a few days before the outbreak of the German revolution.

DELAY INQUEST INTO DEATH OF HANGING VICTIM

The inquest into the death of Walter D. Jacobson, 50 years old, 3424 Leland avenue, who was found strangled to death in the bedroom of his home early yesterday, was postponed until March 4 to permit the attendance of the widow, who was confined to her bed yesterday as a result of the shock of his death.

Circumstances surrounding the death of Jacobson, an insurance salesman, whose wife and three small children found him hanging by his neck from a heavy rope attached to a door knob, gave rise to a theory that he might have been murdered by robbers. Several drawers in the room had apparently been ransacked and $800 worth of bonds was said to have been missing.

However, Lieut. John W. Burke of the Albany Park police was inclined to discount this theory, as he said no evidence had been found to indicate that robbers had broken into the home. Mrs. Jacobson told police that she knew no reason why her husband should take his own life.

CHINA MAY USE PROPOSED LOAN TO PAY TROOPS

Unpaid Armies Turn Bandit and Run Wild.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, Feb. 23.—The Nationalist government is facing serious internal difficulty over the projected international silver loan to China recommended in a resolution adopted by a subcommittee of the United States senate foreign relations committee. A certain element here, which is increasing in strength, demands that the first use of such a loan be to pay troops not yet demobilized. This element contends that their payment is essential, while other obligations must necessarily whit. The impression obtains here that America will refuse the loan under such conditions.

Central Honan province is overrun with former soldiers, now chiefly turned bandit. Twelve different divisions or brigades have been identified among them, and they possess more than 100,000 rifles and other equipment.

Troops Overrun Provinces.

Shantung province is also overrun with unpaid troops, whose commanders are having difficulty in managing them, while troops along and to the south of the Yangtze river are so undermined by communists that the outlook there is exceedingly gloomy.

Manchurian troops hold Chihli province as well as Manchuria, while the former Gen. Gen Hsi-shan's troops are still mobilized in Shansi province. There is no money to pay them. The same is true of Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang's troops in Shensi and Kansu provinces.

Legations to Investigate.

The foreign legations are much concerned at the serious turn the situation is taking since the government, lacking money to pay these troops, is considered certain to be confronted with an increase in banditry. Several legations are sending military experts into the field to ascertain the possibilities of disorders.

Chinese business men fear that if the proposed loan is used to demobilize these troops, a more serious financial crisis is certain to result. The crisis already is having a serious effect. Best information from Nanking indicates that some of the leading members of the government are strongly opposed to using such a loan fund for the soldiers, hence a party crisis may arise whether the loan is made or not.

CONOCO

Yes, Sir, I can back up what I say about Germ-Processed Oil with actual proof, O.K'd by A·A·A·

THREE stock cars from three price classes went through six weeks of testing on Pike's Peak. Three nationally known oils were used in comparison with Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil. All of the testing was directly supervised by the American Automobile Association.

At the end of six weeks the AAA took the more than ten thousand observations, then issued a report of the outcome. The report stated that in the Pike's Peak Tests Conoco Motor Oil had shown a reduction of 76.4% in the rate of motor wear . . . that it had shown greater stability . . . had lowered frictional temperatures . . . increased compression pressures . . . reduced oil consumption . . . added to gasoline mileage . . . reduced crankcase dilution . . . lengthened motor life.

No higher authority could have been called upon to prove the merits of Germ-Processed oil. No more sweeping commendation could have been asked for. The complete story of the Pike's Peak tests is told in an attractive booklet. FOE OF FASCISTS WOULD REMOVE ITALIAN ENVOY

Ambassador Seeks Facts on O'Brien Speech.

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The remarks of John Lord O'Brian, first assistant attorney general of the United States, criticizing Premier Mussolini for making a "horizontal slice in wages" of Italy's workers, had double barreled repercussions today among New York citizens of Italian extraction who saw in it "another Butler incident."

The Italian ambassador at Washington, Giacomo de Martino, formally requested the Italian consul general here to furnish him with a detailed account of Mr. O'Brian's speech, which was made Saturday before the Union League of Brooklyn. This was looked upon as possibly forecasting some form of protest by the Italian government.

Charge Propaganda.

At the same time the Italian anti-Fascist press announced that a delegation of American citizens of Italian ancestry would go to Washington with a petition to Secretary of State Stimson asking him to request the Italian government to withdraw Ambassador di Martino for his alleged activities in fomenting Fascist sentiment among Italian-American citizens.

The attitude of Justice John J. Freschi of Special Sessions court, who called Mr. O'Brian's statement about Mussolini "not only silly but unwarranted," also was criticized in Il Nuovo Mondo, Italian language newspaper which is the mouthpiece of the anti-Fascist group.

Other Cities Represented.

The delegation to Washington will be headed by Dr. Charles Fama, a member of the Bronx Republican county committee and national chairman of the Defenders of the Constitution, an organization composed of Italian-American citizens. The group will be joined by additional delegates at Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore, it was said.

Agnor di Martino's recall is asked in the petition on the grounds that instead of representing the Italian people he is in America "as the special agent of an Italian political party and its secret police, O. V. R. A., and has been charged by the party with the special mandate of securing the control of and Fascizing American citizens of Italian extraction and Italian-American organizations."

Want Mussolini Apology.

The delegates also will request Secretary Henry L. Stimson to demand that Mussolini apologize for conferring the title of count on Anthony Campagna, a contractor, living on Riverside drive, without asking the permission of the United States government.

The petition, Dr. Fama said, will represent the sentiments of from 50,000 to 100,000 Italian-American voters. If the delegation does not get any satisfaction from Secretary Stimson, he declared, its members intend to lay the matter before the United States senate.

SCHWAB BACK FROM CUBA; OPTIMISTIC ON FUTURE OF BUSINESS

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Fresh from a fifteen day vacation in Cuba, Charles M. Schwab returned on the Panama Pacific Liner Virginia today with a message of optimism for the steel industry and business in general.

The chairman of the board of Bethlehem Steel sees the steel industry gaining slowly. January reports showed improvements over December, he said, and February will show an improvement over January.

"Of course," he said, "you know I am an established optimist. I do believe that business is progressing. It is progressing slowly, but surely, and I'd rather see it come back that way than by any spasmodic rise. The steel business is more or less of a barometer of the nation's condition, and right now it is steadily on the increase.

Mr. Schwab's optimism also extended to Cuba's future, although he suggested that in his opinion the country should make more of an effort to develop its natural resources.

KING ZOG TO STAY IN VIENNA; GOSSIP SAYS IT'S A GIRL

VIENNA, Feb. 23.—(AP)—King Zog of Albania announced tonight that he had decided to remain in Vienna, despite the attempt to assassinate him last week. Gossips attribute his decision to a desire to stay near Franziska Janko, Viennese actress, whose name was linked with the Balkan monarch for the first time today by the newspaper Wiener Stunde.

The newspaper says the king's attentions to Miss Janko almost led him into the hands of his enemies a few days ago when he missed by a few minutes those who were lying in wait for him in Votive park after Zog left her company.

Zog is reported to have lavished expensive gifts on the actress, who is the daughter of a gardener and whose sister is married to a locomotive fireman. He met her here five years ago while she was a music hall star.

GANDHI DEMANDS PROBE OF 'BRUTAL' POLICE ATTACKS

Charges Women Were Beaten with Sticks.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW DELHI, Feb. 23.—While the medieval like Mahatma Gandhi observed his weekly 24 hours of silence today, and would not discuss anything with anybody, Viceroy Lord Irwin continued his conversations with his official advisers.

He is expected to inform Gandhi tomorrow or Wednesday just how far the British government will be able to satisfy the all-India national congress' demands for calling off the ruinous civil disobedience campaign and participating in the conference to form a new government for India.

Asks Probe of Police Brutalities.

One of the main snags in the negotiations is reported to be over Gandhi's demand for an investigation of police excesses. His supporters say that he remains firm in his demand for an investigation of bamboo stick charges on hundreds of women at Borsad on Jan. 21, and in this even the British newspaper, the Times of India, published at Bombay, supports him.

Sir Ernest Hotson, home minister of the Bombay government, in charge of the police involved in the Borsad affairs, has been here for two days conferring with the viceroy. He is said to be firmly opposed to the investigation of the Borsad beatings or of any other.

Authoritative circles insist that if the present peace negotiations fail the nationalist congress is prepared to embark on a nation-wide no tax campaign in an attempt to bring the government to terms.

Every provincial government reports budget deficits aggregating millions of dollars, mainly due to Gandhi's campaign, while the state railways have lost $18,615,000 during the year just closed. These reports, which have just been published, have encouraged certain congress leaders to concentrate on a campaign of refusal to pay taxes.

Says All Depends on Gandhi.

Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, who is acting as mediator between the government and the nationalist congress, tonight said that he is still hopeful of a settlement, but admitted that all depended upon an unknown factor.

"What is the unknown factor?" he was asked.

"Gandhi," he replied.

Women picketers today halted a meeting of the municipal corporation of Bombay, called to pass a resolution to present a farewell address to Viceroy Lord Irwin and Lady Irwin when they leave India in the near future. The picketers prevented the councilors from entering the rooms. Police charged with light staves and a few women were injured. Seventeen were arrested.

YVONNE TO FIGHT N. Y. EXTRADITION IN MARCO CASE

Cleveland, O., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Yvonne Richman Marco, 29 year old widow, arrested for New York authorities who wish to question her about associates of her husband, Frank Marco, in the hope of clearing up his slaying, supposedly at the hands of racketeers, tonight declared she would fight extradition.

Arrested at the home of her father-in-law after returning from the funeral of her husband here, Mrs. Marco broke down under questioning at police headquarters and sobbed for half an hour. When she regained composure she told officers: "I don't know why they want me. I will answer all their questions here, but I will not return to New York."

Asked if she feared Marco's underworld enemies, the one time wife of Harry Richman, stage and screen actor, declined to answer.

PASS NATIONAL JOB FINDING BILL DESPITE HOOVER

Wagner Measure Sets Up Employment Bureaus.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Rebuffing the Hoover administration for the third time in eight days, the house today approved the Wagner bill, setting up federal and state employment agencies without a record vote.

Opposition to the measure introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] crumpled after the house had defeated an administration substitute bill sponsored by Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, by the majority of 182 to 84.

As the Wagner bill has been approved by the senate, it will go to the White House early this week for executive action. It authorizes the expenditures of $13,500,000 by the end of the fiscal year, 1934, in establishing a national employment system in coöperation with the various states. The measure calls for the creation of a bureau to be known as the United States Unemployment Service, under the control of a director general.

Pronounced a "Subsidy."

During debate prior to approval of the Wagner bill opponents of the measure charged that it marked further encroachment by the federal government on the rights of the states. Provisions of the bill, which calls for federal matching of state funds used in establishing unemployment aid agencies, prompted the criticism that the bill provided a subsidy and a dole for the states.

Other provisions of the bill, which permit the federal government to supervise the expenditure of government unemployment funds by the states and authorized the establishment of employment agencies in states, even if state legislatures fail to approve such action, also served to draw the fire of the administration opposition.

The outcome of the fight over the Wagner bill was in doubt until the vote on the Doak substitute bill revealed that Republicans were ignoring party lines to support a measure strongly backed by American labor groups.

Supported by La Guardia.

Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] led the fight in behalf of the Wagner bill, while Representative George S. Graham [Rep., Pa.], veteran chairman of the house judiciary committee, directed the attack on the measure. Representative La Guardia asserted that the measure had the backing of organized labor and represented a real effort to set up machinery which would aid in solving unemployment.

"To me," asserted Representative Graham, "the establishment of another bureau in Washington, with its multitude of employés and its contribution to centralization, is exceedingly offensive and objectionable."

An appropriation of $1,500,000 is authorized for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, and $4,000,000 annually until the close of 1934 fiscal year. Seventy-five per cent of the appropriation is to be apportioned among the several states in proportion to their population.

APPEALS TO PREVENT LOSS OF $95,720 IN RELIEF FUND PLEDGES

Threatened with the loss of $95,720 in provisional plus subscriptions, valid only if the entire $5,000,000 relief quota is raised by tomorrow, Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the fund raising committee of the governor's unemployment commission, yesterday sent out a special appeal to wealthy individuals asking them to contribute the $46,000 still needed.

Yesterday's contributions, including $4,896 raised through the home mail appeal, amounted to $8,178, bringing the grand total of $4,953,765, including the provisional donations.

Yesterday's largest subscription was $1,000 from the Cubs' ball club. Other subscriptions included $800 from the General Market House company and $500 from the Vaughn Seed company.

UNEMPLOYED, HE OFFERS AID IF JOB IS OBTAINED

A north side paperhanger and calciminer who has been without steady work for 14 months yesterday made an offer to Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE. If some reader of THE TRIBUNE comes forward and offers him a job, he is willing to give one-third of all he earns to a family in the same circumstances his own is in, but which has no member able to work.

"My parents-in-law have helped us through this period, although my wife and I are without decent clothes," J. G., the paperhanger, wrote. "We have two boys, aged 5 and 1½ years, and a girl 3 years old.

"I am a good paperhanger and calciminer and 50 cents an hour would be good wages, believe me. I am willing to give one-third of all I earn to a family like my own that needs it, but has no one who can work."

Can Do All Kinds of Work.

The cheerful spirit of J. G. was characteristic also of a letter written to Sally Joy Brown by F. B. M., a colored man in the Englewood district. He wrote in part:

"I can do most any kind of labor work or janitor work, can take care of high or low pressure boiler and can do housecleaning, painting, calciming and any kind of housework. I can furnish reference. I am a colored man and I am well known here in Englewood."

A letter from an ex-service man, the father of five children, who has been out of work more than four months, stated that he had been following the building trades. "But I'm ready to work at anything where I can make a living," he wrote. His three daughters also were looking for work, he said.

Youth Wants Work.

R. H., 21 years old, the oldest of four children, wrote that he had been out of work since last September. His father lost his job last month. "It sure would help my whole family if I could get placed and bring some money home," he wrote. He is a licensed chauffeur, has done some automobile mechanic work, odd electrical jobs and paperhanging. His last job was as a window shade and drape hanger. All jobs offered by readers of THE TRIBUNE are turned over to the Illinois Free Employment service, 116 North Dearborn street, by Sally Joy Brown. If you have a job, call Superior 0100 and ask for her.

Jobs which were offered yesterday included one made by Mrs. A. H., in the 1200 block on Linden avenue, to a carpenter. She will pay 75 cents an hour and wants a garage built.

C. S., in the 5200 block on North Ashland avenue, asked for two painters to work on a job which will require three weeks or a month's work.

A $65 a month day watchman's job for a middle-age man was provided by a near north side hotel.

FOUR KIDNAPERS OF YOCUM ALL PLEAD GUILTY

Will Get Chance to Tell the "Circumstances."

Cambridge, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Orville and Harry Whiskers, Vernon Ahlgren and Lloyd Winslow, the four farmers who gained nation-wide notoriety last October by kidnaping Earl Yocum, millionaire banker of Galva, pleaded guilty to kidnaping for ransom today before Judge L. E. Telleen in the Henry County Circuit court. They asked for an opportunity to testify regarding the circumstances of the case before sentence was passed.

This was granted by the judge, who set the hearing for Thursday.

The statute provides for a minimum sentence of five years, with death as the maximum. Attorneys for the defendants said that they expected to present alleviating circumstances with the hope of securing a minimum sentence.

Courtroom Crowded.

Mr. Yocum and a group of friends sat in the front row of a crowded courtroom. Mrs. Yocum, who is in a Chicago hospital, was not present.

Orville Whiskers, father of twelve children, the last of the accused men to be caught, was the first to plead today. He was captured Saturday working for his board on a farm near Spencer, Ia., by Deputy Sheriff Charles Nash. He had been there most of the time since he escaped capture directly after the kidnaping. When the sheriff approached Whiskers told him "he was glad of it" and was anxious to pay the penalty.

Apologizes to Victim.

He proved this today when he refused the offer of the court to give him an attorney and instead pleaded guilty, without exhibiting the least sign of emotion. After the plea he walked back and spoke to Yocum. Extending his hand, he said:

"I believe I owe you an apology, Mr. Yocum."

Yocum smiled.

After a long conference with their attorneys, Harry Whiskers, Ahlgren, and Winslow, all made the same pleas as Orville Whiskers.

When former Sheriff Nash placed Orville Whiskers in jail Sunday he completed a job he started two days after the kidnaping, Oct. 25.

FINNISH WOMEN DEMAND SPEEDY DRY LAW REPEAL

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, Feb. 23.—A number of distinguished women, belonging to various parties, have appealed to Finland's women to sign a petition addressed to the newly elected president, Pehr Evind Svinhufvud, in support of a speedy repeal of the "pernicious prohibition law." The petition urges mothers to "feel deep concern in the ever increasing intemperance which ruins men, women, and children morally and physically. It is awful to contemplate how alcohol will affect the descendants of the present poisoned generation unless legislators abolish the prohibition system."

The petition further points out that women are unable to restart a temperance movement until the demoralizing prohibition law is repealed and replaced by reasonable legislation. Large sections of the nation derive an easy living from bootlegging, and forbidden fruit is always tempting, especially to young people, the petition further alleges.

Several public meetings in the last few days have passed resolutions urging the repeal of prohibition, which is condemned for increasing drunkenness and crime, undermining the national health, and ruining the state finances.

STUDENT SLAIN AT CAMBRIDGE; SUSPECT HAZERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Bound hand and foot in his rooms at Sidney Sussex college, Cambridge university, the body of Francis Ellis, an 18 year old student, was found fully dressed, with a handkerchief tied tightly over his face today. He had been dead since midnight.

The theory of Scotland Yard inspectors, who were immediately summoned, was that the Cambridge youth died as a result of a student "rag," or hazing. They believe that his fellow students either left their victim bound in the belief that he would soon be discovered and released, and that he died afterward, or that he was killed in a scuffle, whereupon his tormentors fled.

Ellis was in his first year at the university and was studying archaeology. He had an excellent scholastic record, and although he had a strong build, took no interest in athletics and spent most of his time over books. He had meant to spend his life in research.

MAL DAUGHERTY TRIAL IS HALTED; MOTHER DYING

Washington Courthouse, O., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The trial of Mal S. Daugherty, charged with defrauding the defunct Ohio State bank when he was its president, was halted late today by the illness of the defendant's aged mother, Mrs. Jane Daugherty.

The 68 year old banker was testifying in his own defense when word came that his mother was dying from pneumonia. Judge C. S. Bell ordered immediate adjournment to allow Daugherty to rush to her bedside.

Court will convene tomorrow morning as usual, but the trial is expected to be delayed unless Mrs. Daugherty rallies.

FRANCE, BRITAIN REACH ACCORD ON NAVAL TONNAGE

Henderson Confers with Briand in Paris.

BY EDMUND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—France is ready to add her signature without strings to the London naval treaty, and has reached a virtually complete accord with the British over the naval tonnage dispute which has hamstrung the work of the naval limitation conference of last spring.

ARTHUR HENDERSON.
[Acme-P. & A. Photo.]

Final details of the accord are reported to have been worked out conference tonight at a here between Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, and A. V. Alexander, first lord of the British admiralty, and Foreign Minister Briand of France, and Charles Dumont, French minister of marine. The British officials, together with technical experts, arrived in Paris unexpectedly today to take up the negotiations recently handled by R. L. Craigie, British admiralty expert, and Rene Massigli for France. They were accompanied to the French foreign office by Lord Tyrell, British ambassador at Paris.

Expect Signature Tomorrow.

At the end of an hour's conversation the British diplomats came out smiling, and the news leaked out a few minutes later that a complete agreement had been reached except for a few minor technical questions which the technical experts had remained behind to fix up.

Another conference is scheduled at Quai D'Orsay for 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and it is reliably reported that it is not unlikely that an accord will be definitely signed at this meeting. M. Briand and M. Dumont are expected to appear before the chamber of deputies within a few days to ask for the ratification of the agreement.

Italian Question Unsettled.

Through accord with the British, the three power naval pact becomes a four power pact. The question of parity with Italy remains unsettled, but it is temporarily shelved, and Premier Mussolini has been maneuvered into a position where the next move is up to him.

Owing to the escalator clause, France can build beyond the treaty figures if she considers herself menaced by Italian construction.

STATE ORDERS AN INQUIRY INTO CAMPUS DRINKING

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A committee investigation of drinking on the University of Michigan campus was authorized tonight by the state house of representatives.

The resolution, broadly interpreted as calling for an inquiry into drinking by students, the police raids of two weeks ago which resulted in the closing of five fraternity houses in which liquor was found, and disciplinary action taken by university officials, was adopted by a vote of 47 to 31.

Fraternity houses in which liquor was alleged to have been found were "padlocked" until Sept. 1 by the university.

Students Force a Holiday.

Alma, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Fighting a faculty plan to hold school on Washington's birthday, a group of Alma college's leading students locked up the administration building on the campus today and prevented other students from entering for their classes. When faculty members finally entered more than 200 students had joined in the demonstration.

Such an uproar was raised that instructors abandoned their attempt to convene classes. An impromptu parade was followed by an all-school dance in the reception room of the girls' dormitory.

The faculty finally yielded to the students and the day was declared a legal holiday.

Delay Inquest on Fatal Shooting of F. L. Trout

The inquest into the fatal shooting of Frost L. Trout, 6235 Woodlawn avenue, a live stock broker, was continued yesterday to March 7 to enable the coroner's office to seek possible witnesses. Mr. Trout died early yesterday at the Chicago Memorial hospital. He was wounded last Thursday in his home. At that time Mr. Trout telephoned Dr. R. A. Melendy and Frank Campbell, 4538 Drexel avenue, manager of a tailoring concern, and told them he had shot himself accidentally.

CONGRESS VOTES CHICAGO AREA TWO MORE U. S. JUDGES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Two additional federal judgeships were provided for the northern district of Illinois today when the house passed a bill approved a year ago by the senate. It will be signed, without doubt, by President Hoover. The bill was passed after a brief explanation by Representative George S. Graham [Rep., Pa.], chairman of the judiciary committee, and without opposition. Mr. Graham explained that the northern district, which includes Chicago, has now three judges.

"The population of the district is 5,000,000," said Mr. Graham. "With the passage of the bill there will be a ratio of one district judge for each 1,000,000 inhabitants in the district. It has been impossible for the three judges to keep abreast with the court's docket."

The present three judges of the northern district of Illinois are George A. Carpenter, appointed in 1910; James H. Wilkerson, appointed in 1922, and Charles E. Woodward, appointed in 1929. Mr. Wilkerson has been recommended by Senators Otis F. Glenn and Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.] for the vacancy on the United States Circuit Court of Appeals of the Seventh judiciary circuit.

It is doubtful if Senators Glenn and Deneen will be able to unite upon recommendations to President Hoover for the two new judges before congress adjourns, next week.

VOTE FOR LYLE.

The fight on organized crime and city misgovernment reaches a crisis which may be made decisive at the polls today. The elimination of Thompson at this stage is essential to the rehabilitation of the Republican party in Chicago as a responsible agency of local government. His success would not only discredit the party but reflect upon the good name of the city.

The elimination of Thompson is the practical problem before Republican voters at this primary and, if political conditions are regarded, there will be found only one way to accomplish it. The division of the opposition among three anti-Thompson candidates will be fatal unless voters concentrate upon the strongest candidate. That candidate, as clearly demonstrated in the campaign, is Judge Lyle. A vote for either Albert or Schmidt is therefore necessarily a vote for Thompson. The Republican voter who does not wish to help Thompson will vote for Lyle.

SHIPS CAN BE TOO BIG.

Some opposition has developed in New York state to the federalizing of the New York barge canals. Congress has offered to take over the canals, but the legislature of New York has still to cede them. The opposition makes much of the point that the federal government has not pledged itself to deepen the canals to permit the passage of oceangoing freighters.

That is a debater's point and little more. It exaggerates the importance of the barge canal in overseas trade. The New York waterway, though it may have incidental values for overseas commerce, is primarily of importance in domestic trade. It is the water connection between the great agricultural regions of the west and the great consuming market for agricultural products in the east. And, for trade in the opposite direction, it is the connection between a manufacturing district and the market for manufactures to the west.

It may be assumed as a basic principle of transportation that commodities will move in a container which they will fill and in which they can travel without transshipment. Operating under that principle, the steel corporation has built a fleet of ore carriers 580 feet long. If the locks at the Soo permitted, the ships would be even larger, for the cargo available for any one ship is practically unlimited. But for the mass of our domestic trade these ships are already far too large. Only a few industries have quantities of goods to ship comparable to the quantity of ore piled on the Minnesota docks; and few consuming markets absorb a single commodity as rapidly as the blast furnaces absorb ore. It takes a lot of tomato soup to satisfy the needs of this country, but the movement of tomato soup in ore carriers would be uneconomical in the extreme. Neither production nor consumption is geared to transportation units of such size. Enormous sums would be tied up in warehouses and inventory. Spoilage and depreciation would become important items.

The size of carriers must be adjusted to the rhythm of commerce. This rhythm is extremely complex, as any one who has traced the movements of a freight car can testify. An ideal transportation system is one in which the carriers can be concentrated where needed to meet the demands of commerce as they arise. It follows that our internal waterways should be constructed to permit a standard type of carrier to move freely from Montreal to New Orleans and from Chicago to New York. Inevitably, these carriers will be of moderate size.

The movement of ocean freighters past New York City to Duluth would be of relatively small value to New York state. In contrast, the standardization of our inland waterways to a uniform minimum depth, sufficient to permit the operation of a sizable barge, would be of untold advantage not only to New York but to the whole nation. The depth must be sufficient at the same time to permit the construction of a barge which can navigate the open waters of the great lakes in safety.

The New York barge canal, designed for a twelve foot depth, is adequate for this purpose, even though the water has not been maintained at the intended level. The opponents of federalization want the canal rebuilt to something like twice its present depth. They would much better devote their effort to obtaining an adequate minimum depth in the Illinois waterway and the Mississippi. At present our waterways are like a railroad system with a variety of gauges. A ship which can travel on one section cannot operate on others. In consequence it is impossible to mobilize water carriers where they are needed. The system lacks flexibility because it lacks continuity.

The present Mississippi barges are 126 feet long, 23 feet in the beam and draw 7 feet 6 inches of water. They are somewhat small. If the Mississippi and Illinois waterways are deepened to, say, slightly more than nine feet, to accommodate barges of nine foot draft, a standard internal waterway barge could be built having a length of 261 feet, a beam of 43 feet and a depth of 9 feet, large enough for most practical purposes. This ship could go anywhere from Montreal to New Orleans. It could navigate the lakes and the coastal waterways connecting the Atlantic ports. It would materially reduce the cost of shipment to and from every city on the coast, the lakes, the Mississippi and St. Lawrence. The deepening of the New York barge canal for ocean freighters would be far more expensive and its benefits would be negligible in comparison.

MUSCLE SHOALS, WAR BABY.

Muscle Shoals was a war baby and a rich one, just a little bit illegitimate, but that in wartime was nothing to cavil at. The federal stork dropped it in Alabama and it was the means of bringing a lot of money to a region of deserving Democrats. As a war measure nothing came of it, but that could be said of a great many war measures. It was a handsome appropriation judiciously placed in a southern river and highly moral in its purposes, an addition to the national defenses. After the war an expensive child was on the hands of the government. Henry Ford was willing to take it and almost got it. Mr. Ford was in high repute, but criticism found that even he was being a bit too tight with the government. That deal fell through and since then the senate radicals have been playing with the baby, now a nuisance to everybody.

It has been used to boost real estate subdivisions for unwary purchasers. It has been used to kid the farmers with prospects of cheap fertilizer, as a threat to the power trust, as a means of dabbling in the nationalization of production, and as various kinds of political hoax and fraud. It has been a radical standard of spurious public morality, a sink hole into which government money has been poured and an all around failure except as political bear oil.

It has produced more chicane than any other one institution in the country, and that is all it ever will produce as a government concern. Congress insists that the blunder shall go on blundering with the treasury behind it.

AT THE NEXT NAVAL CONFERENCE.

It is reported from Washington that there is little hope of passing the naval construction bill at this session. This omission will virtually assure our entering the next naval reduction conference with nothing to show that our naval plans and our diplomatic demands are to be taken seriously. At London we demanded agreement upon parity between us and Britain. The British government with a great show of concession conceded it in principle. President Hoover announced this as a great victory. Congress now proceeds to show that the victory was empty. It refuses to move an inch toward the accomplishment of the objective for which his delegation was assumed by the country to have fought so resolutely.

Such disparity between our words and our acts is not thrown away upon European governments. They have already noted it and unquestionably have governed themselves accordingly. During the congressional discussion of the fifteen cruiser plan of 1929 the Japanese newspaper Mainichi called attention to it and plainly implied that our building plan was to be taken as a diplomatic gesture; in the American language, a bluff. Our conduct since must have strengthened that assumption.

The inevitable result will be that when we enter the next naval conference for limitation our diplomacy will have no hand to play. We shall not even have a bluff. Our demands will be words without weight or meaning.

That this is conducive either to the cause of naval reduction or to the respect due the United States can only be asserted by pacifists who wish the United States to be negligible as a naval power regardless of international conditions. In fact, it eliminates us as a practical influence for naval reduction.

CONGRESSIONAL TRAVELERS.

Washington observers find that Mr. Nye's expense accounts for himself and associates have opened a new world of pleasurable expectations for statesmen who travel to improve the legislative mind and to gather information useful in the nation's business. Mr. Nye seems to have taken it for granted that a great and generous nation would not want its legislators stinted when they investigate. Investigation is the life of statesmanship and the policy is to make it attractive. Hence liberal expense accounts and indulgence to find a point of national interest in a lovely scene at a suitable time of the year.

Mr. Nye may have broken new ground, but the golden days are yet to come when the traveling congressman on the nation's business will be lifted from the drawing room status to that of the private car. Investigations will never really get under way until the government is in private enterprise up to its ears. When it is in the steel and cheese business, when it is the biggest butter and egg man and the manufacturer of cosmetics, tooth paste, and shaving powder, when it operates fishing resorts and dance halls, grows wheat and potatoes, makes kraut and orange marmalade, and engages in all the other various activities of life, then official traveling will have its big day. The congressman on the road will have nothing less than his private car. It will be good while it lasts, which, if the industries affected are expected to pay for it, won't be long.

Editorial of the Day

CHICAGO AND MILWAUKEE CRIME.

[New York World.]

By speaking critically of Chicago as a crime ridden community, Mayor Hoan of Milwaukee has put himself in a class with King George. Mayor Big Bill Thompson tells Mr. Hoan that in future it will be well for him to tend to his own business about Chicago crime. "When you get through scrubbing Milwaukee's doorstep," says Mayor Big Bill, "you will have less time to criticize Chicago's condition."

Mayor Thompson's rhetoric is better than his logic. Milwaukee's doorstep is already well scrubbed. For years its homicide rate has been away below not that of Chicago alone but that of the average American city, simply because the Milwaukee authorities will not allow the murdering gangsters that infest other cities to operate. The proof of the pudding is in the eating. In 1929, the latest figures compiled by the Spectator, the insurance journal, show Chicago's homicide rate per 100,000 of population to be 12.7, while that of Milwaukee was only 3.1. Previous years showed similar contrasts.

There is nothing secret about Milwaukee's method of maintaining a low percentage of homicide. An energetic enforcement of the law is all that has been found necessary. That policy might be recommended to Mr. Thompson for use at home, and to other and greater cities.

TREATING HAND WOUNDS.

IN THE treatment of wounds of the hands and feet Dr. H. W. Orr follows a plan that differs from the one now in general use but which he has used successfully in a large number of cases for more than five years. Wounds of the hands and feet are dangerous because so frequently the wounded member is deformed, useless, and too tender for work. Much of this plan can be carried out only by physicians, but laymen should know about it, since, in the last analysis, they must pass on what the physician does.

Dr. Orr does not lance or open up infected hands or feet until one of two reasons for doing so is present. If there is an abscess coming to a head he drains it. If there is infection of the bone he not only drains but he extends his opening into the center of the bone. Such bone infections are usually in the bone marrow and an incision which does not go to the bone marrow does not drain properly. Otherwise, according to this plan, the hand or foot is wrapped well for protection and put in a splint for rest. The splint should be long enough to keep all nearby joints, muscles, and tendons at rest. When the suppuration is localized, or, in other words, as the pus comes to a head, he opens it up, puts in a vaseline gauze drain, covers with a dry dressing, and then with a splint. After that the injured member is left alone. No daily washings and dressings, no daily application of fresh gauze; just protected, splinted, and left alone. To change dressings is to increase the danger of infection or further infection.

He follows the same method of treating compound fractures. Just drainage, a protective dressing, and splinting and, after that, just as little dressing and refixing as conditions will allow of. He thinks free cutting and much changing of dressings will accomplish no good purpose and may do harm. If the symptoms show that the infection has gone into the bone incision to the center thereof must be quickly done.

CAUSE IS UNCERTAIN.

Mrs. G. L. writes: I have a friend who, the doctors say, has Parkinson's disease. She seems to be in good health outside of stiffness and trembling. What do you think caused the disease? Is there any treatment or medicine that will cure or relieve her?

REPLY.

Parkinson's disease is caused by something in the person's experience. Just what, nobody knows. At this time stress is being put on encephalitis as one cause. There are those who guess that it may be postponed after effect of encephalitis, infantile paralysis, all the virus diseases, measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, and what not. Treatment is very unsatisfactory.

PROBABLY NOT SERIOUS.

Mrs. D. M. writes: There is a small amount of blackish mucus that comes from my mouth every morning.

1. Is this serious? 2. What causes this condition? 3. Is there a cure?

REPLY.

1. Probably it is not, but you should make sure.
2. The probable cause is a mild chronic bronchitis, but there are other possibilities.
3. There may be. It depends on what it is a symptom of. Probably the cure would be more trouble than the disease.

RUBBER CORSET.

W. Y. P. writes: Is a reducing corset made of rubber harmful?

REPLY.

TUMOR AT 24.

Anxious writes:

1. Is it possible for a girl to have a tumor in the abdomen at the age of 24?
2. Do rings under the eyes, which she has had for a number of years, have anything to do with it?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Possibly.

A WILL HELPS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Does the personal property of a husband pass to his wife when he dies? 2. If so, why is a will necessary when there are no children or real estate involved? W. L.

1. Yes, in absence of children, and in absence of a will.
2. One advantage is that the will can excuse the personal representative from furnishing surety on his original bond. The saving thus effected may be more important than the attorney's fee.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEAKY HYDRANTS.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—There are two hydrants in our neighborhood—one at Mason and Gunnison streets and one at Moody avenue and Strong street—that have been leaking for months. These hydrants have been reported to the fire department and city water department several times, and nothing has been done. F. R. W.

With reference to defective fire hydrants at Mason and Gunnison streets and Moody avenue and Strong street, we wish to advise you that these hydrants were repaired on Feb. 11, 1931, and are now in operative condition. LORAN D. GAYTON, City Engineer.

FLAMING YOUTH.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am 19 years old. I have written fifty or sixty love letters to my girl, who is 16 years old. We were supposed to be married in July. I have quit her. Can she bring suit of any kind against me? R. S.

If your letters were so worded as to include a promise to marry, then she would be entitled to collect damages for breach of that promise.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NOT GUILTY.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If a man is tried, convicted, and sentenced on circumstantial evidence, and, after he is sentenced, new evidence is brought to the attention of the judge, is it within the power of the judge to remand the prisoner for a new trial, or what is the procedure in such a case? A. F.

The actual practice in most cases is to submit new facts to the pardon board. The possibility of reopening the proceedings depends upon how much time has elapsed, the adequacy of excuses for the delay, the compelling nature of the new evidence, etc.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

HOW VERY NICE OF ALFONSE!

Up to the hour when the Line went to press yesterday, Mr. Alfonse Capone, who is said to be in our midst, had not been located. As modest as the violet by the mossy stone, Mr. Capone shrinks—nay, he even blushes—at the idea of appearing in person before his admiring public. And more than that, Mr. Capone, who often boasts of his 100% Americanism, would hesitate to reveal himself on George Washington's birthday, as George wouldn't have had even a mention. Mr. Capone would have been given all the scare heads and the whole of the front page, and if George had horned in on page 17 with a neat reference to his having formerly occupied the presidential chair he would have been in luck.

POSTPONEMENT.

Oh, the fringe of adventure is calling,
And we long to answer its call,
Somewhere are dynasties falling,
But here in this gossiping small

Town, where the trollops are talking
Over the back yard fence,
Everything seems to be mocking
The lure of the far immense.

Fair was the edge of the sunset,
Where the gray dreams flushed to rose,
In a bygone age when one met
The mate of a night's repose.

Oh, the fringe of adventure is calling,
And we fain would answer its call,
But we linger like cattle for stalling,
We just cannot make it . . . that's all!

E. LESLIE SPAULDING.

ETAOIN SHRDLU, the Line's candidate for mayor, instead of a last word of hope and appeal to his frenzied supporters, has graciously prepared an address of thanks to those who made his great victory possible. Mr. Shrdlu thinks it is unnecessary to wait until the ballots are counted. He points out quite rightly that the scandals, which often arise from an election, come from claims of miscounting or juggling the votes when they are counted—if they were not counted there would be no trouble. "Therefore," says Mr. Shrdlu, "I waive the counting of the ballots today and accept the nomination here and now. I thank you." We hasten to send Etaoin Shrdlu our congratulations. It was a splendid victory.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S birthday passed off rather quietly. The movement for a sane Washington's birthday has apparently gained ground, as there were few casualties yesterday. Four men who yelled, "I cannot tell a lie, I did it with my little hatchet," were chased into the river, but, otherwise, as we said before, the day was quiet.

MARGINAL NOTES OF A VAGRANT YEAR.

. . . ignoring the threnodies of a tumbling barometer to be an audience of one to the witchery of a sudden frost, as, following the slowly enscribed arc of a winter moon, he clothes the bleak walls of Tonti cañon and the bittersweet vines that have lost their beauty, with shawls of shimmering silver . . . witnessing the sanguinary triumph of a pair of woodpeckers over the intrusions of a foolish squirrel and seeing in the solemnity of his execution the only possible answer to nature's dramatic demand for expiation when one of her laws is ignored . . . wondering what Bob Becker would have said (note for Bob: read "Acres of Diamonds") had he witnessed Garland Connor's establishment of a LEW record for the lower stretches of the Vermilion when, on six helgramites, he took ten small mouth bass from one pool, while the natives, haunched at the shoreline, sighed in their wish that the code of the state might have permitted him more . . . awed by that nearness to change toward which time is avidly reaching when the monarch butterflies, having restlessly attained the fullness of their beauty, find rest on the lilting stems of the flowered mullens, while the wild hibiscus leans vainly above the arid bosom of Long Point creek . . . wondering: in what miraculous manner could Dorothy Kissling's mastery of metre perpetuate the threats, the entreaties, the cajolery—the maternal supremacy—of a female bank swallow, who, having first marshaled her brood of four on a swaying branch far above the rushing of tortuous waters, successfully brings them back from their first introduction to the abysmal mysteries of flight. . . .

THAT FELLA DOWN IN STREATOR.

COL. JIM HAM LEWIS and his presidential boom rolled into Chicago yesterday. Which reminds us even in the intense excitement over our mayoralty campaign that another one is ready to take its place as soon as it closes. What would we do without elections? They've become our great national sport.

THE LINE'S CAMPAIGN to compel people who don't vote from making any kick when the election is over is going along fine. We expect to have a law passed making it a penitentiary offense to utter loud lamentations over election results unless the party so lamenting has duly voted. A non-voter under our proposed law will also be liable to a ten dollar fine and twenty days in the Bridewell if he even sounds off to the extent of saying, "I told you so."

FOR DOCTORS EVERYWHERE.

Intimate fingers enter to conscle
Pain evolved in sheerest ioneliness;
Deft sweet touches still the pulsing dole
More gently than a lover's first caress;
And all the cruelty of man to man
Pales for a while, and it is good to lean
On a nobility bespoken by this clan,
All that most human is and most serene.

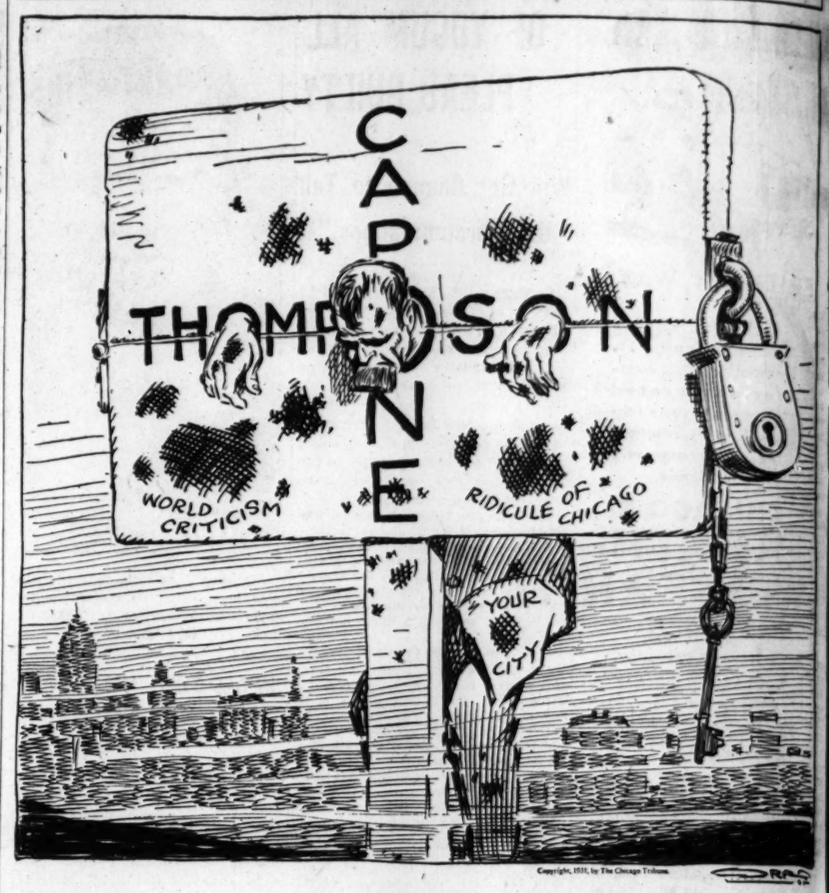
ITALY REQUESTS the full text of the speech of First Assistant Attorney John Lord O'Brien in New York Saturday. Mr. O'Brien is said to have remarked, "Thank God, we do not live in a country such as Italy, where a dictatorship of one man can make a horizontal slice in wages." Let us hasten to apologize to Mr. Mussolini again. In fact, after this the U. S. should apologize regularly to Mussolini on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. Safety first! R. H. L.

THE DAY OF RESCUE?



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 24, 1915.

CHICAGO.—William H. Thompson and Robert M. Sweitzer will oppose each other in the race for mayor as a result of yesterday's primaries. Thompson defeated Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court by 2,325 votes for the Republican nomination. Sweitzer beat Mayor Harrison for the Democratic nomination by a plurality of 77,551.

LONDON.—A second American ship at the bottom of the sea, another Norwegian steamer sunk, a British collier badly damaged, three unknown British steamers helpless—that is the toll of Feb. 22 of the blockade of the British isles proclaimed by Germany to begin on Feb. 18. The American steamer Carib, owned by a Savannah, Ga., firm, and loaded with cotton for Bremen, hit a mine off the German coast in the North sea and sunk. It is believed that the crew was saved. The Norwegian steamer Regin was sunk off Dover. The crew of twenty-two men escaped. The Cardiff steamer Branksome Chine, a government collier, either hit a mine or was torpedoed in the English channel twenty miles southeast of Beachy Head. Eighteen members of the crew who were landed at New Haven said the captain and the mate were standing by the vessel, which was badly damaged.

SUWALKI, RUSSIAN POLAND.—A victory held by the Germans to be greater than that of Napoleon at Waterloo—the rout of the Russian Tenth army by the Germans under Field Marshal von Hindenburg—was accomplished in one of the most spectacular campaigns in the history of modern warfare. A Russian army of 150,000 men has been almost annihilated.

CHICAGO.—Negotiations are under way for a combination of the Chicago institute and the University of Chicago, whereby the former school will have a department of pedagogy and philosophy in the university. The scheme contemplates the erection of buildings to cost $500,000, to be built near the university campus.

CHICAGO.—Lake Shore railroad officials had to untangle one of the strangest train wrecks in the annals of locomotion at White Pigeon, Mich., 120 miles east of Chicago. Two men were killed in the wreck and three injured. An engine and a snow plow, east bound on the main line, not only plowed up the snow that lay on the track, but struck the west bound freight engine head on, threw it high up in the air, plowed under it, and then plowed up several cars that were attached to the freight engine.

CHICAGO.—Miss Mary Isham Prentice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sartell Prentice, and Henry H. Porter Jr. were married on Feb. 19 at the Fourth Presbyterian church.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

WASHINGTON. — Gen. Bragg of Wisconsin stirred up the Brigadiers in the house yesterday by objecting to the appropriation of $20,000 for the purchase of the private papers of the confederate generals, Bragg and Polk. Blackburn of Kentucky took umbrage and a lively passage at arms followed, in which the Wisconsin gentleman, having the faculty of keeping his temper, came out first best.

LONDON.—The British house of lords is getting tired of waiting for the house of commons to pass the Irish coercion bill, and proposes to have a little excitement of its own making. Some one of the "born rulers" will move a resolution on the evacuation of Candahar, and about a dozen others who can talk, or who think they can talk, will give expression to their views of the matter. Something has to be done to put an end to the monotony enforced by Parnell.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Advices from Samoa say that a party of those opposed to King Malietoa made a descent on the town of Lona, on the Island Sanail, and killed five old men, one woman, and four children. They were pursued by the king's troops and a brisk engagement ensued. Many rebels were killed and others surrendered. Many of them are dying from starvation.

PLEDGES COERCED.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—The fellows who work out of our garage for one of the largest cab companies in Chicago were compelled to sign a Thompson pledge before they could get their pay on Feb. 13. Most of the lads who drive a cab depend on that check Friday night for their families' breakfasts Saturday.

It is said at the garage the fellow getting these pledges signed is paid so much for each pledge signed. There are 500 drivers working out of the garage.

Well, if he thinks he is getting my vote he is thinking wrong, as usual, 'cause he is not getting mine; neither is he getting a number of other votes who were compelled to sign pledges in order to get their pay. Hooray for Lyle.

A CAB DRIVER.

A SPEECH CUT OFF.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—While listening to Judge John H. Lyle's address over station WBBM, as announced in the press for 8 p. m., a group of us, gathered at my radio, were astonished to note the sudden cutting off of his address in the middle of a sentence—and at the most interesting point in the address, where it appeared to be nearing a peroration.

We waited in some perturbation for an announcement from the station explaining what had happened, fearing, as we did, that perhaps Judge Lyle had been taken suddenly ill or that something worse had befallen him. No explanation whatever was made, however, but without an interlude of more than a few seconds a piano filled in the hiatus created by this unceremonious shutoff. Efforts were then made to reach the station by phone, but without avail. Perhaps I am voicing the indignation of others, as well as those of myself and friends, in resenting this apparently high handed, Mussolinian piece of business.

VORLEY WRIGHT.

SPECIAL DELIVERY.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—In looking over Mayor Thompson's many accomplishments, I find he does not claim to have given birth to a baby. Could he have inadvertently overlooked it?

HARRY GOODMAN.

AN UNFINISHED TASK.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—The voters got rid of Crowe and Small and showed Deneen just how he stood, but he evidently did not understand, as he entered a dark horse in the primary who, though a good man, will run a poor third.

What we need most is a few more judges and politicians who lack the so-called judicial temperament we heard so much about. I wonder if some of the boosters for the mayor would intrust the management of their business which require brains and efficiency for its success to a man of his type? If not, why then permit him to manage such a huge business as the city of Chicago?

The mayor forgets that the taxpayers are paying him $18,000 per year to look after the city's affairs at the office provided in the city hall, not in a hotel room or some backwoods or mountain retreat. He as well as all other public office holders are servants of the public and are receiving fine salaries for it. The sooner they and some of the voters realize this fact the better.

It is reported that all the policemen, firemen, and teachers are to vote for Thompson. If he should be elected perhaps they will wait ten months for their pay next year or be laid off entirely for lack of funds to pay them.

As for the World's Fair, it will undoubtedly be a huge failure unless there is a change in city administration. So get together, Republicans, Democrats, Independents, and what-nots, and show there is still some intelligence among you by electing the honest, courageous judge. T. J. D.

WASHINGTON'S PRECEPTS.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—Since my earliest childhood I have admired and loved George Washington, and every year about Feb. 20 I spend two or three hours reading about that wonderful man. I feel sure that the following some of Washington's maxims will interest many of your readers:

"Speak not evil of the absent—it is unjust."

"Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire called conscience."

"When we assumed the soldier we did not lay aside the citizen."

"Promote as an object of primary importance institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge."

"Let us have a government by which our lives, liberties, and properties will be secured."

"The great searcher of human hearts is my witness that I have no wish which aspires beyond the humble, happy lot of living and dying a private citizen on my own farm."

"Every action in company ought to be with some sign of respect to those present."

"Speak not when others speak; walk not when others stop; sit not when others stand."

"Be no flatterer; neither play with any one who delights not to be played with."

"Be not curious to know the affairs of others; neither approach to those that speak in private."

"Undertake not what you cannot perform, but be careful to keep your word."

P. J. BROWNE.

A FAIR EXCHANGE.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 14.—In spite of daily propaganda to the contrary, the British empire is not a pacific institution. It was founded, is maintained, and is ever expanding by force of arms. Every one of its groups of islands off the American coast, in the Caribbean sea, and British Honduras is a potential menace, as naval and air bases, to the United States and to the Canal Zone.

The Nicaragua canal, when completed, in conjunction with the Panama canal, will constitute the most vital link in our system of national defense.

Now is the time to get together and exchange these British possessions for a part of the war debt. At the same time the Falkland islands should be restored to the Argentine and the Guianas made independent or united with some South American country.

British naval and air bases off the American coast are not established to promote peace. The transfer of these possessions to the United States would help to create better feeling and make possible a reduction in expenditures when arriving at naval equality.

2 TEXAS NEWSPAPER MEN MAKE A MILLION EACH FROM OIL WELL

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—"If I had a million dollars," said Ed Bateman, former newspaper man, to his friend, O. P. Douglas, in Fort Worth, Tex., some six years ago, "I'd buy a home first, lay away a trust fund for the kids, and take a little trip to New York to see the town.

"Me, too," said Douglas, also a former newspaper man.

So today Mr. and Mrs. Ed Bateman and Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Douglas of Fort Worth, were registered at a New York hotel, occupying adjoining rooms. Each has made the million.

Oil did it. Their well, which produces 22,000 barrels a day, came in last December in the Sabine uplift area of Txas and they sold their properties for well over two millions.

Bateman's home and the trust fund are taken care of. The trust fund is to be kept intact until his grandchildren are 21. His son and daughter now are 15 and 10.

They have spent their time here about as any ordinary out-of-towner does, seen a number of shows, visited places they always said they would see if they ever came to New York, and gone to a night club or two. Mrs. Bateman and Mrs. Douglas have done some Fifth avenue shopping.

FIND POLICEMEN ARE PARTNERS IN N.Y. SPEAKEASIES

Seized Liquor Sold Again to Favored Ones.

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Vice squad policemen running speakeasies on the side, ex-cops cleaning up fortunes in the liquor business and the bulk of liquor seized in police raids on such speakeasies as were dilatory in their graft payments going into caches whence it was sold cheaply to favored speakeasies are some of the discoveries of the appellate division's investigators that will come out in detail at forthcoming public hearings, it was revealed today.

The investigators are said to have definite information now that one vice squad cop held a partnership in a speakeasy on Washington Heights. Many men who used to be policemen but found the liquor trade more profitable are in the business now, it is said.

Peddled Seized Liquor.

Information has come to Referee Samuel Seabury's legal assistants, Harland B. Tibbetts and Sidney Handler, that it has been the constant practice of certain policemen to raid speakeasies which refused to pay monthly tribute or were slow in making their payments. If several cases of liquor were seized, two or three pints were kept for evidence in court and the remainder went to secret storehouses whence it was taken later to other speakeasies which were in with the cops and which would buy it for cash.

Ownership of other speakeasies is reported to have been traced to firemen.

Liquor Generally Poisonous.

All the liquor obtainable today is "mainly poisonous," and contains ingredients which, in time, "will wreck the human system," the examiner said. And even "medicinal liquor" has been cut and contains the injurious properties.

Referee Seabury plans shortly to go into the Municipal court, which he has authority to investigate as the agent of the appellate division, and through which he will be able to investigate many city departments, including the department of public markets, the bureau of fire prevention, the fire department, the tenement house department, the building department, the bureau of weights and measures, and the health department, since their summonses are returnable in that court.

Boy Falls Into Pool in Basement and Drowns

Oscar E. Thompson, 7 years old, 652 North Latrobe avenue, fell into a pit of water in an unfinished basement at Chicago and Laramie avenues yesterday and was drowned. Oscar's cousin, Alfred Hammett, also 7 years old, of 5239 West Huron street, saw him fall, but was powerless to help him. The tragedy occurred when the boys descended into the basement, which is coverd with a thin sheet of water, and approached a deep water filled pit. Oscar stepped too close to the brink, slipped, and fell in.

ROBBER KILLED, OFFICER SHOT IN THEATER HOLDUP

Wounded Bandit Carries N. Y. Cop to Hospital.

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—After kidnaping the manager and assistant treasurer of a theater in Brooklyn tonight, one bandit was killed, another wounded, and a policeman seriously wounded when the five thugs shot it out with three off-duty patrolmen who arrived in time to avert the robbery of $4,500 from a safe.

The wounded bandit, suffering from a shot in one eye, helped to carry Patrolman Edward Muller, 26, into the Unity hospital, two doors away from the theater, and then fled from the hospital. Muller was in a serious condition with a bullet in the left chest and another in the thigh. The dead bandit, who was felled by Muller's bullets, was identified only as Morris Jacobs, 23.

Dancer Is Slain.

The wrong girl was eliminated from a "flat foot waltz" contest at Para- wrong girl was eliminated from a "flat foot waltz" contest at Paramount Danceland, a "dime-a-dance" resort in Brooklyn, early tod y.

A friend protested to Charles Barnes, one of the "happy go lucky three," who were holding the dance. There were words. Then a pistol shot, then a volley of forty more. Barnes died in the arms of his sweetheart.

A siren on the roof was sounded. Police came. Michael Maisello, 26, of Brooklyn, ran. A patrolman, following the recent "shoot first" order, wounded him with a bullet.

Unable to Aid Police.

One hundred and fifty dancers, men and women, were rounded up by the police and taken to the Poplar street police station.

They were unwilling or unable to give police much information, but two suspects were held—one of them a gangster, the police said.

There were 1,000 persons in the hall at the time of the shooting. According to police, it has been a common meeting ground for the Hooligans, an Irish gang from Red Hook that includes some of the Ed Lovett gang, and the Hudson avenue gang, composed largely of Italians.

Statistics compiled with today's outbreak show that there have been 150 robberies, racketeering raids, and fights between the police and criminals since Jan. 1, in which revolvers, shotguns, submachine guns, and knives or other deadly weapons have been used.

Altogether twenty-eight persons were killed, including four women and a girl, and fifty-eight persons were wounded.

Metropolitan policyholders—including about one-fifth of the total populations of United States and Canada—have built up their reserves from millions into billions.

THE financial story below is a record of achievement by men and women who are planning to avert want or to build estates. You may admire their steadfastness of purpose last year under handicaps which tested courage.

These people—policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company—are building for their future. They would like to know what the future holds in store for them and for the country as a whole.

Let them, and other citizens, examine any chart of our country's unparalleled prosperity over the past hundred years. It appears, not merely as a jagged line, but as a series of towering steps which rise steadily onward and upward.

It is heartening now to recall that, after each depression, our country has always gone forward to greater heights of prosperity and better, sounder standards of living. Today this country has more riches and better facilities than ever before with which to commence her next great period of development.

A review of the financial history of the United States since it was founded in 1783 should turn any pessimist into an optimist.

The Metropolitan will gladly mail, free, a booklet, "The Development of Prosperity in America", telling of past ups and downs—and ups again—and how soon the "ups" followed.

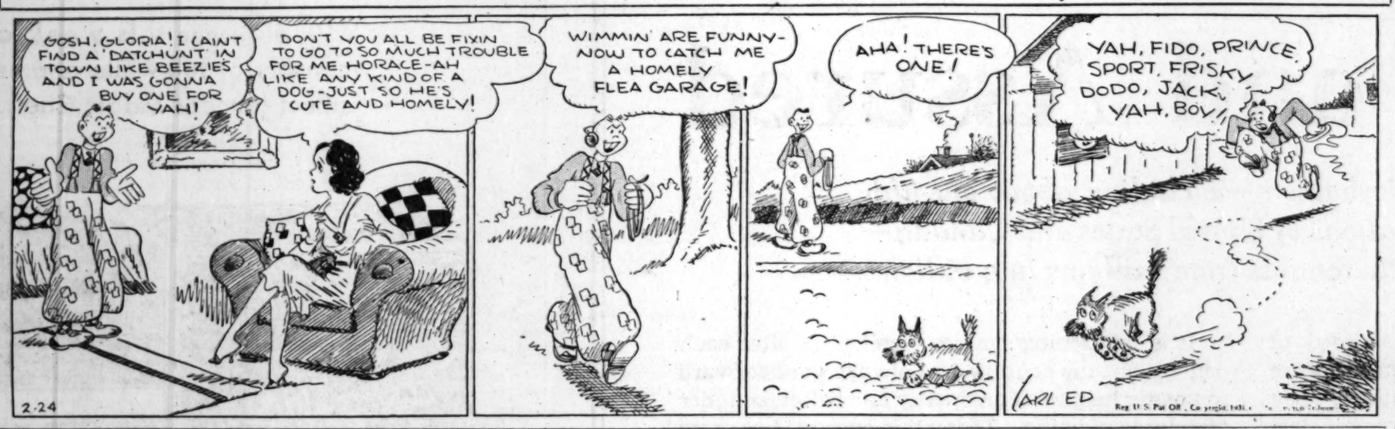
HAROLD TEEN—IT'S A DOG'S LIFE



U. S. HEIRESS WHO WED A DUKE DIES AGED 51

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, divorced wife of Duke Heinrich Borwin zu Mecklenburg, died today of pneumonia at the Hotel Richelieu here, where she had lived for the last year. She was 51.

The duchess was the former Natalie Oelrichs Martin of San Francisco and Newport, R. I., once a social leader on both coasts. She was a native of Cheyenne, Wyo.

Peter Martin, Pacific coast polo player and former husband of the duchess, was taken ill in Paris in 1913 and died two years later at Santa Barbara, Cal.

Duke Henry Borwin zu Mecklenburg, nephew of the then reigning grand duke of Mecklenburg, a cousin of the crown princess of Germany and lieutenant of the noted Ziethan hussars, made his first visit to San Francisco in 1915 during the Panama-Pacific international exposition. He was a guest at the Martin home. Following Martin's death the duke renewed his acquaintance.

A romance followed and the duke and Mrs. Martin were married in New York in 1915.

During one period of his career, the duke was employed as an automobile salesman in San Francisco. It was during this time the duchess inherited a fortune estimated at $5,000,000.

HAILED BY KINGS MELBA'S BURIAL WILL BE SIMPLE

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Dame Nellie Melba, world famous singer, who died early today at the age of 65, after a baffling illness in a hospital here, is to be buried on Thursday at Lilydale, Victoria. The funeral services will take place at the Scottish church where her father used to sing in the choir.

Tomorrow the body will be taken to Melbourne, the city from which Nellie Porter Mitchell fashioned the name by which the world knew as one of the great sopranos of all time, and the people of her homeland will have their opportunity to do her honor.

In the forty years of her active career Melba sang all over the globe. France remembered her best for her Ophelia in Thomas's "Hamlet," Germany for her Elsa, England for her Mimi and Gilda, while she set a height of vocal perfection for Juliette's farewell to Romeo in Gounod's opera. But to the masses perhaps she was best known for her "Home Sweet Home," which few singers could give with such rich, beautiful tenderness and feeling.

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect, returning home to England from Cape Town, a misfit to find Hilary Revel, the author of travel books, in the space he'd reserved a desk. They both desired seclusion. Hilary had just lost her invalid brother, Hugh.

INSTALLMENT II.

INTERFERING WITH DESTINY.

Hilary, taking modern languages at Oxford, was dreaming of a brilliant career, when in 1919 Hugh was at last released from the hospital. Called home to help her mother with the invalid, she had endured for twelve months the almost unendurable, and then persuaded the doctor to order him peremptorily to the south of France; for the children were coming home from school and she could not see their youth also broken and distressed.

Hugh fought against the move and gave in ungraciously and she went with him because there was no one else to go. To ease her own misery she supplied that winter the first of her little guides, "Where Shall We Go?" which by a lucky chance took on. There were twelve of the Revel guides now and they brought her a steady revenue. She had a light touch and gave just enough information to make the superficial tourist feel pleasantly well informed. The work had become so easy that she hated it, remembering her dreams, but she was quite human enough to hate also, momentarily at least, those superior people who looked upon it with lofty scorn.

John Falconer was such an offender, and fate and the deck steward between them had delivered him into her hands.

There lived in Cape Town a certain Mrs. Casaylis, one of those expansive Englishwomen who have an air of knowing everything and everybody in the world, and to whom therefore, when they are domiciled abroad, travelers always carry letters of introduction from well meaning friends.

Hilary's publisher had given her a note to the lady, who promptly endowed the visitor with a brilliant literary reputation and begged her smilingly on every public occasion not to "put us all into a book." These occasions were, however, necessarily rare. The girl was too much harrassed by Hugh's increasing illness to take part in the social life of the Cape, though she came to be grateful to Mrs. Casaylis for many kindnesses.

It was from Mrs. Casaylis that Hilary had first heard of John Falconer, who appeared to be her choicest lion. He was, of course, a genius in the lady's eyes—all her favorites were superlative—and this one's elder sister had been her schoolfellow, which settled his brilliance once and for all.

"Nonsense be damned! There has got to be a funeral; so let us have a cheerful one."

Though Hilary could smile at the source of her friend's admiration, Cape Town bore visible evidence of Falconer's talents in the new public building recently completed to his design. The work had been offered in open competition in Europe and he had won it hands down, Mrs. Casaylis boasted complacently. She had it on the best authority that the leading architects of the world copied his methods and deferred to his opinions.

"I must arrange for you to meet him some time, my dear," she added vaguely, "though, unfortunately, he is very difficile, not a lady's man, in fact. His heart is buried with his beautiful young wife and but for her death we should never have lured him to Cape Town with so many greater opportunities awaiting him at home. Poor fellow, he will never remarry, and what a waste!"

Hilary admired the classical simplicity of Falconer's building more than this picture of its creator. Reserved herself, she thought it contemptible that man should so parade his grief; and this was ironic in view of what a little later Falconer was to think of her. She could not know that Mrs. Casaylis was quoting, not the afflicted hero himself, but his devoted sister, with whom she had entered into an ardent correspondence since their reunion through John.

"You'll never be allowed to meet the paragon," Hugh had mocked as soon as Mrs. Casaylis was gone. "The old girl keeps her pets in watertight compartments, and in your way you are attractive. A pity! You ought to marry after my funeral."

"Don't talk nonsense," the girl had cried hotly.

"Nonsense be damned. There has got to be a funeral; so let us have a cheerful one; and it is in the best tradition that I should extract a promise from my devoted sister on my deathbed, so come along now. Promise me you'll marry, the first chance you get. You won't? Then you're a fool, my dear, for they won't want you, those kids. How old are they now? Christine, 19, and Steven, 21, and selfish little devils both of them. It would have been damn good for their education if you hadn't run me out of England, and people who interfere with destiny must pay for their fun. You'll pay."

Hilary had left the room sick at heart, because, as usual with diabolical intuition, he had voiced her own secret fear. Presently she would be going home a stranger, and to what?

Mrs. Casaylis did not, of course, compass the meeting between her two protégés, and their only encounter in Cape Town was as unconscious on the one side as it was painful on the other.

The new municipal library was at length completed; the governor general had given it his blessing, and the newspapers, showering praise upon the architect, whose "genius has conceived this noble pile," mentioned that he would sail for England by the Lancaster Castle on May 20. Hilary, in town a day or two after the opening ceremony, turned in with other sightseers to inspect the new building, and found that one of a series of popular lectures, arranged as a kind of house warming, was about to be given; the subject being "The Glory That Was Greece," and the lecturer was John Falconer himself.

Between amusement at the title and curiosity to see the speaker, the girl slipped into a seat at the back of the hall. Five minutes later she left the building and was hurrying, with scarlet cheeks, to find a taxi to carry her home.

"Ladies and gentlemen," the lecturer had begun, "I want you to come with me this afternoon to ancient Athens, not in the somewhat tawdry manner in which we are too prone to conduct our travels nowadays, with our Revel guide books in our hands to tell us funny stories about Sappho and Helen of Troy, but as pilgrims in the days of Pericles, to see the most beautiful city in the world."

Hilary felt rather as though she had been hit in the face and the whole world had witnessed the affront. Because she was worn out with months of anxiety and want of sleep, the incident took on absurd proportion, and she could even believe that Falconer knew her by sight, had seen her enter the hall and deliberately aimed his shaft. No doubt Mrs. Casaylis had sung her praises as she had sung his own, immoderately, until she was a figure of fun. His criticisms being hostile were also unjust, leading the audience to suppose the Revel guides associated Helen of Troy and Sappho with Athens! The thing was perilously near libel.

So thought Hilary, driving home, but at once this trouble was to be engulfed in another, for Hugh was worse. Two days later he died, and with the impulsive kindness of the colonial Briton, people she hardly knew filled the little bungalow with flowers and showered the girl with offers of hospitality. Up to the moment of sailing for home she had had no time to think of Falconer and his lecture again.

Good Morning!

Judging from the Punch and Judy's full house Saturday evening, folks are beginning to discover that this delightful little theater with its restful seats and friendly atmosphere isn't really out of the way at all. Well, here's a good week to get the Punch and Judy habit, for feature picture, comedy etc., form a program that should please everybody.

"Every Woman's Desire" is the German speaking adaptation of the stage play "They Knew What They Wanted" in which Richard Bennett starred, and is splendidly acted and engrossing photoplay. I still think that an explanatory prologue or occasional subtitle in English should be part of every film in foreign tongue, but, really, you quite well understand this altaliker without them because of the comprehensive and clear cut portrayals by the players.

You know that the wealthy, middle-aged Italian ranchier, Tony, has everything he wants but a wife and babies, and that he decides to go down to the city and find himself a maiden to become Mrs. Tony. You perfectly "get" his conference with Buck, the gay young fellow who assists him on the ranch and is regarded by Tony as a son.

Tony goes to the city and in an Italian restaurant sees and becomes enamored of Lena, a waitress. He wants her, but is far too shy to speak to her of what is in his heart. He rushes home for more talk with Buck and decides to write to the girl and enclose his picture. Buck shall pen the letter for him. Buck must go with him when he has his picture taken. Buck must have HIS taken, too . . .! At sight of his own photograph, Tony's heart fails him. He is so, well—NOT—so . . .! On impulse and on the sly he forwards Buck's picture to Lena . . . !

Result—the girl arrives believing she is to marry Buck, who greets her. Tony for some unknown reason having failed to be at the station to meet her train. He had started forth to get her all dressed up and full of wine.

She learns her mistake when the rancher is brought home with both legs broken, through an accident due to his stimulated condition. What happens after that is for the picture to show you.

That man Edward Robinson is a wonder! He can play anything and is immense as the volatile, loving, bashful, childlike, scared, tempestuous Tony. Vilma Banky is a real and appealing person as Lena. Joseph Schildkraut gives a flashing characterization of the here-today-gone-tomorrow Buck. Supporting rôles are beautifully taken care of. Sets, scenery, photography and sound are splendid.

You'll go for this German altalker in a big way, and will laugh heartily at the canine comedy in which even the hunds sprechen Deutsch.

Presented at the Apollo theater.

THE CAST.

Hanna, his wife	Olga Tschekova
Jens, a mute, Uwe's assistant	Joseph Rovensky
Margot, the girl from the Reeperbahn	Trude Berliner
Pepito, a sailor	Andre Pilot
Sailors, barmaids, waiters, dancers, guests.

This is a melodrama in the German with some charming incidental music. It can be quite readily understood by patrons who don't understand German—thought I don't imagine the theater will have many customers of any nationality as long as they ask $1 and $1.50 for main floor seats. Sunday night they were demanding a dollar for the first four rows and $1.50 for all farther back, and the theater had somewhat the appearance of State street at 8 o'clock of a Sabbath morn.

As for the film—the acting and singing are excellent. The direction is intelligent and the piece worth while as a whole. It is, however, the brilliant work of the two women in the cast that holds your interest, for the men are, with one exception, stolid guttural, and dull. André Pilot, as Pepito, a sailor, is an attractive chap who sings, acts and makes eyes à la Maurice Chevalier.

Most that happens takes place in a lighthouse off the Hamburg coast. Here is tossed up one night a girl from the Reeperbahn—Hamburg's Broadway. She causes much rumpus amidst the bride and groom, and mute, one-time war buddy of the latter, who mind the light. Scenes shift from the lighthouse to Hamburg and back again.

The humor of the piece is labored and there's not much of it. Of suspense there is considerable. The action moves slowly and there is an eight minute intermission that you don't care about.

See you tomorrow.

Expert Pines for Little Red Schoolhouse

Decries Million Dollar "Educational Riots."

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The question whether "our million dollar high schools are doing as much for education as the little red school house of yesterday," was raised by Dr. Gordon Jennings Laing of the University of Chicago.

Dr. Laing, dean of the graduate school of the arts and literature at Chicago, spoke today at exercises commemorating the founding of Johns Hopkins in 1874. He attacked the multiplication of so-called practical subjects in high schools and colleges. He pleaded for greater attention to the humanities and liberal culture.

"We are suffering from a sort of riot in education," Dr. Laing said. "Not long ago one college announced it planned to introduce into its domestic science courses devoted to the care of the baby.

"The man who travels about the country in his automobile 50 miles an hour flatters himself that he is a representative of his age. But is he intellectually any further advanced than the man who rode in an ox cart a generation ago? The truth is the people of today are intellectually medieval."

School Officials to Debate Dry Law at Convention.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 23.—(AP)—School superintendents began their annual clinic for school problems today with a study of the American home and declarations by speakers that the problems of the home and the school are inseparably intertwined.

An effort to bring the prohibition issue to a vote in the convention of the department of superintendence of the N. E. A. was started today. The matter was brought before the convention's resolutions committee by Dr. Daniel S. Kealey, a vice president of the organization. He presented a resolution which would put the association on record as favoring "elimination of the eighteenth amendment," for "it must be apparent that conditions resultant from so-called prohibition have adversely affected the home."

Dr. Kealey is superintendent of schools at Hoboken, N. J. The resolution was seconded before the committee by Dr. James A. Nugent of Jersey City.

Dr. Kealey said that in event the committee declines to present the resolution, he will take it to the floor of the convention Thursday morning.

The resolutions committee had drafted a resolution affirming faith in the 18th amendment and pledging "ourselves to an educational campaign for law enforcement and habits of living in line with the 18th amendment." The resolution further urges "all teachers to emphasize the evil effects of alcoholic drinks, tobacco and other narcotics upon the human system," and condemns "the false advertising of some cigaret manufacturers."

The time has passed, William McAndrew, Norwalk, Conn., editor of the Educational Review, former superintendent of Chicago public schools, declared, when a teacher can say the home is "none of my business."

"We are waking up," he said, "to the absurdity of letting the first five years of a child's life twist kinks into his personality and then sending him to school for unmarried young women to try to straighten him out."

McAndrew rather blamed the tendency of society to "let 1,000,000 experimenters in marriage annually blunder along blithely while paying $13,000,000,000 a year to combat crime, most of which is due to bad marriages, broken homes, and faulty family training."

MINA HAGER WINS PRAISE SINGING WITH THE APOLLO CLUB

BY EDWARD MOORE.

There was much pleasure in hearing Mina Hager sing the contralto solo parts of Bach's Mass in B minor, given by the Apollo Musical club at Orchestra hall last night. In fact it is not exaggerating to say that she was the finest single feature of the performance.

Bach singing, in fact, singing of the ancient school generally, calls for a different manner than that of modern times. The different manner, however, does not in the least stand in the way of a musical performance, not even what we moderns understand by musical. Miss Hager would seem to have solved both the technical and the artistic problems of the music, and so she sang graciously, expressively, and with a fine, classic line.

Lest comparisons with the other soloists, Grace Holverscheid, soprano; Charles Stratton, tenor, and Mark Love, bass, should seem to be getting pointed, one hastens to add that there can be no complaint over their parts of the mighty composition. They were commendable, but Miss Hager was rather superlative.

The chorus showed careful training under the baton of Edgar Nelson. It sang firmly and sturdily, and if correctness of note frequently seemed to take precedence over shaded gradation of phrase, there is perhaps a reason in the great intricacy with which Bach wrote his choral parts. The Chicago Symphony orchestra, or part of it, played the instrumental score, with Robert Birch at the organ and Lester Groom at the piano.

THE STAGE

"ART AND MRS. BOTTLE."

A comedy by Benn W. Levy; given at the Harris theater Feb. 23, 1931, with Jane Cowl as star, under the auspices of the Dramatic League of Chicago.

THE CAST.

Judy Bottle	Maren Evensen
Sonia Tippet	Lucille Lisle
A parlor maid	Patricia Neale
George Bottle	Walter Kingsford
Cealia Bottle	Jane Cowl
Charlie Dawes	Lewis Martin

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

JANE COWL, who used to be so lyric and sentimental and romantic, has become worldly and sophisticated, like nearly every one else. Or so it seems from "Art and Mrs. Bottle," the play which began the sixth and final chapter of the Dramatic league's season at the Harris theater last night.

She who has dampened so many lace handkerchiefs for love now appears as a cynical woman of experience, proclaiming that love is a delusion. She whose heart has been broken so often is now a merry mocker at the sacredness of the divine passion. An enchanting sentimentalist of the theater has adopted the vogue for worldiness, and I'm afraid that if this business continues much longer the noble race of heroines will become extinct upon the stage.

I do not mean to imply, however, that in "Art and Mrs. Bottle" the radiant—yes, still radiant—Miss Cowl has turned tough. Once a heroine, always a gentlewoman is her motto. She comes floating upon the scene, after twenty mythical years of a misspent life, like the Jane Cowl of old, lovely and tender and true. But having been the paramour of a scalawag artist and the mistress of a gambling casino prince, she has acquired a devastating set of ideas on the subject of that overestimated emotion called love, which she proceeds to impart to the family she had deserted. And her genial cynicism clears a few clouds of bunk out of the domestic atmosphere.

"Art and Mrs. Bottle" is a slight but deftly written comedy of minor impertinences which permits Miss Cowl to practice the art of the comedienne with extremely pleasant results. As the amiable Mrs. Bottle, who regards her reckless past as a useful educational experience, Miss Cowl is adroit, alert, and natural. She does not strain for a pose of "modernism," or give her bonny sense of humor a cruel edge. There are intimations of the Barrymore style in some of her touches, but they are fainter than they were a year ago in "Jenny." Altogether, the rôle of Mrs. Bottle is a charming achievement in the career of a fine actress.

Mrs. Bottle's return to husband and children as an impenitent prodigal makes the story of this smoothly acted bit of British comedy. She finds that both her son and her daughter have taken to art—the siren that had lured her into a wild elopement to Paris.

Worse than that, the son is in love with his model. Worse still, the daughter wants to become the mistress of a middle aged painter. Most awful of all, that painter is the very fellow who had carried Mrs. Bottle off, and then thrown her away, years ago. So Mrs. Bottle undertakes to save her offspring for humdrum domesticity and the plain, wholesome facts of life by hurling a choice collection of verbal lemons at the holy shrines of Art and Love.

The tone of the play may be suggested by the manner in which the daughter takes the dreadful news that her Casanova is an alumnus of her own mother's rapturous embraces. Instead of registering horror, according to the technique of the classic Greek drama and the contemporary cinema, she exclaims joyously:

"How marvelous!"

Yes, I fear that, as an interpretation of life, "Art and Mrs. Bottle" is somewhat flippant. But it tells a diverting story, and there is wisdom mingled with its fantasticality.

Miss Cowl's company is an expert organization. Walter Kingsford, as the quaintly indignant father; Leon Quartermaine, as the master-painter with a streak of gigolo in his nature, and G. P. Huntley Jr., as the yearning son contribute vivid character studies to the performance. Every rôle is in capable hands. Lucille Lisle deserves a citation; she plays an artist's model with the air of being a born specialist in cockney flappers.

Nation's Father Hailed Patron of Early Aviator

His Own Letter Politely Predicts Ocean Flight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—George Washington stood revealed in a new light today. The first President, the "Engineer President," as President Hoover has called him, was shown to have been an early enthusiast for aeronautics and to have witnessed the first balloon ascension on this continent. This unrealized angle of the career of Washington was made public by Augustus Post.

In April, 1764, Washington wrote a letter from Mount Vernon to the French Maj. Gen. Chevalier Duportail. The letter contains this paragraph:

"I have only accounts of air balloons which I do not know about but credence to give, as the tales related of them are marvelous and lead us to expect that our friends at Paris, in a little time, will come flying through the air instead of ploughing the ocean to get to America."

"Nine years later—January 9, 1793," Mr. Post said, "Washington himself witnessed the first balloon flight ever to be made on the western hemisphere. The event took place at Philadelphia. The French aeronaut, J. P. Blanchard, whose visit to America with his crude balloon was sponsored by Washington, took off from the prison court after Washington had spoken a few words to him."

The Blanchard passport, signed by Washington, said:

"To all to whom these presents shall come: The bearer hereof, Mr. Blanchard, a citizen of France, proposes to ascend in a balloon from the city of Philadelphia, at 10 o'clock a. m. this day, to pass in such direction and to descend in such place as circumstances may render most convenient. These are, therefore, to recommend to all citizens of the United States, and others, that in his passage, descent, and return or journeying elsewhere, they oppose no hindrance or molestation to the said Mr. Blanchard; and, that on the contrary, they receive and aid him with that humanity and good will which may render honor to their country, and justice to an individual so distinguished by his efforts to establish and advance an art, in order to make it useful to mankind in general."

Part of Washington's Policy Defeated Now, Back Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Like another Pennsylvanian, former Senator Grundy, who once made a remark about "backward states," James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.], former solicitor general, turned a Washington's birthday address in the house today into a discussion of some political inequalities.

Recalling the efforts of Washington and other constitution makers to secure a distribution of power based on population in both houses of congress and how their labors were defeated by the smaller states' threat of secession, Representative Beck declared:

"While defeated in an equitable distribution of power in the senate, Washington and his co-laborers did secure a provision that direct taxation and representation in the house of representatives should be apportioned among the states in proportion to population.

"That equitable apportionment of the burdens of government was destroyed by the sixteenth amendment, which did not, as so commonly supposed, vest a power to impose an income tax—for such power the United States had from the beginning—but did vest a power to impose an income tax without the apportionment which the constitution of the fathers had, as I think, wisely, provided.

"Eliminating important public improvements, which are of general benefit, and including only direct subsidies from the federal treasury to the states for nonfederal purposes, there are six states which draw two dollars for every dollar that they pay into the treasury. Two states draw more than three dollars for every dollar they contribute, while New York, which contributes nearly a third of the public revenues, derives less than one cent to every dollar it contributes.

"An extreme conception of our national unity might cause us to ignore these gross inequalities, if the political power to distribute these revenues was distributed in some fair proportion, but I can readily name seventeen states, which, collectively, have less population than that of New York state, and, nevertheless, have thirty-four members of the senate to the two senaters who represent New York.

Should a Girl Wait Years for Her Fiance? Yes, in This Case

BY DORIS BLAKE.

At 18 you are desperately in love with a young man who has still four years schooling ahead. He tells you it will take four more years to get himself established and in a position to marry you. He tells you that he wouldn't have you sacrifice those good eight years from 18 to 26 for him. But you can see no other boy and you know that the one you love loves you in return, and it is but his fine nature that inspires him to suggest your not giving up those long years.

Now, what would be your move? Wait patiently, or attempt to fill in the immediate years with other romantic interest?

It's "Lillian's" problem. She's not too young at 18 to know love and character. She's a serious girl, much older in years than other girls of her age. She'd wait an eternity for said boy—but he says, "It is best for you, Lillian, not to wait."

He's for a clean, sharp break, right away, because he knows that if they keep on seeing each other it will prevent the girl's being taken up by other boys. Besides, he admits he is crazy about "Lillian." Her happiness is the most important thing in life to him.

No doubt scores of 18 year old girls are in a similar plight. With some it may be one of those first love affairs that time and a new boy take care of. With others it may be the real thing, and a pity, indeed, that early marriage is impossible.

Rules, as we all know, are made to be broken under certain extenuating circumstances. A four year wait, a five or even an eight might be the right and only solution to a good and successful future. Some hold that a boy is handicapped in his studies and in a business or professional start with a girl to consider. With some boys perhaps the girl would be a handicap. But with more boys of the stuff of which success is made a fine girl is the best impetus possible.

And I don't think it requires four years to establish oneself in order to marry. As a matter of fact, that business of waiting to establish himself has ruined many a promising career. I'm a firm believer in responsibility as a driving force, and consequently feel that a five year wait, which from 18 to 23 is not out of proportion, and is not too much to give to the real love of a life.

Child Needs Very Little Arithmetic When He's Young

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Today we are continuing to thrash out the problem of the child who is made unhappy by his difficulty with arithmetic. Some children have a real talent for arithmetic and mathematics in general, and they will develop along that line, whether or no.

But that is unusual. The average person has only a mediocre skill in mathematics and after he is grown needs very little arithmetic.

Of course, he must acquire by the time he leaves school a certain ability to handle figures—a certain facility. But that should be acquired gradually through the years and not jammed and crammed down his throat before he is ready for it. Nor even when he is ready should it be made a test of his general ability or intelligence.

There is an interesting fact that teachers and parents, too, will observe with arithmetic—and frequently with the learning of reading. It's this—that when a child needs either one very badly he will quickly pick it up.

For instance, I know an artist who, as a child, went very little to school. When she did go she hated arithmetic and as the saying goes, couldn't add two and two. Then suddenly she began to sell her pictures. Later she wanted a house built according to her own specifications. And then she had some money left her. Well, you should just have seen her arithmetic sprout!

And watch a boy pick up the ability to figure and measure and ask questions about fractions when he wants to build an animal cage, or a club house, or plan a tennis court and you will see what I mean when I say that arithmetic usually comes when you call her.

Food Talk.

One of our readers suggests: "Would you be good enough to devote some of your column space to aiding me in the serving of hors d'ouvres? We should like to know the exact procedure when serving this course in the living room and just how it differs when being served in the dining room then when served at the dining table."

Hors d'oeuvres may, of course, be served either in the drawing room or in the dining room. If they are served in the drawing room they should be arranged on doilies on one or two attractive little trays and in that manner offered to the guests. Those being served should be furnished with little cocktail napkins, but that is all; plates and silver are not necessary. In the living room hors d'oeuvres are always eaten with the fingers. The hostess should use discretion, however, and not plan to serve appetizers that are difficult to eat with the fingers, such as hearts of lettuce or halves of hard cooked eggs. A small cocktail usually accompanies the hors d'oeuvres, such as tomato juice cocktail or fruit juices, whether you prefer to serve them in the living room or dining room.

In the dining room this first course is served on small individual plates at each cover and the plates carry doilies. Here the hors d'oeuvres may be eaten with the fingers or with a fork. I would prefer using the fingers unless the morsels are too difficult to handle in that manner. If forks are necessary use dinner forks. In the dining room, of course, there would be no question about napkins, since dinner napkins are at hand.

CASSEROLED SPANISH RICE.

2 cups stewed tomatoes
1 cup boiling water
5 tbsp. raw rice
3 tbsp. chopped onion
2 tbsp. chicken or beef fat
½ cup grated American cheese salt
paprika
1½ tbsp. fine bread crumbs
1 tsp. butter

Chop the peppers fine and all the ingredients, except the bread crumbs and butter. Mix well. Bake the rice mixture in a well buttered dish for one hour. Stir frequently to prevent the rice from settling. Ten minutes before the end of the hour add the crumbs and butter to the top and let that brown. Yield: Three large servings.

Meta Given will answer in this department questions that are of general interest from readers. Personal replies will be made by mail where stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

A Friend in Need

Heater Is Needed.

"We know of a family, a young couple and a child, who are having a hard time. A stove is needed for heating purposes. We would be grateful if you could secure some kind of heater for them. T. P."

During the remaining weeks of winter these deserving but unfortunate people must undergo much discomfort unless we are able to supply the much needed heating stove. If you have one to give, please get in touch with me.

Mother's Letter.

"I am greatly in need of clothing for my two children, a boy, 4, and a girl, 1 year old. They need everything and things that do not fit I can make over. I should also be grateful for any pieces of furniture your readers may have to give. Our house is almost bare. MRS. M. J."

If you have boys and girls of these ages, perhaps you will be able to supply this mother with some of their castoff clothing.

Ugly Woman Gains an Attractive Quality by Vitality, Conceit

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The phrase came over the air at a small social function. A terribly attractive ugly woman! What manner of looker she? Investigation proved the description fitted admirably. There she was, over at the end of the room, surrounded by a group watching her fascinatedly and taking in every word she said.

Her conversation was weighted with I's, thus delivering another blow at the conventional rules for charming. But what experiences she'd had and how humorously told! And with what vitality! She charged the air about her with vitality!

Homely—yes. She had a large nose, irregular teeth, hair not so good, but cleverly done. Her figure was just so-so and her ankles wouldn't stop traffic. Clever dresser, though. Who but she would dare that color combination, and who but she would dare those ear rings? And the bracelets—bizarre as costume party trimmings.

What was the woman's secret? Her daring and her vitality—and her admirable lack of self-consciousness. Rather, it should be said, her sureness of self. Her hands, even, were not above reproach, speaking from a pure physical appraisal of them. But what a part they played in that one's vital personality! They talked, they acted, they persuaded.

"She proves," volunteered the one at my right," that beauty is exactly what you make it, these days." And that's the moral of the tale entitled, "A Terribly Attractive Ugly Woman." It's an art, that. It's one Frenchwomen are past masters of. It calls first of all for a full reservoir of healthy energy, and the impetus to live to be perpetually alive and to inspire others to the same attitude toward life. It calls for that grand forgetfulness of self that sends you into a group fortified against competition.

You've done everything you could with what you have and you are you. That's the idea. You know your worth as an interesting guest, and so you play your hand. Conceit—perhaps? But a swell brand to work up, wouldn't you say? For after all, isn't it one woman's conceit and another woman's lack of it that marks outstanding differences?

BEAUTY ANSWERS

D. G. A.: YOU MAY REDUCE large ankles by exercise and massage, but you must be persistent in the treatment. I have such exercises in illustrated form and will be glad to send you that you send a stamped, addressed envelope for them.

Sunk!

Planning... hoping ...and then—the thing she dreaded

Nature won't postpone her process to accommodate social engagements! Two weeks ago she was sure she could go. Then—just an hour before the party—it had started. That excruciating pain which is now avoidable.

Expected. Dreaded. Those muscular pains reckoned by the calendar. You can't always tell to the day and hour when they'll begin. But you can count on their relief seven minutes after taking Midol

The periodic process is natural, but the painful part is not. Midol is non-narcotic; it never interferes with the process, but it does banish the pain. These tablets take effect in five to seven minutes. Better yet, the woman who takes them beforehand will experience no pain at all. Midol relieves headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, too. Always to be had at any drugstore.

Opera Friends Hear Part of "Ibbetson"

BY THALIA

A PARTY at Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's house is always an occasion, and yesterday's meeting of the American Friends of Opera was a particularly grand one.

Mrs. McCormick was there, of course, looking very chic in a black satin frock trimmed with bands of plaid and a black hat of one of the new kinds of rough, shiny straw, trimmed with a black velvet ribbon. Mrs. Charles H. Swift was guest of honor, and she looked charming, too, all in brown.

There were 243 members of the society and their guests, filling the two drawing rooms, to hear the synopsis of and excerpts from Deems Taylor's opera, "Peter Ibbetson," given by Miss Edith Mansfield, soprano; William Miller, tenor, and Willard Rhodes, director. After the program tea was served. Among those to be seen in the audience were Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum, whose black costume was becomingly set off with white touches here and there; Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. Erich Dannenberg, Miss Lucy Martin, Miss Emily Larned, president of the society, and Mrs. William S. Monroe.

Two Chicago Girls to Take Part in Boston Wedding.

Has anybody told you about . . . Misses Wendell and Elizabeth Chapin being in the wedding party of Miss Phyllis Ellsworth for her marriage to Clarence Douglas Dillon, which is to take place at the Emmanuel church in Boston on March 10 . . . how well and sun-tanned the Duncan Edgemans are looking after their southern trip (they were at the Arts club party on Sunday night) . . . "Snick" Dixon of Green Bay visiting the Floyd Dixons (Mr. and Mrs. Evans were to have Lake Forest last night for Coronado Beach, where they've taken a house for a while) . . . the 7 o'clock of the morning motor party that set out from the Ralph R. Richardson home yesterday (Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. William Scudder, Mrs. Henry Cooper Jr., and Mrs. Percy Randolph, who has been visiting the Richardsons, departed with a small mountain of luggage for Virginia—they hoped to get to Columbus, O., last night. Then Mr. Richardson was to meet them and proceed with them—Mr. Richardson will come back in about a week, and Miss Frances, who has been away almost all winter that she is now getting reacquainted with her friends, will go on in the middle of March for the last few weeks of hunting) . . . ?

Mrs. J. W. Morrisson Talks Today About "Random Memories."

Mrs. James W. Morrisson is giving her talk on "Random Memories" under the auspices of the Chicago Teachers college at Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift's residence at 1551 Astor street this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Nearly all of the 350 tickets [they had to be limited inasmuch as the walls of the Swift house aren't elastic] are gone, but if there are any left they can be purchased at the door. Mrs. H. Newton Hudson and Mrs. Bruce Johnston are to preside at the tea tables after Mrs. Morrisson's talk.

Two unusual lectures at the University of Chicago this week! Accompanying Francis Neilson's talk on "Hell and His Precursors" this afternoon at the university chapel will be a organ recital by William Lester, who has collaborated with Mr. Neilson in composing an American opera, "Naomahe," based on legends of the Omaha Indians, and on Thursday afternoon Mrs. Charles H. Swift will illustrate Mr. Neilson's lecture on "Lyrics of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries."

At the speakers' table for the dinner of the English Speaking Union and the Council of Foreign Relations are going jointly for Dame Rachel Crowdy at the Blackstone on Friday will be the Ernest Ballards, the George Richardsons, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Haggard, Mrs. William G. Boland, Victor Elting, and Clay Judson. Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum, Walter Lichtenstein, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, and Miss Elizabeth Webster have reserved tables for the dinner, and others planning to attend include Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Miss Helen Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Mandeville, and Mrs. Lyndon Evans. Dame Crowdy—should we say Dame Rachel?—is to speak on "International Aspects of Social Reform."

Yale Housing Plan to Recall Names of University Benefactors

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The new residential quadrangles at Yale university which will come into use through the house plan for undergraduate life will be known as "colleges," President James Rowland Angell told alumni at their annual Washington's birthday reunion today.

Illustrative of the idea, the Yale president said many graduates would remember buildings at Yale called Farnam college, South college and North college and so the university has decided to revert to the practice in naming the quadrangles.

Outstanding events and figures will be commemorated and at the beginning five of the "colleges" will be called Berkeley, after Bishop George Berkeley, one of the most generous of early benefactors; Saybrook and Branford, names closely linked as early sites of Yale; Pierson, after the first rector, and Davenport, after the founder of New Haven colony.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The secretary of state and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson returned today to Woodley, after spending the week-end as guests of former Senator and Mrs. George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania, at their home at Devon, Pa.

Bishop Predicts Churches' Unity Within Decade

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A decade will see church unity embracing the greater part of Christendom. That was predicted yesterday by Bishop Frank E. Wilson of the Episcopal diocese of Eau Claire. A dinner was given in his honor at the Hotel Sherman by the Chicago Church club. Bishop Wilson based his prophecy on the work of the commission on church unity at the Lambeth conference of Anglican bishops held last summer at London.

Bishop Wilson told of the participation there of Greek Orthodox patriarchs, representing historic eastern sees. That fact, he said, presages early establishment of full communion between Anglican and Episcopal bodies, and the Orthodox churches. He stated the unity commission at Lambeth was composed of the patriarchs of Constantinople, Antioch, Alexandria, and other patriarchates, together with American, English, Australian, and Canadian bishops.

In addition to the progress toward unity with the eastern patriarchates, Bishop Wilson pointed to advancement made at Lambeth with the Old Catholic church of northern Europe and with the Scandinavian churches. The Old Catholic church separated from Roman Catholic relationship in 1871.

"If these intercommunion relationships are established between these bodies," said Bishop Wilson, "it will mean the ultimate establishment of the strongest combined body of churches in the history of the world."

Bishop James Wise of Kansas, speaking earlier before the same group, declared the coming decade also gives promise of seeing the reunion of the Established Church of Scotland (Presbyterian) with the Episcopal church of that country.

Lent Day by Day

The Rev. Emerson O. Bradshaw.
(Secretary Chicago Council of Religious Education.)

"The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against these there is no law."—St. Paul.

The greatest fruit of the spirit is love. Love is intangible but real. If it takes its place in human experience one becomes invincible among his fellows. Love is an attitude toward people. It is a frame of mind and a way of responding to situations. It puts up no resistance to personal wrongs. It is bestowed on one's enemies and leads its possessor to go out of his way to do them good turns. It harbors no jealousies, dwells not on personal injuries, does not pay back. It abounds in joy and is always kind. It never fails in the art of being good, and practices gentleness and temperance. It always possesses a faith that removes mountains of hatred and melts away the forbidding icebergs of prejudice. It is "the greatest thing in the world." It has the power to make the world over. The best definition man has ever given God is that "God is love." The more we abound in love the more we are like Him.

PRAYER:

Almighty and everlasting God, give unto us the increase of faith, hope, and love; and that we may obtain that which thou dost promise, make us to love that which thou dost command.

Worth Frock That Hits the Perfect Style Note.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The late afternoon and dinner frock of black lace or georgette with false décolleté and long sleeves in flesh pink or rose beige lace is one of the most popular frocks worn by smart Parisiennes now and it will go right on being popular next spring and summer if we're to judge by the Palm Beach collections of the grand couturiers and by the choice of their smartest and most exclusive clients.

There's no need to enlarge upon the practical advantages such a type of frock offers. They just jump out at you from our Worth sketch here. You instantly realize that this frock hits exactly the right note between formality and informality that is required by an "all weather" dinner frock [sartorially speaking, of course].

Smart women here seized its advantages at a glance, for Worth tells me he's made it for a number of famous élégantes, including Mme. René Revillon and Mme. Menocal, wife of the former president of Cuba.

It's of black triple georgette with skirt made full in the latest fashion by one of Worth's clever cuts. You'll note it has a hip yoke in the back while in the front there's a slithy curved diagonal cut to make you look slim.

Long sleeves and upper bodice incrusted in points front and back are of rose beige Chantilly lace. There's a tailored belt of the black georgette. Note the above-ankle hem, smart length for dinner now.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Informal Greeting.

My niece, who lives in my home, and my son have the habit of calling each other names in fun. Recently my niece heard some one on the front porch and was certain it was her cousin. The doorbell rang and she opened the door suddenly with, "Come in, you old soak," and then realized that the caller was a religious worker soliciting funds! J. D.

Bright Sayings of the Children

After going to a matinée recently I was telling the story of the picture at the supper table. I said that in the film a certain young man had lost his fortune in the stock market crash.

My daughter, age 8, listening attentively, asked: "Mother, was any one hurt?" J. K. McB.

Charlie Chaplin Hears Britons' Debate; Likes Talkies Less Than Ever

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Charlie Chaplin visited the house of commons today and after he had heard the debate remarked to one of the members that he liked the talkies less than ever.

The comedian sat in the distinguished strangers gallery and then inspected the press gallery, where he declined a drink in the bar.

To make it a day, he inspected the house of commons library and remarked that the books there were real, unlike some of those at the prime minister's residence, Chequers court, which he said were merely imitations for mural decorations.

DURING COLDS

BEWARE germ-filled handkerchiefs

No Self-infection Possible with KLEENEX

Disposable Handkerchiefs

A series of authentic tests reveal the handkerchief a source of almost incredible danger during colds. Handkerchiefs used during colds were found to contain up to 4,170,000 disease germs!

Think, then, before you carry a used handkerchief back to your face! It is not only damp, soiled, disgusting—it teems with germs that must be destroyed.

Use Kleenex—and discard

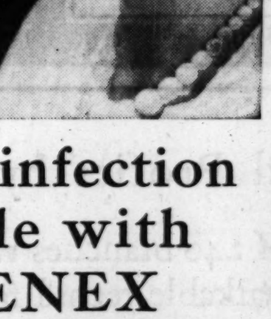
When you use Kleenex, there's no possible danger of self-infection from handkerchiefs. You use Kleenex once then discard. Germs are destroyed, too. Each tissue that touches your face is clean.

You'll value the greater comfort of Kleenex, too. The tissues are exquisitely fine and soft. They are marvelously absorbent—seeming actually to soothe the tender, inflamed skin. Kleenex is the perfect handkerchief for children.

To remove cold cream

Kleenex, too, is advised by prominent stars of stage and screen for removing cleansing cream and cosmetics. Its super-absorbency assures thorough cleansing. Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store. Packages in three sizes—25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. In pastel tints and white.

If you have not tried Kleenex, send for a free trial package to Kleenex Company, Lake Michigan Bldg., Chicago, Ill.



Bacteriological tests show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 bacteria per handkerchief.
2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when impregnated upon linen and rinsed in boiling water and soap water, were not killed nor appreciably inhibited from growing.

KLEENEX disposable TISSUES

When the KINDEST ADVICE is misleading

YOU CAN'T RELY on a friend's advice in selecting either pastries or face creams. The very one that delights her may not suit you at all. So please remember that Dorothy Gray has created three distinct types of emollient cream, one of them especially designed to keep your type of skin smooth, soft and young.

Special Mixture is for the dry, sensitive skin, $2.25 and $4.50. Tissue Cream is for the plump face and for the oily type of skin. $1 and $1.75. Special Skin Cream is especially blended for skin throats and faces. $1 and $1.75.

FARM and GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

HOW TO SPADE THE GARDEN.

In gardening as in many other things there are two distinct schools, each combining theory and practice. Hopefully in this apparent in the matter of digging in the spring or turning over the soil.

Orthodox, or at least old, is the method of trenching the soil, digging it out three spits deep [spit being the spade length], putting manure and any soil in the bottom of the trench and then filling it with the soil from the bottom of the trench mixed with fertilizer.

The modern school of gardening discards this trenching idea to a great extent. Few plants roots in the garden send down feelers to this trench 3 or even 24 inches below the soil surface. The plants thus derive little benefit from the subsurface fertilization and humus layer.

If stable manure is available the trenching method has one point of benefit in that the system increases moisture retentiveness. Yet in periods of extended drought this does not help the garden much because the humus can only hold moisture when there is moisture to hold. Eventually without sufficient rainfall even the deeply prepared bed of humus dries out with the rest of the soil.

Good spading in ordinarily fertile soil is said to suffice for all practical purposes. But there is a distinct method to even ordinary spading. The spade must be thrust in as nearly a vertical position into the soil as possible. Done right it is a slow and arduous task and is easily surpassed in effort and quality by plowing when this is possible.

Speed Your Sales and Profits by Serving the Southwest Market from Dallas . . . the Center

DURING 1930 a total of 240 branches were established in Dallas. That is a remarkable record for a year when shut-downs rather than expansions were the rule. Now executive interest in this large and rapidly growing market has materially quickened because of the phenomenal Southwestern population gains recently announced.

Now, 2,256 concerns with headquarters in 42 states and 7 foreign countries maintain branches in Dallas. From New York came 493 of these branches; Illinois sent 285, Ohio 167, Missouri 149, Pennsylvania 132, and California is in sixth place with 97. Leading companies throughout the country have chosen Dallas because it is the geographic and transportation center . . . the population and distribution center . . . the raw material and power center . . . the industrial and financial center . . . of the 6 billion dollar Southwest market.

"The Southwest Market" is a new 144-page book presenting basic market facts on this major market zone. Included in each copy are four colorful maps that give a complete and accurate picture of the Southwest at a glance. Executives interested in increasing their sales in the Southwest are invited to send for a copy of this valuable book. Write on your business letterhead, or use the executive coupon now.

HUGE NEW OIL FIELD DISCOVERED IN EAST TEXAS . . . A FEW HOURS FROM DALLAS

Nationally recognized oil authorities have already said they expect this new field to be the largest pool in the world! Not since the discovery of the first big Texas oil fields has there been such a frenzy of excitement over a new field. People are pouring in by thousands. Towns in the heart of the new field have doubled their populations. Millions in new wealth are being distributed. Dallas is the nearest metropolitan city to this important new oil district . . . only a few hours away. Oil companies, recognizing the strategic location of Dallas, are establishing their headquarters here. Dallas is centrally located for all oil fields in the Southwest. East Texas—Arkansas—Louisiana—Gulf Coast—West Texas—and Oklahoma fields may all be reached from Dallas overnight by train or in a few hours by plane. A Dallas base will save traveling time—shipping costs on supplies—and telephone costs over any other possible operating center of sufficient size to adequately serve East Texas and the Southwest as a whole. Oil executives are invited to write for a special report of Dallas' advantages as an oil center. Let us show you specifically what Dallas has to offer . . . now!

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Northwestern's basketball players assured themselves of at least a tie for the Western conference championship by crushing Minnesota, their chief rival, by a score of 45 to 23, in the Minnesota fieldhouse tonight.

The Wildcats are leading the Big Ten with nine victories out of ten games, while Minnesota, in second place, has won seven and lost three games. If Northwestern loses both its remaining games and Minnesota wins its remaining two, the teams will tie for the title.

Record Crowd at Game.

A crowd of 12,182, the largest ever assembled to watch a basketball game in Minneapolis, sat amazed as Northwestern built up a lead of 20 to 9 in the first half and then turned the game into a rout by continuing to bombard the basket in the last twenty minutes of play.

The Gophers apparently went into the game with the idea of stopping Northwestern by stopping Joe Reiff, high scoring sophomore forward. They succeeded in the first half, Bondy and Chelsuuk holding him to a lone field goal, but they forgot about Capt. Bert Piel.

Piel Scores 19 Points.

Piel sank three baskets in the first half and came back with four more in the second. He dropped in five straight free throws, running his total to 19 points. Midway in the second half Coach Dutch Lonborg decided that Piel had done enough for one evening and sent in a substitute for him.

The Gophers switched Licht to guarding Reil in the second half, and he promptly broke away for three field goals. His total was ten points, and Bob McCarnes was right with him with ten. The Wildcat attack, which featured long shots in the first half included attempts from all parts of the floor in the second period.

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 23.—Kind hearted Rogers Hornsby broke down today and said he just couldn't summon enough cruelty to make his Chicago Cub infielders and outfielders work tomorrow afternoon following their arrival at Catalina on the noon boat.

But the Cub members of the second squad are going to be given an opportunity to get their minds on baseball right away, for Manager Hornsby has acted favorably on the petition of the pitchers and the other catchers that they be permitted to stage a second game between the Malones and the Hartnetts. This game will be played immediately after the slugging contingent has had lunch.

Pitchers Ready for Sluggers.

The slugging portion of the Wrigley outfit will arrive to find every pitcher in good shape to do a lot of bearing down when the second squad fellows start their workouts Wednesday at 11 o'clock. Malone, May, Baecht, Sweetland, and Teachout all are burning up catchers' mitts. Root, Bush, Blake, Smith, and several others are going about their training chores a bit more conservatively. All are in good shape, however, and the soft pedal stuff practiced by some of the boys is a matter of policy, not necessity.

By the end of the week the experts will be telling you more or less definitely the personnel of the 1931 midseason pitching staff. This won't be so very hard to do, especially since Hornsby already has passed out the information that he intends to carry three lefthanders if he can get three out of the four he now has on hand.

Here's Guessing List.

When the experts start guessing on the surviving pitchers their list probably will show the following names: Malone, Root, Bush, Blake, Osborn, and Baecht, Smith, righthanders, and Teachout, May, and Sweetland, lefthanders.

Picking the surviving catchers will be an easier task, for three will be retained out of the four candidates. Gabby Hartnett and Zack Taylor are fixtures, of course, and it now appears that Earl Grace will get the call over Bill Campbell on the basis of seasoning, although young Bill is a likely prospect and is not likely to pass from the Wrigley chattels.

The young men of the talent who just miss making the grade with the Cubs do not face an unpleasant future, however, for the Los Angeles club is in a highly receptive mood and the Reading club, former Wrigley Siberia, has passed from Cub control.

Soccer for Sluggers, Too.

Returning to the second squad, be it known that the sluggers are going to get an early introduction to Hornsby's training innovation, soccer. After a week's work the pitchers and catchers all look upon themselves as soccer marvels and are becoming giddy at the prospect of engaging the newcomers in the pastime.

No exhibition games are carded until March 7 and 8 with the Los Angeles club here, and the games with the movie actors, also here, on March 5 but it is probable that Manager Hornsby will arrange a series of intraclub games just as soon as he is able to

Psst! It's a Secret! Here's Ski Winner

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 23.—The eastern amateur ski jumping championship was run off today on the Olympic tower outside the town of Lake Placid. When it was over the officials went into a solemn huddle to decide who had won, and your correspondent will give his name as soon as they reach their decision.

It probably will be an unfamiliar name, as ski jumping up to the present time has been almost a secret sport like interclass bean bag at Vassar. So the winner will be, generally speaking, somebody that nobody ever heard of.

The jumps were made from a platform built just about the top of a mountain after a slide down a steep wooden incline covered to a depth of about a foot with packed snow. There had been a fresh fall of snow overnight, but the jumpers asked to have it removed as it would be likely to reduce their speed. So a lot of guests of the Lake Placid club turned out on their skis and shoveled the fresh snow back with garden rakes used back end to.

This left the packed snow in a slightly scuffed up condition, so the guests then passed a long rope down the hill, secured at the top end, and, hanging to this like Alpine climbers, stamped the snow hard and smooth with their skis.

The ski jumpers did not think the mountain was high enough or steep enough to exert them to their best efforts, so the tower was built on the highest point of the crest. Then, altogether the altitude was just a little short of 300 feet and the grade almost as steep as the side of a house, the jumpers wanted the course made even faster.

The outlook from the top of the tower as the jumpers stand at the brink waiting for their turns to go is about the same that confronts a despondent lover who goes up to the top of a high building, object suicide, and the whole proposition of leaping out into space this way is a good deal like jumping out of a window up near the eaves of the Chrysler building.

About three seconds after the start the jumper comes to a place where the runway ends and he goes sailing through the air with his pants making fluttery flapping noises and his features drawn into a desperate expression.

Some of the jumpers today were little stringy kids from the Northwood prep school in Lake Placid, apparently no more than 15 or 16 years old. Maj. Phillip Fleming, the graduate manager of athletics at West Point, who is a winter sport enthusiast, happened to be in Lake Placid inhaling a few armsful of air for himself, so they asked him to act as starter.

He invited your correspondent to go along as assistant starter and your correspondent thought the duties of this position would require him to grab hold of some of the jumpers and push them off as, judging by the view from the platform, it seemed very likely that some of the boys would wish to change their minds.

However, it was not necessary to do this and the most astonishing thing about the whole procedure was the casual manner of the young men as they stood around the platform, all crowded together and with their skis strapped on, waiting their turns. As a man's turn approached he edged up toward the brink and when the major called his name he shoved off with a couple of little quick shuffles into the great white beyond.

There were a dozen or 15 tumbles in about 180 jumps, one of them executed by one of the worst ski jumpers in the world, a clumsy kid who seemed pretty likely to spatter himself all over the mountainside each time, but he came back up for his next turn and stepped off with no delay when his name was called.

The grandstands are built one on each side of the course on the hill below the takeoff, tall narrow pine structures decorated with bunting, but most of the crowd were banked around the flat, down at the bottom, where the jumpers pull up with a twist. This position gives the nearest view of the

RAIN AND RIVETS DISTURB SOX IN TRAINING LABORS

Even in Mud Rookie Grube Appears Promising.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 23.—The first lap in the process by which the White Sox battery men hope to get themselves in working order wasn't exactly a howling success. In keeping with the original schedule, Manager Bush assembled his squad, about twenty men in all, at Eagle field this morning, but there was something noticeably wrong about the weather.

Instead of the balmy air and the sunshine expected from the so-called sunny south, there was nothing but mist, drizzle and a chilly wind. The chamber of commerce has promised to see that this doesn't happen again. Along with the unfavorable weather there was mud, so much of it that shoes soon began to look like those of an Iowa farmer.

Under the circumstances work was necessarily light, but as a matter of fact it was enough. The first day's program always is more or less aimless, with athletes trying to find clothes that will fit them, getting acquainted with each other, and relating the usual lies about winter experiences.

Riveter Annoys Athletes.

Another disturbing item about the first day of training was a riveter, who displayed the usual enthusiasm of members of that trade. He began operations with his compressed air hammer early this morning, and as he was right next door to the Sox headquarters, he naturally caused considerable annoyance. His enthusiasm for his art made sleep impossible, so many of the athletes were up and about the lobby long before the morning phone ring was due.

The day's practice itself was nothing except what you have seen the big league teams do before a regular game when they couldn't go on the diamond because the cover was there. The boys just threw a bit, posed for male and female photographers, and then did a couple of laps on the quarter mile cinder track which surrounds the playing arena. If it hadn't been that he didn't want to ruin what little grass was evident, Bush would have had the athletes chasing fungoes in the outfield. But the place will be ideal for training purposes as soon as the sun gets a chance to break through and dry it up.

Grube Appears Good Prospect.

It is obvious, even after so limited a drill as occurred today, that the Sox battery men are not going to be much changed over those of last season. Most of the rookies are apparently distantly removed from major league standards. One exception is Frank Grube, the former La Fayette college football player, who was purchased from Buffalo last summer. He has the well known Hack Wilson build, which is ideal for a catcher. That is what Hack tried to be when he started out.

Grube, unless he has some defect which thus far in his career has escaped detection, should be able to promote himself to the status of second string catcher.

Among those who reported this morning in time to comply with previous orders were Jim Moore, who pitched a bit for the Sox late last season, and Pat Caraway, the elongated southpaw, who did mighty well last year for a newcomer. During the winter Pat had his tonsils yanked out, and since has added 10 pounds to his weight. This means he should have a little more strength, and everybody knows he needed it last summer. Ted Lyons also is 10 pounds heavier. He terms this "middle age fatness." Ted's 30 years old now.

Catcher Moe Berg is still among the missing, which is no surprise. Berg has a way of dodging at least a few days of the irksome training. He usually requests a furlough on the plea that he has important business in New York. Of course, there is a possibility that he is a holdout.

Miss Robinson Is Victor Over Stella Walsh

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

Betty Robinson, Chicago Olympic star, set a world's 100 yard indoor track record of 11.1 seconds last night when she defeated Stella Walsh of Cleveland in the feature race of the first annual indoor track meet of the Illinois National Guard and Naval Militia at the 124th Field Artillery armory. Betty's margin of victory was less than a foot.

It was the first time that the girls have met since a meet in Dallas last year, where Stella won the 100 meter race from Betty by the same margin. The race last night was about even until ten feet from the finish line, where it appeared as if Betty simply lunged ahead. Myrtle Cook, Canadian sprinter, did not participate on account of illness. Evelyn Hall of the I. W. A. C. substituted for her and finished third.

The race was the first ever held for women on a 100 yard straightaway track indoors, so the time stands as a record.

The Eighth infantry team won the tug of war from the naval squad. The crowd cheered this event as if it were a football game.

Notre Dame won the football relay race from Chicago and Northwestern. The men were dressed in football uniforms, shoes, and helmets. A regulation football was passed instead of a baton. Northwestern finished second, three yards behind. The Notre Dame team was composed of Kaplan, Brill, Lukats and O'Brien. Northwestern runners were Hall, Griffin, Hanley and Halls.

Walker and Risko to Trade Punches at Miami Tonight

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Under the same old palms, but with breezes somewhat less balmy and customers considerably less agitated, the 1931 outdoor heavyweight fight prelude will be played tomorrow night to the accompaniment of a sockfest between Mickey Walker, theoretical middleweight champion, and Johnny Risko, Cleveland plow boy.

Walker, spotting Risko about 25 pounds, will enter the ring for the ten round feature match, a favorite to repeat the victory he scored over Risko in Detroit. The odds, however, were no more than 6 to 5 in Mickey's favor, due to the determination Risko has manifested in his training, as well as his habit of springing upsets.

As a warning of more serious affairs to come, W. L. [Young] Stribling, pride of Georgia, and Max Schmeling, young German holder of the world's heavyweight title, are slated to offer three rounds each of exhibition stuff as ballyhoo for their championship fight somewhere in the north this June.

Unless the prediction of rain is fulfilled and upsets calculations, Promoter Stribling expects the Madison Square Garden arena, on the outskirts of Miami, to be occupied by about 30,000 and the gate to reach $100,000, at prices of $2 to $15.

If the weather interferes, the show will be set back until Wednesday night. The preliminaries, consisting of five six rounders, are booked to start at 8 p. m., eastern time, and the main go at 10 o'clock.

Talk of interference by New York interests seeking to have the Walker-Risko card called off was ridiculed today by Stribling. He denied there was the slightest connection between his organization and the Madison Square Garden corporation, as has been rumored.

Cochran Whips Matsuyama, 400-380, in 18-2 Tourney

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Welker Cochran, Hollywood, Cal., defeated Kinrey Matsuyama, Japan, 400 to 380, in the international 18-2 balk line billiard tournament sponsored by the Federation of Billiard Players here tonight. The match lasted 24 innings. In the afternoon Willie Hoppe, New York, beat Erie Hagenlacher, Germany, 400 to 374, in 14 innings.

Socks Appeal—South Side Boys Have IT!

BY ARCH WARD.

South side boys have socks appeal. They proved it last night before 3,600 fans at White City when they started belting one another around in the sectional qualifying round of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament.

The crowd that filled the arena was rewarded with as furious a brand of glove slinging as you would care to witness anywhere, anytime. The wallop those south side lads displayed bodes ill for the battlers who survived the trials on the north and west sides.

As evidence of the punching power of the contestants, the first five bouts ended in knockouts. Nearly half of the 51 matches failed to go the limit.

327 Entered Meet.

It is not surprising that the south side meet, judged by last night's exhibitions, should develop the best talent of the tournament. In the first place, there was an entry of 327, a hundred more than registered for the west or north side rounds. Secondly, the south side field included some strong teams from out of town.

The Robins A. C. of Cleveland, O., turned up with some of the best looking boys in the meet. All four of the Cleveland entrants survived the opening round. More Cleveland boys will appear in the four heavier divisions tonight. If they are as good as the little fellows, the team trophy, which goes to the club qualifying the most boxers on the Chicago team which fights New York March 30, may go to the boys from the shores of Lake Erie.

The Cleveland team is a cosmopolitan group. The fighters who appeared last night were Don Gonzales, who was born in Oviedo, Spain; Billy Burns, a Croatian; Louis Jallos, a Greek, and Kenneth Disch, who is of German descent. The Cleveland boys who will make their debut tonight are Carmen Barth, an Italian, and Ralph Phillips, a Slav.

Won Cleveland Trophy.

The Robins A. C. last year won the team trophy in the amateur boxing tournament conducted by the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Thirty-six members of the club have been nominated for the 1931 meet. The six boys chosen to compete in the Golden Gloves contests motored to Chicago Sunday. They were accompanied by the manager of the club, Manny Robins, and two trainers. They will return to Cleveland after tomorrow night's trials and if any qualify for the tournament of champions at the Coliseum March 2, 3, 4, they will drive back to Chicago.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Largest entry, most bouts, record crowd. This is the story of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament which opened the south section preliminary trials last night at White City.

First and second round qualifying matches were held in four weights. Eighty boys reported yesterday afternoon to weigh in. And 51 bouts, the largest number held in any one night in the metropolitan tournament, were necessary to cut this field to the semi-final and final pairings.

3,600 Crowd Sets Record.

The call of Golden Gloves brought 3,600 to the White City roller skating rink. This throng, which sat hour after hour on the benches or far back in the bleachers, was a record attendance for sectional tournaments, the third in five night of fighting.

West side, north side, south side All around the town thousands have cheered their Golden Gloves heroes. And the south side knows its boxers. It takes a great pair of kids to make these experienced fans stand up and cheer.

But that's just what the Golden Gloves boys did last night. Not once, but many times, the crowd rose to yell for the knockout punch, or to whoop it up for the boy who had made a rousing rally to win the decision.

Crowd Is Sportsmanlike.

Notwithstanding its vociferous opinion, the crowd last night was sportsmanlike. Its disapproval was honest and its applause liberal. It appreciated ability, but it was fickle in support as all crowds are.

Some minutes of the six hours of boxing had little to offer those who had expected superability, but in between, the fans responded to a brilliant demonstration of courage and resource which matches Chicago's other sections and predicts trouble for the 15 out of town teams which will gather at the Coliseum next Monday.

Tonight the south section preliminaries continue. Four more weight classes, from the welterweight to the heavyweight, inclusively, will meet. Tomorrow night is the finale for White City with eight classes fighting. While some fans believe tonight's crowd may snap the three day record breaking attendance chain, inasmuch as it is election night, all assert tomorrow, with all the boys in action, should set an all time attendance mark.

Boxing's Greatest Bargain.

Golden Gloves battles are boxing's greatest bargain. Forty or more bouts each night for an admission of 75 cents is unsurpassed.

Cleveland had some greatest fighters in last night's tournament. You've been told about them. But the Calu-

Now Tied with 38 Points Each.

The Shamrocks, encouraged by Sunday night's victory over the leading Tulsa Oilers and the record home attendance of the season, will endeavor to hurdle another formidable American Hockey league foe at the Stadium tonight, when they battle the Kansas City Pla-Mors, last year's champions.

The Chicagoans see an opportunity to make it two important victories within three nights, since they and the Pla-Mors are tied for second place in the league standings with 38 points each. A victory tonight will aid the Shamrocks considerably, since the Pla-Mors have three more games than themselves to play.

Will Have Week's Rest.

Following the second place battle with the Pla-Mors, the Shamrocks will take a much needed rest. They will not see action again until a week from tonight. The exigencies of the schedule have kept the young green and white sextet hard at it, and the week's recess, interspersed with practice, will prepare them for the closing weeks of the race.

The Shamrocks will be forced to maintain the same fast pace that defeated the Oilers in tonight's game, since the Pla-Mors are rated one of the best defensive teams in the league. The Shamrocks have a decided edge on games between the two thus far this year, having won four out of five, but the Kansas City team has strengthened its defense with the veteran Moose Jamieson since its last appearance here.

Byrne Leads Goalkeepers.

Back of Old Moose and his defense partner, Slim Henderson, will be Paddy Byrne, the league's leading goalkeeper. To offset the recent offensive efficiency of the Shamrocks, the Pla-Mors will present Pete Mitchell, the most valuable player in the circuit last year, and Wasp Campbell, the team's high scorer.

The Shamrocks will rely on the Riley-Wiseman-Burns and Brydson-McKenzie-McFayden front lines for scoring duty, with Bouncer Taylor, Andy Mulligan, and Sam Timmins for defense.

Tilden Keeps Old Tactics in Pro Tennis

Tilden, Kozeluh, Francis T. Hunter, and Emmett Pare will arrive in the city tomorrow morning. They will bring a huge cork and rubber mat, especially constructed for these matches. This mat is placed on the concrete floor and fastened in place. A canvas covering is then stretched over it.

Tilden Bearing Down Again.

Officials for the match will be supplied by the Western Lawn Tennis association, subject to the approval of Tilden, who has become so serious in his play during the last week, that there is little difference between the Big Bill of today and the man who reprimanded crowds at Wimbledon and Forest Hills and fought with the U. S. L. T. A.

Big Bill's avowed change in temperament to suit the ethics of professionalism, as contrasted to amateurism, slowly has slipped away from the lanky Philadelphian and in his last two matches he has become the same old Tilden, bent on winning and determined to dominate.

Tilden will play in a doubles match with Hunter, his old national championship partner, against Kozeluh and Pare. Hunter and Pare meet in a singles match to round out the program.

Pare a Chicagoan.

Pare is a Chicago boy, who jumped to court fame by winning the national intercollegiate championship in 1929. Hunter long has been one of the outstanding American tennis players, and with Tilden once formed the greatest doubles combination ever to represent the United States in the Davis cup play.

TILDEN BEATS KOZELUH.

Youngstown, O., Feb. 23.—(AP)—William T. [Big Bill] Tilden tonight defeated Karel Kozeluh, Czecho-Slovakian champion of the professional tennis world, 6-3, 6-4.

Tilden and his former Davis cup doubles partner, Frank Hunter, slammed out a 7-5, 6-4 decision over Kozeluh and Emmet Pare, fourth member of the now professional troupers. Hunter defeated Pare, 10-8, in a one set singles exhibition.

There is a scientific way of falling all limp with the arms flung out. The skis, which weigh as much as twenty pounds apiece, then have a tendency to go first. However, some of the boys who fell didn't observe the best principles of this work and went bowling head over heels all of a jumble with their skis spinning and clattering every which way.

The longest jump of the day was made by Roy Mikkelson of the Norge Ski club, who looked as though he might sail clear over into Canada and changed his mind barely in time to stay on the place. He went 198 feet, completely destroying the old record of 187 feet, but the best single jump was made by a boy from Salisbury, Conn., a little place up in the northwest corner of the state, who took off with his arms stretched out and down and slightly astern, and zoomed 189 feet without a wiggle or twist to increase his distance. His name is Ottar Satre.

The other jumpers pausing on the long stairs on the way back to the top, yelled startled Scandinavian exclamations at the beauty of his style, which seemed pretty good at that. Satre is only about 18 years old and he has been in the United States just a couple of years.

There are three Satre boys and a girl, all skiers, but the sister, of course, doesn't do the big jumps, as this is not regarded as a girl's sport. A girl from Philadelphia by the name of Jeanne Deruse went off the big one last year and lit standing up, all right, but this was contrary to custom.

Casper Oimen of South Dakota, the national champion, had one jump of 187 feet, but the Satre boy's leap was the more impressive, especially because he was only a member of class B. The gate receipts probably did not amount to much, as it is very hard to collect admission to a range of mountains, even if they are private mountains.

P. S.: When the officials came out of their huddle at last they announced that Roy Mikkelson of Chicago was the winner. Strand Mikkelson of Greenfield, Mass., was second and Casper Oimen third. The combined results of three jumps, distance and form counting equally, decide the score. The distance is measured accurately, of course, but the question of form is strictly a matter of expert opinion.

Ottar Satre won the class B jump and also took the Beck trophy, a cup offered for combined scores in racing and jumping. He won the 18 kilometer ski race Saturday.

Commission to Air Levinsky, Stadium Fuss

The Illinois athletic commission will meet at 1 p. m. today to consider the tangled claims and counter claims advanced by parties to the King Levinsky-Tuffy Griffith bout scheduled for the Chicago Stadium March 6.

Ray Alvis, Levinsky's manager, who says he won't permit the King to go through with the match because the Stadium failed to sign the supporting card he suggested, will try to prove his point.

Sidney Strotz, president of the Stadium corporation, and Matchmaker Nate Lewis will present a copy of the fight contract to the commissioners. Lewis contends that the Stadium has fulfilled its part of the contract and that Levinsky must do the same.

Jack O'Keefe, Griffith's manager, will attend the meeting. O'Keefe will ask the commission to require Levinsky to post a $5,000 forfeit to guarantee his appearance for the fight.

APPROVE CHICAGO SITE FOR FINAL OLYMPIC TRIALS

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Despite protests from the Pacific coast, the executive committee of the American Olympic committee definitely approved Chicago as the site for the final Olympic games tryouts in a ten hour session at the New York A. C. today.

Although the coast flooded the committee with telegrams, Chicago, as the geographical center of sports activity of the country, was voted as the place for the games but when the question of the dates came up for discussion, members divided into two camps. Several committee members were in favor of the present dates, July 15 and 16, while Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., was the lone spokesman to advocate a six week interval between tryouts and Olympics.

met region and Chicago had others. There was Joe Roman. You heard about him last year, how this featherweight from the steel works club of Joliet, Ill., won his bout in the intercity matches at the Stadium. Well, Joe started last night to earn his place on the team which battles in Madison Square Garden March 30. He raked Joe Volanti of the Normal Tigers with a barrage of body blows and healthy socks to the head. Volanti went down three times in round one and Referee Phil Collins stopped the match.

Jimmy Dunnington, colored, the third of the brothers who entered in each of the city sections, got by his first match when he knocked out Larry Deluda, unattached, in one round. Jimmy's brother, Harold, had qualified in the north section, but Jimmy had no luck last night. He drew Don Gonzales of the Cleveland team for his second encounter.

What a fight! Dunnington might have beaten any one else in the featherweight division. Gonzales, however, was too much.

Midnight, and still the hundreds line the walls. The forty-fifth bout was another knockout. More cheering. Wonder who's next? Number 104. Programs flutter. The fight starts. Cheers. What a sock. The bell.

VAULT PRECAUTIONS.

THE WAKE was being shown the huge time locks and interior of the safety deposit vaults of a large local bank. Asked if the ventilating device worked at all times so that if bandits locked employés in the vault they would not suffocate, the guide explained that the ventilator closed automatically when the vault door was closed. That was protection for the vaults and not for protection of any one confined within against their will.

"What would happen if you were locked in the vault and the door with the time lock closed?" we asked.

"That would be just too bad," he explained, "and we'd suffocate—EXCEPT for this precaution."

Then he led the way to a safety deposit box in an obscure corner, produced keys and opened it. Within was a telephone. "This is connected at night with a telephone exchange."

"But what good would that do with the time lock on?" we again asked.

Then he showed us the door. On its inside was a glass inclosed set of combinations. When that glass is broken by any one on the inside it affects mechanism so that the vault door, without respect to the time lock release, can be opened by one on the outside knowing the combination. Several bank officials know the combination. Unless the glass within is broken, however, the door cannot be opened from the outside until the time lock mechanism operates.

Far across the sea,
Nearer shines a dearer,
Come a cheering me.
Well I know its constance
Among a thousand stars . . .
A radiance of spirit
No worldly shadow mars.

Now I come to borrow
From your glow a spark.
Sadly have I stumbled . . .
Lonely night is dark.
O infinite the blessing
You bring to cure the blind,
In valleys bleak and barren,
Deserted and unkind.

Here I tune a ballad,
Pray you find it true.
More I need the graces
Manifest in you.
Courage I discover
Perishes away . . .
O light my lamp with valor
That never knows dismay!

"Faust Kaempfer" Schmeling.

Well, we have a new one, at least to us, to spring whenever Champion Max appears in this city, if he does appear in this city. It is "Faust Kaempfer." It has been customary in seeking synonyms to refer to Max as the "German Schlager."

Schlager, as Helper J. F. P. informs, is correct, although its original meaning means a hitter of any kind and might even apply to a father applying the strap where it would do the most good as a preventive of future youthful errors. "Faust Kaempfer," on the other hand, specifically means Fist Fighter.

Meantime, we understand the bout betweens Champion Schmeling—New York boxing commission to the contrary—and. Will Stribling will take place in June. It will be held or will not be held in Chicago.

While about 20,000 looked on, Londos pinned his rival's shoulders to the mat in 49 minutes 15 seconds of a finish match to one fall with a hold which was announced officially as a toe hold and airplane spin. The crowd which witnessed this second meeting between these mat rivals within period of five weeks paid net receipts of $54,738.

Socks Appeal—South Side Boys Have IT!

The Cleveland boys entered the Chicago meet because they love to fight. They saw in the Golden Gloves competition a chance to prove to the country that they grow 'em tough in Cleveland.

Gonzales, junior national featherweight champion, started Cleveland's victory parade by stopping Arthur Calvano of the Del Ray A. C. Gonzales crept inside of Calvano's guard, raking him with short arm blows. He then stepped back gracefully out of range of Calvano's wild swings to leap in suddenly with a succession of left jabs to the head and right hand smashes to the body.

He'll Have Competition.

In and out glided Gonzales, weaving, bobbing, now creeping, now jumping, until his south side rival hardly knew where he was at. The Cleveland boy has been boxing more than two years and is his club's main hope for a place on the Chicago team. He will have to battle his way through a strong field to reach that goal.

There's a featherweight named Mastro on the west side who will make it hot for Gonzales. Then who knows what to expect from South Bend, Peoria, Davenport, Milwaukee or the 12 other cities who will send their champions to the Coliseum, March 2, 3, 4?

The race for Golden Gloves still is wide open. If you are not looking on, you are missing the treat of your lives and the best bargain boxing provides.

Rube Benton to Try Comeback in Pitcher's Box

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 23.—(AP)—John C. Benton, more familiarly known as Rube, former big league southpaw pitcher, is to have an opportunity to prove he is not through as a hurler.

Benton's release was announced last week by the Minneapolis American association club. His pitching hand was crushed in an automobile accident last year. In a letter received today by Mike Kelly, manager of the Millers, Benton declared an operation had restored use of his hand. Kelly has decided to take Benton to Hot Springs, Ark., in March to prove his statement.

JONES RECEPTION TO HAVE "TABLE OF CHAMPIONS"

With almost all of the reservations taken for the national sports dinner to be held in honor of Bobby Jones Thursday evening at the Medinah Athletic club, President Avery Brundage has announced that one of the features of the gathering will be a "table of champions," who will be present when Jones is honored.

The golf king comes to the city tomorrow, and on the following night he will be presented with the James B. Sullivan memorial medal, awarded him by the National A. A. U.

Among those who will be seated at the "champions' table" will be Betty Robinson, Walter Laufer, Jane Faunta, Anton Burg, Bob King, Helen Filkey, and Levi Casey.

OTHERS NEAR CAMP

Needles, Cal., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Eleven impatient Cub infielders and outfielders were pounding through the mountains tonight within a few hours of the boat that was to take them to Catalina island and their pitching and catching mates.

This three day journey over the plains, across the desert, and through the mountains turns into quite a grind despite the improvement in scenery as the trip goes on. The only thing the boys find is pointing out the points of interest to Vince Barton and Bill Jurges, the rookies. They're the only two in the party that haven't seen it time and again.

Impatient is the word to describe the attitude of this division of the Cub training party. Take the outfielders for instance. Hack Wilson, Kiki Cuyler and Riggs Stephenson are three boys rated as sure of their jobs. Then there's Cliff Heathcote and Johnny Taylor, the capable utility men of last year; and Barton, who comes up from the minors with the best of recommendations. Waiting in Los Angeles is Johnnie Moore, carried by the club two years but seasoned with the Angels last season.

There is just a chance that only one of the outfielding gentry may remain on. Charley Tolson and George Kelly are not on hand this year to fill emergencies at first base. Two of the seven candidates have had experience at this post—Heathcote with the Cardinals and Barton in the minors.

Added to this, Stephenson's incapacity of last season cannot be overlooked, and until the powers that be are certain that Riggs is back in trim, an extra man may be retained.

DELAY ACTION ON OIL RELIEF BILLS IN HOUSE

Vote of Committee Halts Legislation.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The drive of independent oil producers for protection against foreign imports was abruptly halted today by the house ways and means committee. By 11 to 7, the revenue committee refused the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill to postpone all tariff and customs measures because "there would not be sufficient time during the remainder of the session for the consideration" of such bills.

Even this vote the committee decided not to meet again this session, leaving not only oil legislation but the Burtness bill endorsed by Chairman Legge for a temporary embargo on depressed agricultural products.

Chairman Hawley, who comes up for renomination with the best of records behind him, is waiting in Los Angeles. Representative Willis Robertson, carried by the Democratic landslide two years ago, is not seasoned with the experience of the last session.

Here is just a chance that only a few of the outfielding gentry may make the grade. Charley Tolson and George Kelly are on hand this year to fill empty places at first base. Two of the leading candidates have had experience at this post—Heathcote with the Cubs and Barton in the minors. In addition to this, Stephenson's incapacitation at the end of last season cannot be overlooked, and until the powers that be are certain that Riggs is back to stay, an extra man may be retained.

United Aircraft and Transport.

I am interested in United Aircraft and Transport. I have never invested in stock before and don't know much about it. Would they sell as low as five shares? I would not have enough money for more than five, that is keeping a sum for more margin if it should go down.—O. V. W. K.

United Aircraft and Transport corporation and its subsidiaries form one of the most important groups in the industry. Subsidiaries include airplane, aircraft engines, and propeller manufacturers, as well as companies operating air transport lines, aeronautical schools, airports, and experimental laboratories. Its transport divisions include one of the three transcontinental lines, routes along the Pacific coast and in the great lakes region and a line from Chicago to Dallas.

United Aircraft has been able to operate at a profit since it was organized, even last year when many companies in the industry reported heavy losses. Profits in 1930, however, were sharply lower. One of the reasons for decreased net in 1930 was reduced volume of sales of Pratt & Whitney Aircraft company, engine manufacturing subsidiary. In 1929 80 per cent of Pratt & Whitney's production was for commercial purposes. In 1930 army and navy orders accounted for more than 70 per cent of the company's output.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1930, United Aircraft and Transport corporation reported net profit, after charges and federal taxes, amounting to $3,252,145. This was equal to $1.31 per share earned on the 2,076,716 no par common shares outstanding. In the corresponding period of 1929 net was $7,248,378.

Neither the company nor its subsidiaries have any funded debt. The parent company has 240,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred [par $50] outstanding.

The consolidated balance sheet on March 31, 1930, indicated current assets of $24,591,903 and current liabilities of $2,317,481. This left a net working capital of $22,274,422, compared with $10,501,318 a year before. Profit and loss surplus was $10,229,040.

Preferred dividends have been regularly paid. No distributions have been reported on the common. It is speculative.

Your letter indicates that you are not especially well informed in investment matters and that your capital is quite small, hence it would probably be unwise for you to expose your funds to speculative risk.

Continental Roll and Steel Foundry.

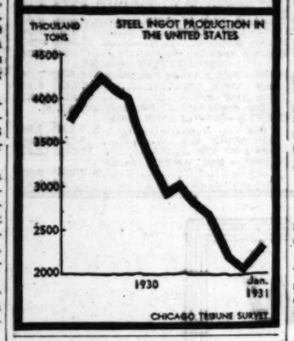
OUTPUT OF STEEL FOR THE MONTH OF JANUARY TURNED UPWARD



Prof. Ripley Urges Control of the Investment Trusts

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Rigid governmental regulation of investment trusts and public utilities engaged in interstate commerce was urged today by Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard university.

The author of railroad consolidation proposals told the senate banking investigating committee that millions of American investors of small sums were having their funds tied up in the hands of a "very limited number" of people through the operation of investment trusts.

He warned of danger in this practice unless the government assumed control and required "full publicity and an honest accounting of the financing."

Ripley conceded his proposal involved a constitutional question, but said the line should be drawn by the courts to determine which companies were engaged in interstate business.

Points Out Weaknesses.

He said one of the "cardinal weaknesses" of the investment trust plan resulted from a great temptation to use the trust as a waste basket in which to place something which cannot be put in the hands of the public successfully.

Marcus Nadler, associate professor at New York university, and research director of the Institute of International Finance, told the committee a law holding directors primarily responsible for failures of banks would result in "more conservative banking."

He blamed lack of responsibility of officers and absence of bank liquidity due to excessive loans on securities and mortgages and less liquid investments for any of the closings in recent years.

To increase the liquidity of small banks, including savings institutions, he urged establishment of a central mortgage bank for urban real estate which "could take mortgages held by banks, and on the basis of this, issue its own bonds."

This, he said, would create a "ready market for urban mortgages and in times of stress enable the banks, commercial as well as savings, to convert their mortgages into cash."

Parker Pushes Rail Bill.

Chairman Parker today issued a call for a meeting tomorrow of the house interstate commerce committee, with a view to taking action on his measure to place railroad holding companies under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission. At the same time the New York Republican announced he would introduce a resolution calling for an investigation of all holding companies operating in interstate commerce.

Both proposals were in the committee's recommendations, based on its twelve months' investigation into railroad ownership, which were submitted to the house last week.

Parker predicted his measure to place railroad holding companies under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission would meet congressional approval this session. He expressed some doubt, however, whether his proposed inquiry into all holding companies would gain final approval before adjournment March 4.

REPORT GOOD RAINS OVER SOUTHWEST; WINNIPEG WHEAT UP

Liverpool and Winnipeg markets were open yesterday and all American markets were closed in honor of Washington's birthday. There were good rains over Kansas and the southwest generally, with snows in Colorado, removing apprehension as to drought.

Winnipeg wheat had a break early and a recovery later. There were reports of export sales of 300,000 bu. The close was ¼c lower to ¼c higher. Trade in oats, barley, and rye was good and a firmer undertone prevailed, with prices averaging higher.

WINNIPEG WHEAT RALLIES.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Wheat prices staged a rally in the closing minutes of today's session, regained the greater part of an early decline, and finished the day with prices ¼ cent lower to ¼c higher than Saturday's final figures.

May wheat closed at 63¼c, down ¼c; July closed at 64¾c, down a like amount; October finished at 67c, a gain of ¼c.

Exports over the week end totaled 200,000 bu. Advices from Liverpool indicated a pause in the demand by millers, with Canadian and Argentine shippers reducing their offers.

Cash wheat and coarse grain trading was devoid of feature, with prices holding in sympathy with wheat.

DULL TRADING IN LIVE STOCK; PRICES DECLINE

Hogs, Lambs Show Biggest Losses.

Demand was narrow for all classes of live stock yesterday and most kinds were bought at uneven reductions. Hogs and heavy lambs showed the sharpest losses, while some good steers were about in line with the close of last week. Others finished 15@25c lower. Supplies of cattle, hogs, and sheep were only moderate for Monday, the total at 20 leading markets at 314,000 being exactly the same as a week ago and 55,000 smaller than a year ago.

The hog market weakened soon after a steady opening yesterday and bulk of selling in mid-session and later

It is only necessary to look back on the speculative terror which prevailed during 1928 and the first nine months of 1929 to find outstanding examples of these conditions.
When Business Conditions Change
When business conditions change for the worse, however, and earnings of industries both at home and abroad begin to decline, this spirit of optimism gives way to pessimism. Volume of trade falls off, commodity prices decline and unemployment becomes the talk of the day; then investors flock to the bond market for employment of their funds.
Here they find security of principal and certainty of income. Their capital invested in stocks gradually dwindles and corporations, in order to fortify their financial position against further recession in trade, find the reduction or passing of the dividends necessary.
The more conservative investor who did not permit himself to become carried away by the speculative terror prevailing during the period of increasing prosperity is most appreciative of the high grade bonds in his account. With the decline in interest rates, incident with a decline in the volume of trade, his capital position, which has never been in danger, is actually enhanced. With the falling off
Written in the light of today's conditions
Who Should Hold Bonds?
The investor of limited means cannot afford to risk loss of principal and reduction of income. This is particularly true for those entirely dependent for a living upon the income from invested funds. Bonds alone are the ideal investment for such individuals.
The prosperous business man receiving a substantial income from other sources or the man of considerable wealth may feel justified in employing a portion of his surplus funds in enterprises involving a certain degree of hazard. However, under no conditions should he neglect establishing a well selected and diversified back log of bonds upon which he can rely for stability of principal and income regardless of how slack business may become.
A definite amount of cash should become available periodically for reinvestment or for

A new booklet of especial interest to conservative investors

As a new and usable contribution to the cause of sound investing, The Northern Trust Company submits this practical booklet.

Its purpose is to set up a clear basis for building investment structures that will be affected as little as possible by the turns of the business cycle. It seeks a form of structure that will yield satisfactory income with safety, and yet retain so far as possible the advantages of ready marketability and possible appreciation in security value.

The booklet is simple, brief, concise. The principles advanced are based on more than forty years of active experience in the conservation of investment funds.

The Bond Department will be happy to mail you a copy or to discuss the facts the booklet contains with you personally. Write for it, under the title "The Ideal Investment." Or call at the Bond Department, on the lobby floor of The Northern Trust Company's home, Northwest corner of LaSalle and Monroe Streets.

showed losses of 10@25c, the close being the lowest point of the day in face of the small supply in sight for today. Five western markets expect only 58,000 hogs today against 79,200 last Tuesday. The general average price moved down 10c at $7.00, while the top at $7.65 was steady with Saturday and 10c under last Friday's peak. Outside demand took only 11,000 head, the smallest Monday shipments since the middle of December. Most local packers bought slowly at the full decline, leaving about 5,000 in the pens at the close.

April Hogs Bid $8.50.

Bids of $8.50 were made on light weight hogs for April and May delivery, but the lowest offer was $9.00 for those months. March light were bid $7.65. March mediums were offered at $7.50 and bid $7.00, while April mediums were offered at $8.00 and bid $7.25. March, April, and May heavy were bid $6.75@7.00. On the "to arrive" market light weights for today were bid $7.75, mediums $7.70, and heavy $6.90.

Top steers slipped below the $11.00 line yesterday for the first time on Monday since last August, the best on sale yesterday averaging 1,280 lbs., at $10.75. Several carloads of 1,145@1,287 lb., averages brought $10.50. Many 1,000@1,200 lb. steers sold at $7.35@8.00 and some common beef cattle downwards to $5.50. A few head averaged 1,785 lbs., at $8.50, the heaviest on sale yesterday. Cows and heifers were slow and steady to 25c lower. Calves were mostly steady. Stockers and feeders were weak to 25c lower.

NOW IS THE TIME

"All factors indicate present is Opportune for Investing in Securities....."

"IT LOOKS on the face of things as if the time is 'right' and prices are 'right.' There remains the matter of a 'right' security. As to this, everyone must judge for himself and select for himself." (Thomas F. Woodlock in The Wall Street Journal, January 24, 1931.)

The steadily growing earnings, desirable character of the territory served and the essential nature of the business recommend Associated Gas and Electric Company securities. Gross and net earnings as well as gas and electric output of the properties in the Associated System during 1930 were the largest in its history.

The better than average industrial, agricultural and mining productivity of the territories served should result in more rapid development and wider use of gas and electricity in Associated areas. Per capita value of manufactured, mining and agricultural products in the 2,857 counties that have electric service in the United States, is $631. Per capita value of these products in the 63 counties in which Associated properties serve half or more of the population, is $685.

30,300 new investors during 1930, bringing the total to 220,480 during the year, points to the public's appreciation of the earnings possibilities of the Associated System. An unusually large proportion of the security holders are customers served by the operating properties.

Earnings on an "overall" basis after depreciation, are 2.04 times annual interest requirements on the funded debt of the company and all interest and preferred dividend charges of its operating properties.

When even executives succumb to temptation, it's not surprising that so many cashiers, bookkeepers and clerks are unable to resist the lure of their employers' money.
